Boys Navigate High Waters Of Marley Creek

By Verna Welmer (Observer Correspondent)

HILGARD, Ore. (Special)—Two boys looking for something to do one day recently, decided to take a boat ride on the river. They built a boat which weighed about 150 pounds. Monday morning about 9 a. m. they launched their craft on Marley Creek, a tributary of Meadow Creek, taking with them a lunch, two small bottles, one containing kerosene and the other matches for assurance against being left without something to start fires with should the craft capsize in the heavy current. About 2:30 they arrived at the Five Point service station. Although it took them 5 1/2 hours to cover the distance of about 22 miles, the boys claim that it was great sport and plan to make the trip again. They were Orville Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Myers, and T. B. Noland, son of Bernice Noland, both of the Mt. Emily logging camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Jones returned to their home at M. E. L. camp after spending the last two months in Elgin.

William Coleman, of M. E. L. camp, went to Portland on business Tuesday. He returned Thursday morning.

Joe Griffen, who recently returned from Baker, was called back there Thursday because of his father's illness.

Mrs. Emory Ferguson returned from Weston Monday where she has been visiting her father, Frank Sanford who has been seriously ill.

EARLINES' REPLACING PENDANT EAR-RINGS

PARIS 47—Earlines are taking the place of ear-rings in the jewel ensembles of many smart women. Earlines are a slender trickle of jewels which follows the lobe of the ear instead of hanging like a pendant, as does the ear-ring.

They are made of small stones, pearls, turquoises and garnets being a favorite.

The News Used To Be:

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

(From Observer, Fri., Mar. 30, 1906)
John Martin said 80 acres of land above Cove to a number of Mormon families, who will put the same into beans. The price was $100 per acre. R. Latham has disposed of his seven-acre tract of land above Cove to Thomas Ryan, consideration $1400. Chas. Hug, candidate for sheriff, came in last night from North Powder.

La Grande lodge No. 493, B. P. O. E. elected the following officers: W. Davis, exalted ruler; A. W. Lettel, loyal knight; A. B. Huclat, lecturing knight; G. E. McCulley, secretary; J. W. Scriber, treasurer. F. S. Ivanhoe was elected as delegate to the grand lodge with J. H. Peare as alternate.

TEN YEARS AGO

(From Observer, Tues., Mar. 29, 1921)
The Cove road is to be built this year. A garage for four cars is being erected in the rear of the Herman Selgrist residence.

ONE YEAR AGO

(From Observer, Sat., Mar. 29, 1930)
State Senator Fred E. Kiddle this morning announced that he was filling today with the secretary of state, announcing his candidacy for nomination and re-election to the legislature from Union, Umatilla and Morrow counties. Approximately $348,700 worth of road work between here and Kamiah is under contract by the state highway department. Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Gardner are the parents of a baby girl, born yesterday.

Chapter 14
A MEDICAL DIGEST
SIR BERNARD MATTHIESON, who had been at Guy's with Mark Studley, bustled into Dr. Studley's consulting-room at The Monastery, after his consultation with Doctors Charters and MacAdoo, and carried that old friend to lunch with him.
"Well, Mark, how do you like yourself at The Monastery?" inquired Sir Bernard, as they sat down to lunch in the ancient oak-paneled dining-room of the Red Lion at Herepath.
"Oh, well enough, Bernard. Very interesting work, and I get enough time for reading. I don't want to stagnate. I'm hoping to come to Harley Street myself, in two or three years."
"Good luck to you, my son. How do you get on with Charters? Don't like him much, eh?"
"Oh, I don't know. He's a very marvelous diagnostician, and a fine surgeon."
"And MacAdoo? What do you make of him?"
"He's a clever chap. Real authority on South American vegetable poisons. Did some good research work up the Amazon and in the Philippines generally. The Negrillos there have some wonderful drugs, and MacAdoo went after them. They have one poison for their hunting-arrows, and another for their war-arrows—the first causing painless, and almost instant death; the other causing terrible agony before certain death. No antidote for either of them."
"And MacAdoo got the secret of them, eh?" asked Sir Bernard.
"I believe so—as well as a stock of each. . . . He was telling me that the hunting-poison is humane to use, quite painless, and neither poison leaves any trace whatever in the body, he tells me, whether injected or swallowed. Yes, MacAdoo's very keen. His subject and doing some real pioneering work in vegetable poisons. . . ."
"An American?"
"I don't know. He's certainly not straight from the Highlands. I think he studied at Lisbon and Rio Janeiro. Possibly Scottish extraction, and naturalized in Portugal or South America. He knows Brazil pretty thoroughly."
"Do you like him?"
"Oh, I dunno. . . . He's a queer clever chap."
Sir Bernard Matthieson smiled. "I gather, my dear Mark, that you detest both him and Charters. . . . Had any personal contact with this man—Way—John Way?"
"No, I don't detest them, Charters is very decent to me, and I get on reactions. As I told Charters, I couldn't possibly certify a man on hearsay like that. I laughed at him when he came to me in Harley Street and asked me if he were going mad. I told him that any one who is going mad is the last person in the world to know it."

Dr. Matthieson took Dr. Studley to lunch.

"On what did he base his belief?"
"Oh, he said he was constantly finding that he had done violent things without knowing that he'd done them. Wanted to make out that he wasn't always responsible for his actions. . . . Common enough symptoms with any one who has badly run-down. I agreed with him that he couldn't do better than have an absolute rest in the depths of the country. The next thing I hear is that Charters wants me to come and certify him as a lunatic."
"And you refuse to do it?"
"Absolutely. I couldn't be a party to putting that man, as I find him, into the awful living death of imprisonment for life in a lunatic asylum. It's easier to get into one of those places than to get out again. I won't agree to it."
"No. You said Charters wants you to certify him. . . . Literally 'wants,' do you mean, Bernard?"
"Well, both Charters and MacAdoo were decidedly keen on it, and they produced a witness. The excellent Sister Weldon, the Matron, a nurse—Jones, I think, was the name—and your friend Mr. James. Each with a tale of astounding eccentricities. . . . Well, I'm coming down again later on, at Way's own request, and we will see how he behaves then. . . . And you might keep an eye on him yourself, Mark. I'd almost as soon sign an innocent man's death warrant as to make a mistake over certifying a sane man."
"There's one solution, of course," observed Mark Studley. "He might be shamming."
"Why should he do that?"
"I dunno. Form of 'hysteria,' perhaps."
"Well, if that were so, I should say it was the maddest thing he'd done yet," replied Sir Bernard.
