CARDINALS TAKE 13-INNING GAME

Pirates Lose to Champions 6 to 5 — Yankees Win Series From Senators.

By Gayle Talbot Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If the St. Louis Cardinals could arrange to play nothing but extra inning games the remainder of the season, they likely would romp home in front of the National league field by a longer margin than they did in 1930.

Thus far Gabby Street's Red Birds have engaged in three extended sessions, and they have yet to lose a decision. Twice they beat out the Chicago Cubs in overtime duels, and yesterday they victimized the Pirates in 13 innings, 6 to 5. In seven rounds of overtime their opponents have been able to score but once.

In contrast, the New York Yankees have indulged in four extra period affairs and have yet to win one of them. Had they done as well as the Cards, they would be leading the American league chase.

Gelbert The Hero.

Charley Gelbert, shining light of the last world series, was the hero of yesterday's victory over Pittsburgh. The Card shortstop tripled in the thirteenth and scored on Martin's single. He then came through with a brilliant assist to retire the Pirates in their half after they had filled the bases on Relief Pitcher Jim Lindsey.

Two National league hurlers had the unhappy experience of pitching four-hit games, yet being charged with defeats. Bill Walker, Giant southpaw, held the Brooklyn Robins to a quartet of blows, only to come up on the losing end, 1 to 0, when the Dodgers grouped one of them with a walk and an outfield fly in the seventh inning. The Giants nicked Phelps and Quinn for five hits, but couldn't score.

Willie Sherdel of the Boston Braves was the other unfortunate flinger. The Phillies got to him for only four hits, but one of them was Buzz Arlett's fifth homer of the season. It came in the seventh with one on, so the Phils won, 3 to 1.

Yanks Win Series.

The Yankees finally won a series from Washington by taking their final, 10 to 7, in a three-hour slugfest. Babe Ruth and Lyn Lary each contributed a home to the Yanks' 14-hit assault on three pitchers, and Cronin and Bluege did likewise for the losers.

Led by Al Simmons, who cracked two doubles and three singles in five trips, the Athletics enjoyed a field day at the expense of the Boston Red Sox. Homers by Foxx and Cochrane helped make the score 10 to 3. Earl Webb hit one off Rommell, who went the route for the Mackmen.

Roy Johnson, Detroit rightfielder, hit two doubles and a single, drove in four runs and scored one himself as the Tigers made it two out of three from Chicago, 9 to 4. Two White Sox errors contributed to the Tigers scoring.

Rain caused postponement of the Chicago-Cincinnati engagement at Chicago and cold weather spiked the Indians and Browns at St. Louis.

O. S. C. BLANKED

CORVALLIS, Ore., May 7 (AP)—Oregon State's six errors were a big help to Washington State in their shutout of the Orange yesterday. While Brown held the visitors to nine hits and got three hits himself, one a three-bagger, his team mates' ragged play was too much of a handicap. The score:

"19TH" HOLE FATAL

LOS ANGELES, May 7 (AP)—A "nineteenth hole" of golf proved fatal to John G. Wright when he drank a gin rickey prepared by H. M. Carr with whom he had played the preceding 18 holes, it is charged in a $50,000 damage suit on file here today.

Mrs. Wright and her two daughters, Florence, 8, and Janette an infant, the plaintiffs, allege that Mrs. Carr kept cleaning fluid in a gin bottle and that Carr prepared the drink from it.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to the Red Cross Drug Store or your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Adv.

Painful Piles

Go Quick — No Cutting — No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription — HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel — the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Red Cross Drug Store says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.—Adv.

JOHNNY FARRELL ON GOLF

No matter how many wood clubs the bag contains, there is one essential in the play of each, Johnny Farrell says. That is the follow through, and he here shows why so many golfers fail to get the distance obtainable when the swing is completed properly, shown right.

(Former American Open Champion)
As told to Alan Gould

NO. 8—THE RIGHT CLUB

It is important to have the right club for the right shot.

I am frequently asked by beginners, as well as players who have been at the game for some time:

"Is a full set of clubs essential to good golf or can I get along better with just a few selected clubs?"

My answer is that a full set is absolutely desirable, for the sufficient reason that it means better golf in the long run.

Notice how many clubs the professional star carries. It is not uncommon for him to have 18 or 20 clubs in his bag; not for effect, but because he has distinct uses for them.

