Instead of the triplets, the French mother of Lorry, one war orphan which he ordered. Three freshman boys have been picked for the parts of the triplets. Bobbie, one disturbing element, is played by Altha Damerell; Evelyn Piper plays the part of Madame LeVigne, the French mother of Lorry, and she is very fluent with her "ze" and "zat." "Mere talk, in and of itself alone, unattended with evil consequences that might reasonably be expected to flow therefrom, cannot be made by law a criminal offense," Chief Justice Judge Wamamaker said he learned from the bill of particulars in the Kasey case that the only charge against the defendant was "that he made certain statements of what he had done and what he intended to do."

"There is no charge contained either in the indictment or the bill of particulars that he had actually done any acts, but merely that he had said so in words," Judge Wamamaker said. MAGIC TAPE, BEAM OF LIGHT AND CABLES FLASH EXILED QUEEN'S PICTURE ACROSS SEA

This photograph of Queen Victoria of Spain, taken when she arrived in Paris in exile April 16, was reproduced in American newspapers. Sketch at upper left shows how this miracle of science is achieved. Below is a strip of the tape by which pictures are transmitted by cables, telegraph wires or radio.

By Howard W. Blakeslee (Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK—The lines which exile stamped on the face of Spain's banished Queen Victoria as she arrived in Paris April 16 were reproduced photographically in Chicago this night.

A cabled "close-up" of personal emotion, this picture brings a new human element into the business of news reporting. It is a realization of a 25-year-old scientific dream to get intimate personality into a cabled picture along with the first news.

Speed has been available for several years, but up to now quality has lagged.

The picture was flown by the Associated Press from Paris to London, then it was transmitted by the Bartlane process by cable to New York, and thence by A. T. & T. telephoto to Chicago.

Four times in this journey the picture was converted into a beam of light. Three other times it was turned into an electric current. Twice more it was merely a long piece of ticker tape, upon which the queen's likeness was a series of holes punched in vertical rows, not more than five holes to a row.

The fascinating part of this scientific sleight-of-hand is the fact that the holes in the tape are probably the most faithful of all the methods of "canning" the queen's features. Light may fluctuate or electrical current vary, but the holes are the same tomorrow and always.

The tape is part of the Bartlane process, invented by two Englishmen, H. B. Bartlanow and M. D. McFarlane. In their London office a pin-point beam of light scans the photo, converting its varying tones, with the aid of a photo-electric cell, into an electric current.

This operates a machine to punch the tape. The tape holes are sometimes bunched as numerous as raindrops, at others as scattered as stars. Their frequency corresponds with the tones of the photograph.

The tape is the familiar kind that

EDGERTON SPEAKS AT ROTARY MEET

President of Manufacturers Association Discusses Conditions.

PORTLAND, Ore., Apr. 28 (AP)—Morgan Eastman of Vancouver, B. C., was today elected governor of Rotarians of the district including British Columbia, Alaska, Washington, Idaho and Oregon. He succeeds Albert Reynolds of Portland.

Eastman will be presented to the 1500 delegates at a dinner in his honor tonight.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 28 (AP)—Discussing what he termed the "period of extended economic animation," John E. Edgerton of New York, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, today told the district Rotary conference in session here that there are two "chief stumbling blocks to the restoration of our normal economic life."

These, he declared, are wages and taxes. He added that "there can be no clearer or simpler fact than that production costs must be brought into proper relation with decline of commodity price levels."

More than 1500 Rotarians were here for the 18th annual convention of the district comprising Alaska, British Columbia, Washington, Oregon and Idaho. The conference will end tonight with the president's dinner at the auditorium and the governor's ball at the Shrine temple.

Today's program started with sectional breakfast in downtown hotels, preceding the general sessions. Reports of committees and nominations for district governor were to follow the main program.

"The Republicans call it by the soft name of 'depression,'" Edgerton said after remarking that "not since Armistice day on Nov. 11, 1918, have the thoughts and conversations of all civilized mankind been so nearly engaged with one subject as during the last 18 months."

