Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of articles depicting the human side of Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's great coach.

By Loren Dinsey (Associated Press Sports Writer) Soldier Field, Chicago, grew dark as night neared. It had been raining all afternoon, as a drizzly November rain fell.

On the field two teams had been battling doggedly, until, all of a sudden, the Purple of Notre Dame was the Purple of Notre Dame, on the other the gold of Army.

Neither team had been defeated. Victory for the Army meant a strong claim to the football championship of 1930. Victory for Notre Dame meant the next to the last successful step in a vicious "suicidal" schedule.

The teams were battling near mid-field as the fourth quarter arrived. Knute Rockne made a substitution for Notre. A lanky six-footer was sent in at left end. It was John O'Brien, famous pass receiver. The Army secondary defense edged over to keep his covered.

Another Success—Frank Cardillo, All-American quarterback, barked a signal. The backs swung right, leading Marclie Schwab swept through tackle, and this time there was no Army secondary to pull him down.

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's great coach, had fooled the boys again—pulled victory from a contest that appeared hopelessly tied, and given his boys a chance for a clean state in what was to be his last season.

In sending O'Brien in at that moment, Rockne, called the greatest football strategist and psychologist

Gleaner Girls And Men Dine Here

The second annual banquet of the Gleaner Girls and Men of the M. I. A. was held last night at the social hall of the Recreational hall in La Grande with about 90 per cent from Imbler, Union, Baker, Mt. Glen and La Grande. John Stoddard, of Baker, was toastmaster for the banquet, and Melvin Westerkow delivered the main toast of the evening. Other numbers on the program were: "Trees," a vocal duet, by Doris Kirk and Rita Baum, of Union; "Mother Maces" and "Hunters Moon is Calling" by Cecil Black, La Grande; "Santa Lucia," duet by Mel Andrews and Miss Bond, of Imbler. Miss Bond also presented a whistling solo.

The M. I. A. men's songs were presented by Tom Hunt, Jack Andrews, and John Stoddard of Baker; and Mildred Thompson and Leonard Strong, of La Grande Second Ward, sang "Love's Old Sweet Song."

Imbler Ward's orchestra furnished music for dancing after the banquet of which Miss Frankie Baum, of Union, was in charge.

PARIS, Apr. 10 (AP)—Gustave, king of Sweden, and Henri Cochet, king of the courts, paired today at tennis to play a draw match with Pierre Landry and Christian Bousquet, two of France's top ranking players.

With a big gallery at the Bois de Boulogne courts, the match was a nifty affair, holding up very capably his end of the match. The two players, Gustave Landry and Bousquet yesterday.

After today's match had gone two games each, King Gustave announced he had had enough tennis for the day and the issue would be decided tomorrow at the racing club.

Tennis Interest Is Reawakened; Plans Are Made

With the advent of golf, tennis has been rather neglected in La Grande, but with the promise of the city commission to turn the city courts over to the park board, and with the expected appointment of Harvey Carter as manager, a renewal of interest has been awakened among tennis enthusiasts.

The city tennis club will be formed in a few days after the next meeting of the park board, providing the board approves of the proposed program. Dues for grade school children would be one dollar and for high school students and adults, two dollars, according to Mr. Carter's plan.

Interest in tennis has flagged during the past few years, because the younger children monopolized the courts at all times during the day. Mr. Carter has, however, mapped out a schedule giving every one a convenient time to play, with Saturday afternoons and Sundays open to anyone but with a time restriction during the rush season.

Cards would be issued to those who have paid a membership, the proceeds to go to the upkeep of the court and for conducting tournaments. Only members would be allowed to play.

The first tournament set for about a month ago was a club tournament, with five events—men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles. Later in the season the National Wool Marketing corporation will sponsor an invitation county tournament, with the best players from the county participating.

In order to raise money to conduct the tournament a number of social events would be conducted, including a series of tennis club dances.

NEW PROBLEM LOOMING FOR FARM BOARD

(Continued from Page One) to authorize stabilization operations. It may, however, cause delay in plans for disposing of surplus stocks which have been placed at 200,000,000 bushels in actual wheat and futures.