Therefore, it should not be too much of a burden for the ordinary player to figure on using a set of 13 —10 irons and three woods.

It is no more difficult to learn how properly to use a dozen clubs than it is to use only six.

The essential swings are the same for the main types of shots — the short iron, the long iron and the wood.

Of course it takes judgment to select the right club after sizing up the distance, the layout and the lie. This is where so many golfers go wrong.

They may try the brassie for possible added distance when they should use the spoon because of the lie. They may try to get home with a No. 5 iron when they should use a No. 3. Practice and experience should help to straighten this out.

As a general rule for the average golfer it is better to "over-club," using a smooth swing, than it is to "under-club" and perhaps spoil the shot by the effects of pressure.

WOODCOCK COMING TO OREGON

PORTLAND, May 7 (AP) — On his first inspection tour since his appointment, Amos W. Woodcock, national director of prohibition enforcement, is expected here Friday.

W. K. Newell, deputy administrator for the district, said he has had no definite word as to the hour of Woodcock's arrival, although the dry chief was scheduled for an address at noon here Friday.

Horse Is Coming Back, Lytle Says

SALEM, May 7 (AP) — Horses are coming back. There is a pronounced shift back this year to the four-footed workers on farms. This was the statement of W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian.

Cheap farm products will not support tractor farming and a better distribution of farm animals may be looked for in the future.

Meat food animals will therefore demand a better price, Lytle says, as the horse will replace sheep and cattle on many of the pastures of the Middle West.

Mount Angel Bank Buys First National

SALEM, May 7 (AP)—The deposits of the First National bank at Mount Angel have been sold to the Bank of Mount Angel, it was announced by A. A. Schramm, state banking superintendent. The amount of deposits aggregated $120,000.

The deal was consumated last night, and the First National bank was closed today. The move was declared an economic one. Joseph J. Keber is president of the Bank of Mount Angel which is owned by the United States National corporation, Portland.

Portland, Idle Due to Rain, Up To First Place

By the Associated Press

A two run lead which the Seals annexed in the eighth when Jerry Donovan smacked a homer with one on, fell before a last minute Hollywood batting rally yesterday and the Stars won the game 5 to 4.

With the score 4 to 2 against them, the Stars found the range of Seal offerings and gathered three runs to win the game, played at Los Angeles.

Oakland broke a 2 to 2 tie in the eighth inning to defeat Sacramento 4 to 2 at Emeryville last night. The way to an Acorn victory was paved on a Sacramento error which put Anton on third. The tie was broken when Ostenberg singled. The win moved Oakland into third place in the league standings.

Portland Leading League

The Mission Reds pushed over two runs in the seventh to break a 1 to 1 tie and beat Los Angeles 3 to 1 at San Francisco last night. The bases were full when Eckhardt singled, scoring one. Then Nelson, Angel hurler, threw a wild one and let in another Mission runner.

Rain in Portland postponed the Portland-Seattle game, but nevertheless, it worked out well for the Beavers, who are now in first place due to Los Angeles' defeat.

LA GRANDE TIGERS MAY PLACE FIRST

Washington high schools of Portland are expected to furnish La Grande the keenest competition with Pendleton, Mac-Hi and Ontario due to make a strong showing for Eastern Oregon.

Of the three last named teams, Ontario has the best chances for first places, due to the ability of Baker to hurl the discus close to 119 feet and Prahl's pole vaulting, which set a new Eastern Oregon record of 11 feet, 8 inches, which happens to tie the state meet record. If these two boys perform at Corvallis as they did in La Grande, Ontario may take home about 10 points.

Bucks Not So Strong

Pendleton's chances for a first place are slim, unless it comes from the prowess of Wilbur Kidder, hurdler, high jumper and weight man. He enters four events and is strong in all and it is not unlikely that he emerge victor in one at least. He was the only Buckaroo who could win a first place in the Eastern Oregon meet.

McLoughlin's best bet is Miller, who was barely nosed out by Beery last Saturday in the 100-yard dash, and who finished a few yards behind Beery in the 220. Miller also broad jumps over 21 feet, and that may brings points. Hufford, quarter miler, will face three or four men who are running the 440 in close to record time, and will be fortunate if he places. The Mac-Hi relay team is also strong enough to bear watching, with such sprinters as Miller and Markham running.