"The Democrats," he continued, "hopefully lament it as a 'panic.' The Communists refer to it cynically as 'the collapse of the capitalistic system.'"

"If physicians were called upon to examine it, they would probably diagnose it as a case of arrested material development with a derangement of the circulatory system."

"The man in 'overlook,'" Edgerton said "that production and distribution are not the only things which are out of balance. Production costs are out of balance with commodity prices, and a common standard of living is out of balance with the average individual income. Wages in many places are out of balance with profits and with all other elements of economic return."

"Many other things are out of balance, including a great many people."

"Commodity prices," the speaker said, "have declined since October, 1929, approximately 20 per cent. Profits and dividends have either disappeared or have shrunk even more than commodity price levels. Interest rates have decreased; rents have diminished, and salaries have been reduced."

"All of this means the greatly increased purchasing power of the dollar."

"And this means," he continued, "that the man who is receiving today for his services of any kind, the same or less than he received in 1929, in fact, the beneficiary of a 20 per cent increase in real pay."

LESS WHEAT IN SEVENTH AREA, REPORT

DETROIT, Apr. 28 (AP)—Ray Long, magazine editor, last night warned delegates to the annual meeting of the Association of National Advertisers that serious consequences will follow American failure to learn how to solve the problem of meeting Russian competition.

"America's day as a wheat exporting nation is past," Mr. Long said. He added that the country can no longer compete in the world market with cheap Russian wheat. "We shall never see dollar wheat again in the United States," he declared.

Long said American prosperity depends on export trade and Russia is the greatest potential market in the world.

"Soviet trade competition is becoming so serious that American business men must realize it and prepare to meet it if they are not prepared to lose many world markets."

"We can hold our own with this tremendous producing and exporting process in the rapid making in Russia but we cannot do it by being frightened by such words as 'scylla' and 'charybdis' and by beating up a few long-haired and loud-mouthed orators in Union square."

TWO TO REPRESENT U. S.
WASHINGTON, Apr. 28 (AP)—N. A. Olsen, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, has been selected to represent the United States at the world grain conference in London May 18. Widows of Noted Men Hide Away, Are Unnoticed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Widows of famous men so successfully seclude themselves in Washington that few know their whereabouts.

The busy world rushes by them as they shut themselves away in their houses and it is only when one of them dies that they appear again for a brief moment in the public interest.

Admiral Dewey's widow, who died recently, once took a brilliant part in Washington society, but had in her later years, completely withdrawn from all social life. She spent hours, friends say, sitting at an upper window of the home which she had shared with the admiral, watching traffic. All about her were mementoes of the hero of Manila Bay. She kept his room just as it was when he occupied it.

The lives of most of these women reveal much romance. Their interest in life seems to end with the death of their husbands. They apparently prefer to dwell in their memories instead of seeking new interests.

William C. Gorgas, whose husband sought to conquer yellow fever, lived in Washington until her death a few years ago.

Theirs was a romance of hospital wards. Each nursed the other through a siege of the dread fever.

Pictures of her husband were in every room in her quiet Washington home. She liked to entertain persons who had known him and who could talk over old days in Panama when she aided her husband.

Mrs. Robert E. Peary, widow of the discoverer of the North Pole is another who finds much pride and solace in the souvenirs of her husband's daring. Though at present at her old home in Rumford, Maine, Mrs. Peary spends much of her time in Washington with her daughter, Mrs. Edward Stafford.

The widow of General Phil Sheridan has lived quietly in the capital since the death of her husband, upon the statue of her famous husband.

PRESIDENT HOOVER PLANTS A TREE

"Now, just a little more dirt on this side, Mr. President... there, thank you." It's in the role of a White House gardener that President Hoover is pictured here as he planted on the lawn of the executive mansion a tree which will be dedicated next year in commemoration of the 20th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The Chief Executive is a member of the American Tree Association.

of the motion picture theater in Burns, and spent two days visiting Mrs. Burns. Mrs. Phil Peland underwent a major operation at a Wallowa hospital Monday morning.

