Death” from “Peer Gynt” suite, by Grieg; characteristic piece, “Pep,” by Amadeus. Widely different from the first two exercises was the Chilean dance “Maniana,” by Misasid; while the march “Semper Fidelis,” by Sousa introduced an other altogether different type of band composition.

An outstanding performance which has corresponded to the standard which has been met with in all the programs is the “Spring Song of the Robin Woman from the opera “Shanewis,” by Charles Wakefield Cadman, the only grand opera selection presented on Monday’s program of American Indian music.

EMPLOYMENT PROBLEM UP TO INDUSTRY

planning steady employment where these measures are seemingly impossible, to “ameliorate the hardships of unemployment when they arise.”

“If industry is to assume this as its responsibility,” he added, “since the employees are human and they are directly involved, they, as a part of the industry—and as a matter of fact to get the best results—should share this burden.”

The speaker said the problem of regularizing employment “must be studied for each trade or industry, and in fact, in every company with its different methods of management and operation.”

The recognition that the problem exists and that it must be solved, either in part or in whole, is the beginning of the solution of the problem,” he continued. “The insistence on a solution must be continued by an aroused public opinion, letting the responsibility for the character and scope of the plans rest on industry.”

The tariff question was thrust before the chamber again in a statement from Sir Arthur Salter, former director of the economic and financial section of the League of Nations.

Salter warned that if nations are not willing to receive imports in payment for their exports and past loans, a “chronic disease in the world monetary system” will develop which will “both prolong the existing depression and cause and aggravate depression in the future.”

He said the League of Nations had been devoting itself to this situation, but its success has been limited because its main influence was in Europe while “it is in the other continent, and not in Europe, that the great new increases of tariff have been witnessed.”

Tariff barriers in Europe, he said, are no higher than in 1927, but the status quo may give way before “a new era of competitive tariffs which only a new effort of concerted action, not confined to one continent, can avert.”

The effectiveness of the league depends upon the extent to which it is utilized, he added.

Defending the free trade system, Salter said the main foundation of the normal prosperity of the United States is its constitutional injunction against tariff barriers between the states.

Miss Peterson Presents Piano Lecture Recital

Miss Peterson characterized the classical period as excelling in beauty of form and simplicity. While the classicists were concerned with formal matters, good workmanship, technique, etc., the romanticists were more natural and imaginative. “Chopin,” she said, “had all the elements of romanticism. His small pieces are like polished gems.” The impressionists express their love of color, and appeal to the emotions, she states, and their music, as in the “Little White Donkey” is invested with cleverness and wit.

Summing up, Miss Peterson said that as sound is the material from which music is made, classical music is the weaving, romantic the building, dramatic the feeling, and impressionistic, the sensing.

Sheriff Combs denied that national guardsmen had been called out to guard the jail or prevent trouble. “My deputies have everything under control,” he said. The jail was being guarded by a special detail of deputies. Last feeling became aroused against Burcham, he said.

The sheriff said he believed Burcham knew who fired the shots, but inspection of his pistol revealed it had not been fired recently. No charge was placed against him.

Only Schilling specializes in fine coffee.

It would be such a simple matter for Schilling to produce both good coffee and cheap coffee. Everyone else does it. So did Schilling at one time. But Schilling learned that cheapness is contagious. There are many good coffees—all made in company with bad coffees. But Schilling good coffee has no companions. The finest things usually come from those who make good things only. Sometimes the difference is not great—but it’s there just the same.