Mr. Peare to Time

J. H. Peare, of La Grande, will be one of the official timers at the meet at Corvallis, which will be broadcast over the college radio station KOAC.

The Observer has made arrangements to secure the final score and places made by the La Grande team, this information to arrive in La Grande about 5 o'clock. Telephone calls will be answered until 6 o'clock and the results also will be posted on the Observer bulletin board to the right of the front door as one enters.

Radio Commission Asked to Say "No"

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — The radio commission was called upon yesterday by Senator Dill to refuse a license to the Radio Corporation of America as a result of the supreme court's refusal to review a decision holding the corporation had violated the anti-monopoly law by its tube clause contract.

The Washington Democrat, who was co-author of the radio law, said it "directs" the radio commission to refuse to grant a license "to an applicant who is guilty of establishing a monopoly or attempting a monopoly."

"If there be doubt as to the power of congress to make such a law," the senator said, "let the commission refuse to grant one license for the purpose of making it a test case in the courts.

"The commission can extend other licenses while that case is being tried. By such a plan the commission will be obeying the law and the communication service established by the Radio corporation will not be disturbed."

Authority of Peace Officer Is Defined

SALEM, May 7 (AP)—A peace officer cannot, without a warrant, lawfully make an arrest for a misdemeanor not committed in his presence, unless the party arrested consents thereto, I. H. Van Winkle, attorney-general, held in an opinion rendered yesterday.

The inquiry was made by Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state, who asked if a peace officer could arrest at the scene of an automobile accident if he did not witness the act. Van Winkle stated further that an officer can only arrest without a warrant when he is a witness to the crime or attempted crime; when a person has committed a felony, or when he is reasonably sure the person arrested had committed a felony, though not in his presence.

SCULPTURES 4000 YEARS OLD

LONDON, May 7 (AP) — Religious sculptures nearly 4,000 years old have been brought to London by C. Leonard Woolley from Ur of the Chaldes. They include inscriptions and tablets which throw new light on the history and religion of people who lived about 2,000 B. C.

Sculptures of the time of Abraham, about 2,000 to 1,800 B. C. represent the worship of God by the common people. They were found in little chapels built along the public streets of Ur.

Chinese Planning Industrial Program

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Commercial Attache Julian Arnold at Peiping notified the commerce department that China is planning an industrialization program similar in some respects to the Russian five-year plan.

Chinese government plans factories to be financed by a $15,000,000 industrial loan including a textile mill, a woolen mill, salt and sugar refinery and a chemical works, Arnold reported.

Woolen mills also are to be established in the Northwest and East by the government, he said, with other factories at Canton, Shanghai and Tientsin financed by private interests. Arnold said the loan was to be issued soon.

STRETCH OF HEATED METALS MEASURED BY SCIENTISTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — How much metals stretch when heated to high temperatures is being tested by a specially-devised apparatus at the bureau of standards.

The piece of metal to be tested is fastened so that levers exert a strong pull upon it. Then a small electric furnace heats the metal to the desired temperature.

Experimenters can determine just how much the metal has stretched by sighting through a small door in the side of the furnace. They use an optical measuring telescope which measures a stretch as small as two ten-thousandaths of an inch. Metals are tested at temperatures ranging up to 1600 degrees Fahrenheit.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Nothing being more welcome these spring days than an argument, the following letter from Ira Minnihin of Hadlock, Wash., comes at an opportune time:

"We had an argument at school concerning well known athletes. Two of my teachers, being University of Illinois graduates, contended Red Grange along with Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth were the best known. I agreed with them on the latter two, but said that Red Grange was virtually unheard of today. I would like to know which three athletes have received the most newspaper space in the last seven years."

RUTH, JONES, DEMPSEY

The answer is a lot easier than it may seem, there being no question in this observer's mind that the three most publicized figures of sport for the boom period of 1923-30 are Babe Ruth, Bobby Jones and Jack Dempsey.

Nationally, I do not think there is any question of Ruth's leadership, whether it is figured in agate lines, mileage or bushel baskets. The greater international fame of Jones and Dempsey, in sports which carry a much more universal appeal than baseball, puts these two performers well up to the Babe's level.

