Mining Board To Conclude Affairs

SALEM, Mar. 23 (AP)—As the result of the refusal of the governor to approve a further appropriation for the continuation of its work in making a mineral survey of the state in cooperation with the federal government the state mining board has been called to meet in Salem next Friday to wind up its affairs.

The board was created to conduct the survey by the 1929 legislature and given an appropriation of $30,000. A similar survey made this year was vetoed by Governor Meier.

OUR BOYS ARE CHEATED
By Alice Johnson Peale

There is at least one respect in which our boys suffer a great disadvantage. It is in their training, education and guidance of young children and the guidance of youth are in this country almost entirely in the hands of women. Boys spend their growing years, not under the influence of fine men whom they may take as examples, but at best under that of fine women whom they cannot possibly take as examples.

A woman may well serve as a working model after which the girl who comes under her care may happily and harmoniously pattern herself, but no woman, however wise and intelligent and understanding, can offer the growing boy a pattern for emulation. She cannot represent the fulfillment of his ambitions, nor the emotional attitudes of a well-integrated masculine personality.

Our boys, through the exclusive preoccupation of their fathers with the business of making money, and through the fact that a relatively few men engage in teaching, suffer a deprivation.

The benefit of contact with a fine, successful father may be almost completely lost to his son simply because the former spends so little time in his society. The boy's character is permitted to develop under exclusively feminine influence. His virtues tend to be feminine virtues.

To a great extent this situation may be irremediable, but when we consider how important are the first six years of a child's development, it would seem as if at least during this short period even the busiest father could make time for his son.

Saturday afternoons and Sundays spent working together in the garage, playing a game of catch or tramping over the countryside, are days well laid out for the most vital part of a boy's education.

Health Talks

MIGRAINE

There are headaches and headaches. Some are due merely to the dislocations of the night before, while others are warning signals of faults elsewhere in the body.

Such warnings may point to constipation, defective vision, a weak stomach, excessive fatigue and other causes, but the type called "split headache" is not of this kind. Technically it is known as migraine.

This type of headache begins at a small spot which may be on the temple, forehead or eyeball. It then spreads until it involves the entire side of the head or even the neck and arm. Occasionally both sides are affected and there may be numbness of the tongue and face.

The pain is usually of a penetrating character. In addition to the headache, there may also be in migraine remarkable nervous disturbance. Apparitions, visions of animals may appear. There may be a spasmodic and alternating contraction and expansion of the pupils.

Migraine is more often found in women than among men and in the members of so-called neurotic families than in the normal population. Heredity appears to play an important part in predisposing the individual to migraine. The nature and the cause of the disease, however, still remains unknown.

In a recent experiment 50 persons suffering from migraine were placed on a ketogenic diet—that is, one containing a high fat and low carbohydrate or starch content—over periods varying from seven to 36 months. Fourteen of the patients were able definitely to control their disease and 25 benefited by the treatment. Eleven of the 50 received no benefit whatever.

This reported study is very interesting, while as yet inconclusive. The ketogenic diet is very unbalanced hence can be employed only under careful medical supervision.

Farmers Saved Million a Day By Tax on Oleo

By Frank I. Weller
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Major farm and dairy organizations say agriculturalists will be saved $1,000,000 a day by the Brigham-Townsend bill, which places a tax of 10 cents a pound on all colored oleomargarine.

The bill was perhaps the biggest farm issue before the closing session of the seventy-first congress and was won with less than 24 hours to spare. It becomes effective in June.

Un-colored oleo will be taxable at one-fourth cent a pound, as heretofore. Demand for the legislation arose last November when David Burnett, commissioner of internal revenue, ruled that oleomargarine manufacturers could use yellow oleo to color yellow in the semblance of butter without paying the 10 cents tax required on "artificially" colored oleomargarine.

Burnett held that palm oil, sometimes comprising from 10 to 30 per cent of the ingredients in a pound of oleo, was a natural rather than an artificial coloring.

The ruling had the effect of erasing all the previous protection congress had given butter, and dairy specialists said the resulting drop in butter prices represented a loss of $1,000,000 a day.

Under the Brigham-Townsend bill oleomargarine which looks like butter will be taxed 10 cents a pound regardless of how or with what it is colored. Its purpose is to narrow the competitive advantage which the more cheaply manufactured product has over butter.