WOOL PROGRAM OUTLINED—CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—C. B. Denman, representative of livestock and wool growers on the federal farm board, said today the National Wool Marketing corporation will probably handle a larger part of the 1931 crop than in 1930 and that the crop itself will be larger.

The growers are increasing the volume of the yield," he said during the annual meeting of stockholders and directors of the wool cooperative here. "That shows they are satisfied with the handling and financing of the 1930 crop. The farm board is pleased with the progress the corporation is making toward standing on its own feet. It financed 119,000,000 pounds of wool last year, or 84 per cent of the crop, at $38,000,000. The board supplies $11,000,000 of that sum. The corporation has established its credit and may not need so much money from us this year despite the larger job of financing. They will probably be able to get it from the banks."

"Wool was the most stable commodity on the market last year. It is a good security right now. The principle of selling wool on the market is working out well."

Officials said 75,000,000 pounds of the 1931 crop have been contracted for by the cooperative to date and that the amount is expected to exceed the 119,000,000 of last year.

Vice President A. Hooper of Salt Lake City presided.

If a shift was made to meet the off-tackle play, Notre Dame smashed at the weakened section of the line. If not, the tackle was smashed. A classic example was afforded in the 1927 Notre Dame-Army game, "Biff" Jones, Army coach, had his center move over to the right side of line to back up the tackle.

Chris Finazzo, Notre Dame half-back, made repeated gains through center by cutting back, after feinting toward right tackle. The result was a Notre Dame victory.

Rockne always felt that a team fought better in an under-dog role. This was one of the primary reasons for his frequent gloomy statements as to his team's prospects for the year.

Just a short time before his death Rockne said he believed his boys would be lucky if they were not killed three or four times this season. He made similar predictions regarding his great teams of 1929 and '30. He believed that an under-dog team fought better and that his opponents entered the game feeling uneasy they couldn't get going during the early stages.

K. P. MEMBERS WILL WELCOME L. L. CROUCH

Knights of Pythias will gather tonight at the ball room of the Sacajawea Inn, with lodges from many parts of Eastern Oregon coming as the guests of the La Grande Rod Cross lodge, No. 27. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock and will have as its guests of honor Leslie L. Crouch, of Portland, supreme chancellor of the Knights in the United States, H. B. Dixon, grand chancellor of the state of Oregon, and probably John Cushman, grand chancellor of Idaho.

Mr. Crouch will be the main speaker of the evening, being introduced by Mr. Dixon. An interesting program of music has been planned to accompany the speech with Claude Berry, Delila Green and Lawrence Graham in charge of arrangement.

Rev. R. C. Lee, of Union, will give the invocation, and music will be furnished by the Blue Mountain Wagoners and the Knights of Pythias quartet.

Turkey's Puzzled Over Prospect Of Young Parliament

By Priscilla Ring ANGORA (AP)—Turkey, with an announced fascistic program in the offing, is wondering just what Mustafa Kemal has up his sleeve for the new parliament to assemble late in April.

When the Gazet swept into his capital from a nation-wide tour and requested parliament to vote its own dissolution, the national legislature promptly acquiesced.

It was more or less stunned, but understood that the president had done this for his people's party had grown flabby during its seven years of unchallenged power, and needed rejuvenation.

The dominant note in all Kemal's recent speeches has been a fascistic-like call to Turkish youth to rally round that party. But before he divulges the new program which he cogitated on his tour, he wanted a new parliament.

So the beating of tom-toms and the voices of street-criers called good citizens of the one-man one-party republic to the polls.

They, they voted, for members of an electoral college who in turn had the duty of "electing" to parliament the deputies on Kemal's hand-picked list of candidates.

It is a thirty national election system. At least the government only $50,000 and the individual candidates nothing.

It was believed for a time that Kemal's sudden dissolution of parliament might be the precursor of abolition of the electoral college, and according to the man in the street of the right to vote directly for his parliamentary representatives.

This hope was not fulfilled, nor was the hope of women that they would be accorded full franchise. The majority of the new deputies are to be young men, and the Gazet himself has announced that the new body must distinguish itself by a spirit of self-sacrifice, and that its members will preferably abstain from private business.
