Date of Grain Rates Revision Set For June 1

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 6.—On the grounds the railroads could not prepare the revised schedules by April 1, the interstate commerce commission has postponed from that date to June 1 the effective date when revised freight rates on grain and grain products are to become effective.

The revised rates were ordered by the commission several months ago but a number of extensions have been granted the railroads.

The announcement to delay the effective date of the reduction follows an earlier one in which the interstate commerce commission declared it had refused the application of Western roads for a delay.

The new schedule of freight rates on grain and grain products applies to practically all points in the United States.

The first announcement that a delay would not be granted took no notice of the arguments but simply required that the carriers proceed with the rate revision ordered.

The second announcement explained the delay had been granted because the carriers would be unable to prepare the revised schedules in time to make the new rates operative by April 1.

Joe Savoldi Is Reinstated Today

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 6.—"Jumping" Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star was back in good standing in California wrestling circles today, but with a warning.

Savoldi promised he would be more gentle. He had been given a 30-day suspension following his bout with Harold Antonovitch, whom he put out of the ring and into a hospital at San Francisco. The former grid star probably will appear in a bout here.

Chats With Parents

THE CITY CHILDREN'S PETS BY ALICE JACKSON FRANK

Nothing can take the place of the friendly familiarity with animals that a child acquires in the country. It is possible for him to experience some of these pleasures through possession of such pets as can be kept even in an apartment.

The two-year-old is not too young to enjoy an aquarium with a few gold fish, a goldfish or two, and some snails.

Canary birds seem to have gone out of fashion for family living-rooms, but in the nursery they still repay the care they need by the delight they bring to the children.

Children of six or more will enjoy caring for such pets as rabbits, guinea pigs or mice, any of all of which can be kept in small pens from the kitchen.

When it is all possible, a child should have a cat or a dog for his pet.

At least once during his childhood, he should have the experience of watching star racing for a modest sum of 25c and the family, Puppies and kittens, can be born and reared in the first few weeks of their lives quite comfortably in a clean, dry collar.

Another cat is especially good about making his lap, and in the living room, he will be a constant source of pleasure to the children.

The care of a pet offers an excellent training in responsibility. The child, however, should be expected of the child in this direction until he is six or seven years old. Even then it will be necessary often to remind him of his duty.

DEMOCRATIC MEETS TALKS PROHIBITION

are dependent on each other. It was to the advantage of capital to pay as large wages as possible to labor in order to increase the consumption power.

Capital and labor had to work together to save the country from the industrial revolution.

The chairman declared unwarranted attacks on business which he said most injuriously led to a weakening of credit and the loss of jobs.

Turning to Mr. Rankin, the Arkansas senator, he said: "You cannot write on the banner of the Democratic party the words 'crossed and crossed' and expect the party to accept your recommendation without reservation."

"I have taken this platform either as a member of the committee or as a member of the party and suggested such a recommendation on the 18th amendment, that would have been taken by the chairman as needless interference."

"This is a subject on which both political parties are divided. The thing we hope for is a union as to the lack of wisdom of those who stand the Democratic party."

Rankin said that in all history the Democratic party had not had the confidence and respect of the people as when this committee assembled today.

"The convention is a national promise as an endorsement of prohibition and all other parts of the constitution—and that is the structure of the Democratic party and it is the only party that can be trusted to carry out its program."

Speaking to a simulation Democratic national committee today at a prohibitionist banquet here, Rankin said that he had no doubt that the party would be able to carry out its program.

"The 'higher water' took the floor after the speaker, Wm. Brown of Oklahoma, had announced he was supporting a resolution endorsing Rankin's resignation, and urged Moore Hedges of Texas had asked for a motion to amend the resolution.

Declaring he had neither sympathy nor respect for the speaker, Rankin said that he was the first time he had seen such a man since he had seen the speaker at the national convention a year ago.

"I have been brought up in the Democratic party and believe that the platform committee should be the people."