To confirm our views on this matter we polled a group who make it their business to scan, prepare and direct the flow of The Associated Press news report. Their opinions put Ruth and Jones in a tie, closely followed by Dempsey, with Helen Wills Moody and Knute Rockne next.

Ruth has an edge over most of his rivals by reason of being in action daily for better than half the year. He can play up to 154 games a season. His showmanship at all times begets an amazing amount of newspaper space. No other ball player ranks even close to the Babe in this respect, and the list includes Cobb, Mack, Hornsby and McGraw.

Jones and Dempsey have much fewer opportunities to crash the public prints. Nevertheless they have caught and held the public interest over a long stretch of time. Dempsey, although he lost the world's championship in 1926, outdistanced his rival, Gene Tunney, when it came to public attention.

HARDLY SIXTH

Red Grange, sensational as were his exploits for three college years of football, hardly would rank in the first six when it comes to aggregate mention in the public prints over the seven year period under consideration here. Moreover, Grange's activities were restricted to a few weeks each fall.

Helen Wills, Knute Rockne, Big Bill Tilden and Gene Tunney possibly all would rank above Grange in total wordage over the span of 1923 to 1930. Rockne, in his meteoric lifetime, furnished the most magnetic personality in football history by a wide margin.

Tilden, roaming all over the world in pursuit of tennis honors, gained more publicity than any other figure in his specialty, including Queen Helen.

Grange, in his sophomore year at Illinois in 1923, received hardly any more publicity than did Yale's Albie Booth in the 1929 football campaign. Army's Red Cagle was very much in the gridiron spotlight for four years. These football figures, however, pass swiftly from the scene when their college days are over so far as the real headlines are concerned.

The question of supremacy among the all around athletes won't be settled this year until they have it out in the decathlon championship at the National A. A. U. meet in Lincoln, July 4, but the Olympic prospects are bright enough with performers such as Jim Bausch of Kansas, Buster Charles of Haskell, Barney Berlinger of Pennsylvania and Jim Stewart of Southern California available for 1932.

Bausch, whose exploits have been more conspicuous heretofore on the gridiron, sprang a sensation by beating Charles, the Indian, as well as the American decathlon record, at the Kansas relays. It required a recount among the timers for the final event, the 1500-meter run, to give Bausch the verdict and relegate Lo, the poor Indian, to second place.

The ideal decathlon performance would be a combination of the best features of Bausch and Charles. The Jayhawker excels in the field events, whereas the Indian specializes in the runs and jumps.

Berlinger has the ability to break the world's record of something over 8600 points if he can strike a day when he isn't slumping in one or two features of the ten-event grind. Big Barney fell off in the pole vault and 1500-meter run at the Penn relays, in addition to which the timers forgot to clock him in the 100 meters and made a conservative guess at his performance.

JINX?

Joe McCarthy may be pardoned for the suspicion that his baseball fortunes are being followed by a first-class jinx.

Marse Joe felt it was perhaps all for the best when he left Chicago for New York after a seasin in which his Cubs were riddled by injuries and even death, the team beaten out for the pennant and his job finally taken away from him.

"Things could hardly have been worse," mused Joe, who thereupon took hold of the Yankees with undisguised relief and proceeded to send them off in the American league derby at a rapid pace.

Maybe it was all a dream or a decoy, but Marse Joe suddenly discovered his outfielders collapsing in platoon formation. Injuries to Babe Ruth, Dusty Cooke, Myril Hoag and Sam Byrd came along so fast that on one afternoon McCarthy was obliged to put a second baseman in right field and a pitcher in left field.

As if that wasn't enough to make him gray-headed, McCarthy was on the third base coaching lines when Lou Gehrig hit a home run against Washington that went to waste because Lyn Larry thought it was just another fly ball and galloped for the bench instead of the plate.

LOOK OUT HARVARD

Harvard, if so inclined, might have found a warning tucked away in the summaries of the Drake relay carnival.

Three of the four sprinters who won the 440-yard "football relay" at Des Moines for the University of Texas will play against Harvard at Cambridge in October. They are Elkins, regular quarterback; Stafford, an all-Southwest conference halfback; and Craig, second-string halfback. In addition, my Texas scout advises, the Longhorns have an all-conference fullback, Ernie Koy, and a sensational sophomore quarterback, Bohne Hilliard, who ran the varsity ragged in scrimmage last year.