Except for federal appropriations for drought and unemployment relief, the bill was about the only important farm legislation of the session.

The president's veto of the Muscle Shoals bill which proposed private manufacture of electric power and government production of power—the latter of which might have set a precedent in low cost rural electrification—closed this measure to possible agricultural benefits.

And efforts to place embargoes or higher tariffs on numerous farm products likewise failed. Enemies of the proposed embargo on crude oil say its failure saved American farm users of motor vehicles and equipment from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually.

Heiress Divorced From Rodeo Rider

RENO, Nev., Mar. 23 (AP)—Wild west romance, which started in a harness shop in Colorado Springs, Colo., and ended in the divorce court in Reno for Barbara Monell Glaze, 26, New York heiress to millions, when she secured a divorce from Kenneth Wilson Glaze, Colorado cowboy and rodeo rider.

Mrs. Glaze, a daughter of the late Ambrose Monnell, former president of the International Nickel company and other a major corporation, charged in her divorce complaint that the jealousy of her cowboy husband was unreasonable.

She charged that he offered deadly battle with guns to a man who had danced with her during a party at their ranch at Guffey, Colo. He even objected to the visits of an elderly physician to their ranch home, she complained.

Gum Chewers Are Seeking Revenge

ZION, Ill., Mar. 23 (AP)—The gum chewers are trying to get even. It was learned today that three girls of Zion, where smoking is forbidden by law, were accused of smoking cigarettes by two other who had been reprimanded by their school principal for chewing gum.

The three alleged smokers are to be called before Grand Overseer Will Glenn Voliva, ruler of the Zion religious colony, who recently made a trip around the world, declaring on his arrival in New York that he could prove that the earth is flat.

Tunnels are called tubes, points out the office sage, possibly because of the squeeze you get in them.

The burning problem with most families just now is whether that coal pile is big enough to last out the winter.

Chapter 7
A TRAP FOR WAYE

"Bump nothing," interrupted Dr. Charters sharply. "Don't you suppose he thought of that before he butted in here and showed his hand? He's the wise guy, all right. Why, he's actually got a solicitor. Can you beat it? And he's coming to see him here tomorrow. And our mysterious Mr. Waye says he is going to have him here twice a week. Bump him off! And another thing, he has actually had the nerve to ask what he called 'your distinguished colleague, Sir Bernard Mat-

"Got him!" said James. "We'll get him certified mad."

MacAdoo, who is in charge of the case, said:

"Doctor, on what day did Mr. Waye come into the Nursing Home? and the Doctor said he'd been here since Tuesday week, and then I sent for the nurse in charge and the matron who got his room ready, wouldn't that dick apologize for all the trouble he'd given me?"

"Mightn't the dick ask for Waye's fingerprints?" asked Nurse Jones.

"No," replied the Doctor. "Even a dick wouldn't have the face to ask Dr. Charters of The Monastery, to let him take the fingerprints of a gentleman whom he guaranteed to have been here on the date when some murder was committed."

"Anyhow, we've got to take a chance," he added. "For this ugly devil's got us in a cleft stick. He's got us as tight as we've got him."

"And he's got a second string for a let-off. If he's pinched after he leaves here, he's going to act the fanatic if we refuse to give him an alibi. He'll try to get past, as not responsible for his actions, then recover his sanity gradually."

"He's certainly provided himself with plenty of witnesses that he's mad, all right," observed the Matron.

Suddenly Mr. James smote his thigh.

"Got him," he said. "He's mad, is he? Right! You and Doc MacAdoo have a talk to this Sir Bernard Mattheson when he comes, and call us and any number of other people, in evidence—and get him certified mad before he squeals on us. Put him away for keeps—and then, the more the poor lunatic tells the world—the more they'll put the handcuffs and strait-waistcoat on him and sling him in the padded cell."

Dr. Charters and his colleagues stared at the speaker.

"You've said something, Jimmy," ejaculated the Doctor. "Get him certified mad, and put him away for life; and the more he acts mad now, the tighter he'll tie himself up. The clever Mr. Waye! Out of his own mouth that really funny and the Doctor's laugh was unpleasant."

"MacAdoo's cards on the table in tomorrow's installment. Waye gives him a startling slant on Charters."
