Program Given By C. E. Group At Elgin Church

By Mrs. L. E. Hill
(Observer Correspondent)

ELGIN, Ore. (Special)—The Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church had complete charge of the Sunday evening church services. Misses Willena Stewart and Bernice Heala and Edwin Beem gave brief talks. Miss Delphia Beem sang a solo, the Junior choir had prepared a special anthem and the prayers were given by Miss Joyce Williams and Miss Laurose Harris. The entire service was splendidly carried out and each one of those taking part deserve special mention. The attendance was not so large as it was hoped for, due to the fact that not many outside the regular attendance knew that such a program had been arranged.

Mrs. Saray Brownell returned on Monday from a few weeks stay in Boise with relatives.

Myron Hug and Bob Alexander came from Portland by plane on Sunday. They will remain here for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. George Kennedy an-are very much the same and each time the Bulldogs play a game they find one just as hard as the other, and they have to play their unlimited best to stay in the victory column. Most of the teams in Eastern Oregon are composed of veteran players which speaks very well for Baker boys in their campaign to win.

Coch Scott said that he was uncertain of the boys who will make the trip but practically all the members of the A squad will go.

A Union Pacific stage is going to take a number of the students down to see the La Grande game. These coaches will help the Bulldogs considerably in their playing.

New Plane Lands Itself; Will Not Stall or Spin

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—A fool-proof airplane which its inventor claims will neither stall, spin nor dive and will land itself is the latest contribution to safety in the air.

While more than a hundred aeronautical experts and financiers watched, the plane was successfully tested at Glenn H. Curtiss airport Wednesday. Piloted by Henry White, it made half a dozen short flights and came to a near-perfect landing each time with the pilot's hands high above his head.

The designer is A. A. Merrill, of White Plains, N. Y., formerly in charge of aeronautical research of the California Institute of Technology, and a contemporary of the Wright brothers, Octave Chanute, and Langley. He has been working on the plane since 1913 and at one time was forced to mortgage his life insurance to continue.

Movable wings which can be adjusted over an arc of 14 degrees are the secret of the plane's stability. In flight, these restricted flying surfaces prevent a pilot from unwittingly going into a stall or a dive. In landing, they mechanically level off at the proper distance from the ground and assume the proper gliding angle.

The pilot controls the wings from the cockpit by a crank and pulsed mechanism which is calibrated arbitrarily and rotates from zero, in respect to the fuselage, to an angle of incidence of 14 degrees. In taking off, he sets them at an angle that will preserve his trim. When landing, he cranks them to the maximum point, locks the crank and allows the plane to drift downward, and Langley. "It is not so much what it will do," Mr. Merrill said, "as what it will not do that is important. It is designed into a stall or a dive and not to stall because you cannot stunt it."

Of the 2594 shares outstanding, 1551 were represented by reports from stockholders at their annual meeting in the court house Monday afternoon, states the Record-Chief.

President C. A. Bingham made a financial statement and said there still was some hope that the bonds previously authorized could be sold, which would permit the company to pay off all present debts and also would leave working capital so that the plant could be put in operation.

Directors were elected as follows: J. A. Buehler, C. A. Bingham, S. D. Keltner, H. McGoldrick, E. D. Peal, William Roullet, J. W. Rodgers, George K. McDonald and H. S. Davidhizar. All these men have been associated with the management of the property in the past. They discussed affairs of the company at some length after the stockholders had adjourned but did not elect new officers.

L. A. Stringham and Fred M. Brace came from La Grande Monday to meet the new directors of the Black Marble and Lime company to whom they presented a plan for leasing and operating the plant. Their plan is approved in the main and there remains only the details to be worked out. Both men have been with the company for several years and are familiar with the plant and hope to return to Enterprise to start work before long.
