Grangers Make Plans To Build Annex To Hall

By Mrs. Charles Spencer (Observer Correspondent)

GRANGE HALL (Special)—At Wednesday's meeting of the Blue Mountain Grange Mrs. R. A. Masterton, Mrs. Bert Grout, Tom Bates and Charles Nizer were appointed as a committee to investigate ways and means of starting a new annex to the organization has been planning for some time to build to the hall. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Masterton were elected alternate delegates to the state grange convention to be held at Medford in June. Reports were made of the Pomona meeting held recently at Pleasant Grove. The following program was presented. Roll call, "My favorite Tree and Why"; reading, "What Do We Get When We Plant a Tree," Mrs. R. A. Masterton; song, "Too Much of a Mrs. W. F. Geikeler," discussion, "Vegetable You Have Not Thought of Planting," led by Roy Geikeler; reading, Mrs. J. B. Lindsay; reading, "When the Green Gets Back in the Trees," Clarence Carter; "Effect of Moon in Planting Seed," Charles Nizer. At the next meeting April 18th the lecturer will have charge of a plant and seed exchange. "Ponding" will be the subject for the program.

Many beautiful quilts were on display Friday afternoon at the exhibit and silver tea held by division 4 of the home economic committee of Blue Mountain grange at the hall. The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion. There was a large assortment of quilts to be admired by the women who came from La Grande, Ladd Canyon, May Park, Valeris and other parts of the valley besides many of this district to get new ideas to replenish their own collection of this valuable handwork. Besides the quilts there were a few rugs, both hooked and crocheted, dresses made over 20 years ago, cushions and many other homey work articles on display. A large floral wreath made of seeds and grains by Mrs. Charles Baxter's grandmother attracted a great deal of attention. Tea was served from 2:30 until 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Victor Ragan poured and Mrs. Clarence Carter assisted her. A bundle sale which was well patronized was held in connection with the quilt exhibit and tea. Mrs. Tom Bates was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair and those who assisted her were Mrs. Clarence Redhead, Mrs. Clair Scriber, Mrs. Victor Ragan, Mrs. Clarence Carter, Mrs. Alta Bleckford, Mrs. Roy Geikeler and Mrs. E. E. Hughes.

There will be no meeting of the Countrywoman's club April 10. The next meeting date has been set for April 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherwood have moved to Kamela where Mr. Sherwood is employed.

English Actor Dies Of Pneumonia at 61

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—Hubert Bruce, 61, English actor and play producer, died of pneumonia yesterday.

Mr. Bruce first appeared on the stage in London at the age of 17 in "The Blue Boys of Scotland." He made his New York debut two years later in "Richard III" in support of Richard Mansfield. One of his best known roles was that of Clabro in "The Sign of the Cross."

In 1913 he appeared with John Drew in "The Perplexed Husband."

He appeared with Frank Morgan in "Tepany" last season. One of his recent successes was "The Play's the Thing" in which he supported the late Holtbrook Blinn.

By Percival Christopher Wren Author of MYSTERIOUS WAYE BEAU GESTE BEAU IDEAL

"So?" mused Mr. James.

"Give any reason?" he inquired.

"He's rattled. This cursed Waye has..."

"Hell!" interrupted Mr. James suddenly. "Where does Waye connect up with Marjorie Landerdell?"

"Search me," sighed the Doctor. "But I guess you know now what I mean when I say the Boss is double-crossing and losing his nerve."

Dr. Charters, next morning, read on hand, with puffed lips and coldly speculative eye, sat and thoughtfully considered the face of Mr. James, who, having purged his bosom of complaint, also sat and stared at his partner and chief, with his usual expression of sour and resentful, contemptuous and menacing animosity.

"Now, look here, Jimmy," said the Doctor with the voice of sweet reasonableness. "Who's running this show, you or I? Whose are the brains of this little business? How have we made the real success that we have of this business—safe and paying, solid, and respectable? By brains and teamwork. I've found the brains and got the right team together—Manoel, Fanny, Louis and you. And Studley, Slater, Weldon, the nurses and the rest, all the genuine, skilled, hall-marked article..."

Chapter 20
A DIVIDED MONASTERY

THE cold, fish-like eyes of the Boss bared into the brown long-lashed orbs of Dr. MacAdoo.

"How come?" he growled.

"Well, it's clear enough to me, and I think it is to you—and to Fanny and Louis that this Waye guy has got the bulge on the Boss and that the Boss is—I won't say double-crossing us—not telling us everything. And he's weakening too. For he's said it himself in this Landerdell business."

"What's that?" asked Mr. James.

"You're being a snarling cur," Charters told James.

"You know, Marjorie Landerdell, the pretty girl in number 28..."

"Sure. I know the girl, all right, all right. What's her complaint?"

"A hundred thousand pounds."

Mr. James sat upright. His eyes did not brighten, they hardened a little, and opened toward Charters.

"Suffering from million-million bucks! What's the cure?"

Dr. MacAdoo laughed unpleasantly.

"I know there's arsenic in the prescription, he observed as he looked down and polished a toe nail.

"Think fee for complete cure?"

"Ten thousand pounds sterling."

"Who accepts?"

"The Boss."

"How come that you know this, and I don't?"

"Ah!" smiled Dr. MacAdoo involuntarily. "That's what I'm telling you. The Doctor. I don't say his double-crossing us, mind you, wasn't going to let us in on it at all. He was going."

"Who did tell you if the Boss didn't?" interrupted Mr. James.

"The stranger within our gates, my dear Jimmy," said Dr. MacAdoo with nervous faintness.

Mr. James sprang to his feet, and the Doctor flinched.

"What?" he shouted. "That eternal Waye guy? He told you?"

"He did. And I went straight to the Boss and talked him about it," continued Dr. MacAdoo with a ring of righteous indignation in his voice.

Mr. James engaged, still gasping from the depths of his mind amazement, bewilderment and thought.

"What did the old Man do when you showed your hand and called his bluff?"

"Promised to go fifty fifty with me," boasted Dr. MacAdoo proudly.

"Gee!" sneered Mr. James. "He's certainly weakening."

"Weakening? I'll tell the world. He's weakening so much that he's throwing up the sponge," boasted Dr. MacAdoo.

"He's said that he'll give up to tell me that he's weakening, giving away the lot of his money at my mine at that."

"Now, look here, Jimmy," replied the Doctor, still speaking patiently. "Do you know why all crook-syndicates, except our own croak-society or later? Because crooks don't trust each other. They quarrel sooner or later—and a house divided cannot stand. Not even Monastery House."

"Why do the police beat the crook gangs in the long run? Because they're united. Who is it puts crooks in jail? Their brother crooks. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred, where there's a croak gang there's a weakling, or a grumbler who knows better than the leader."

Dr. a dirty double-crosser," interrupted Mr. James, with an angry sneer.

"Quite so. Now unless we want to go the way of most such croak-syndicates, we must have faith, trust, unity and discipline."

"Quite so," mocked Mr. James. "And what's the bearing of all this on the Landerdell business? Split the story."

"I will—to show you you're being a snarling cur, and because we must ally to have these dangerous or suspicious, that may lead to quarrels and ruin."

A strange case, it told the story of the man who had been a croak-syndicate leader, why the human sacrifice was blessed.