Mrs. O. F. Campbell was called to her home at Montpellier, Idaho, Thursday by the serious illness of her father, Dr. Beckstrom.

Mrs. F. H. Weinhard, of Lower Valley, received a wire Saturday that her sister, Mrs. Bert Massey, of Oklahama, had died suddenly and that the body was being sent to Enterprise for burial Thursday.

Mrs. James Cornelison, third grade teacher, went to La Grande Friday and met her husband, James Cornelison, of Pendleton, and together they went to Baker and Haines for a weekend visit with friends.

Mrs. L. P. Allen and son, Howard, and Mrs. George Dale motored to La Grande Sunday.

handed to Roosevelt.

The New York City executive defended his administration, lauding its accomplishments in the 1,600 word reply he had prepared. Dr. Holmes and Rabbi Wise sought an opportunity to file a rebuttal.

Regarding the charges, the governor said:

"I do not find sufficient justification in these documents as submitted to remove the mayor of the city of New York or to proceed further in the matter of these charges."

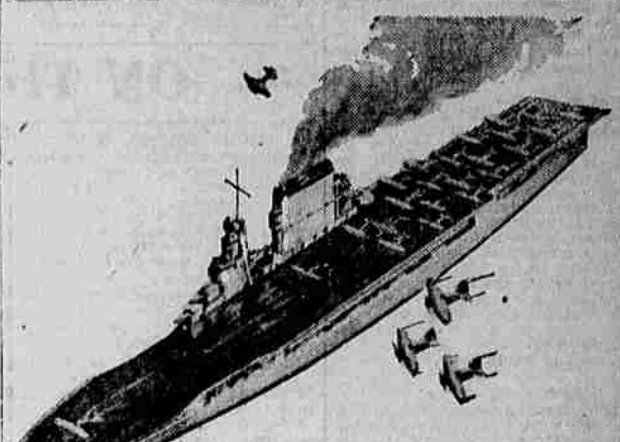

"CLEAN UP SANDINO" IS FISH'S URGE

"My idea is not only to send a regiment to the country in defense of our citizens, but to add a regiment of marines headed by General Butler with orders to clean up Sandino," Representative Fish said.

The congressman, who headed the inquiry into communistic activities in this country, urged deportation of communists in the United States. He denounced American business men who, he said, were furthering Russia's five year plan by the sale of machinery and the loan of American brains.

Wallowa School Board Selects 3 More Teachers

By Mrs. C. A. Hunter (Observer Correspondent)

WALLOWA, Ore., (Special)—At a meeting of the Wallowa school board recently, three more teachers were arranged for. C. A. Thompson was re-elected to the Smith-Hughes position in the high school and Orin Morgan was re-elected principal of the grade school. Miss Edna Johnson, of Wallowa, a student at the Eastern Oregon Normal, was elected as second grade teacher. Miss Grace Potter, of Eugene, who was elected at a previous meeting to a position in the high school, declined her contract, having previously accepted another position. This leaves two high school teachers yet to be selected.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Crisman, of Portland, have purchased the property known as the Cameron hotel and are having the place renovated and expect to open it to the traveling public and local boarders within a month.

Mrs. Wort McGinnis, of Powwaka, met with an unusual accident at her home Wednesday evening. She was sitting on a banister of the porch and fell backward and broke her arm and three ribs and badly sprained her ankle. She was brought to the Wallowa hospital Thursday morning where she is reported to be doing nicely.

Mrs. Pat Ballard, of La Grande, daughter of Mrs. McGinnis, came to Wallowa Saturday and stayed until Sunday evening with her mother.

COOKED 36-CENT DINNER FOR HOOVERS

It probably was one of the cheapest White House dinners in history. For 36 cents was the total cost of a tasty meal which these Washington Girl Scouts cooked and served for the President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House the other day.
