the board of control table in Governor Julius L. Meler's offices yesterday. His presence was not felt until toward the conclusion of the long session, when his heavy hand was piaced upon the broad shoulders of Thomas B. Kay, state treasurer and active member of the board.

Little did those present realize that the hand of tragedy would weigh so heavily upon a member who was perhaps the most familiar figure in the Organ state house. Business of state was being transacted, and as always where there is room for opinions, there were differences.

As the meeting, called at 2 p. m., progressed, there were times when different phases of discussion provoked humor and facetious remarks, all three members of the board, the governor, Kay and Hal E. Hoss, state secretary, participated and enjoyed the repartee. There was no indication early in the session that by the morrow one member of that group would be missing.

He fell slowly, partly catching himself on the desk and was caught by the governor before his head reached the floor. Those present were stunned, and at first it appeared as though Kay had but fainted. Hoss assisted the governor, and with the aid of press members. Kay was seated an given a drink of water. The concert will be free to the public and is being played at the request of the Neighborhood club music week chairman. Mrs. Gralapp.

Other evento scheduled for Music week which is sponsored by the Neighborhood club in La Grande, include: Sunday, May 3—observance of Music week in churches; Monday, May 4—American Indian music; Wednesday, May 5—excerpt from operas by Baker musicians; Thursday, May 7—Music of many nations; Priday, May 8—musical symposium: "Importance of Music in the Community," and Saturday, May 9—Program of organ music. to his home.

Kay was stricken while at work, he did not quit. Even after the stroke, he railied for a few moments and his first question was, "what did you decide," referring to the decision on Meyers resignation. This was his last coherent statement. The tragedy stunned those in the governor's office, the executive himself was deeply affected by the audden illness of the tresaurer. There was no more business transacted.

Almost all members of the staff, with their wives, and invited guests from La Grande and Baker, gathered at the Baker hotel in Baker at 7 o'clock last night for a get-together banquet, one, of a serios held regularly by the Eastern Oregon Light and Power company, J. P. Lottridge, general manager and vice president, presided at the dinner which was attended by 116.

Following the banquet Mr. Lottridge introduced each member of the light and power company family and also the guests. Sheriff Henry McKinney, of Baker county, was the speaker of the evening. In his talk he called attention to the necessity of training young men for the duties now performed by the legislators. He emphasized the fact that while a business man may be successful in his own line of work, he may not have had training that would fit him for the broader field of state and national government.

At the close of Mr. McKinney's address, sales premotion plans and inspirational talks were given by members of the General Electric Co., the Graybar Electric Co., and the E. O. L. & P. Co. L. F. Although white bridal gowns still are much worn, many of the prettiest and amartest brides are preparing to march to flower banked altars in gowns of pale floral tints.

Pale pink, ice blue and rose beige are among the favorite shades.

One bridal gown is designed of shell pink tulle embroidered in seed pearls. Another of pale blue satin has a cloudy veil of ice blue tulle caught at the side with orange blossoms, while a third of palest orchid satin has a filmy orchid veil banded with lavender gardenias.

For the bride who wishes to cling to the white tradition there are white and ivory laces and satins, or white organdles made over satin foundations.

Most of the wedding gowns are simple in design, with long tight sleeves, circular skirts and only medium-long trains. The tulle veil, caught closely about the coffure, falls into a voluminous train which gives the length to many spring bridal gowns.

Biographical Sketch
Thomas B. Kay had a long and distinguished record of public service. His political career began back in the '90s as a member of the lower house of the state legislature from Marion county.

At that time, as political observers recount, the state legislature was "machine controlled," and the backbone of the machine was the so-called "whisky and gambling ring."

At the 1908 session Kay became a candidate for the speakership but was defeated by a few votes. He biamed the "machine" for his defeat and then led the opposition to its program during the session.
