INDUSTRY AND GOVERNMENT

That government is dependent upon industry is shown in a forceful manner by the tremendous deficit that now faces the Federal Treasury as a result of the falling off in income taxes. This tax loss is due to the slowing up of industrial activity with reduced output from factories, smaller incomes for the wage earners, executives and investors.

It is obvious to all that industrial prosperity and government stability go hand in hand. Any measures which discourage or destroy industry immediately react on all the people by heaping additional burdens on the taxpayer at a time when he is least able to pay.

Up to the present time, instead of retrenching on governmental expenditures to correspond to the ability of the people to pay taxes without real hardship, we have gone merrily on increasing public burdens.

Just suppose our public utilities and railroads, which pay upwards of a billion dollars a year in taxes, were tax-exempt, publicly-owned properties, as many of our socialistic friends would have them, what would happen to the tax-payer?

Pressure is being brought to bear from various sources to inject the government more and more into business in competition with private citizens and taxpayers. Carried to its ultimate conclusion — the elimination of private enterprise — who would finally pay the taxes under such a policy?

One of our best ideas, at this time, for eliminating all war is to have the advancing line of skirmishers crawl slowly across a strawberry patch.

He said, would contain nothing but capital outlay. The improvement fund would be reduced more than one-third and allowance for equipment would be reduced more than two-thirds.

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of University of Oregon, urged general reallocation of functions and funds of the state schools of higher education, but argued against removal from the university of courses of study which the federal survey had proposed to concentrate in the college.

Business administration, pure science, architecture and the school of journalism, he said, were proper subjects for the university. He stressed the need for continuing and enlarging research activities of the type to which the university had been devoting itself.

Inflow Presents Brief.
President H. E. Inflow, of the Eastern Oregon Normal school at La Grande, presented the board with a brief of the three Normal schools of the state, in which he took exception to the methods suggested by President Hall for scaling down costs.

Delegations Attend
Delegations from The Dalles and Hood River presented the need of widening and straightening the Columbia River highway through Columbia gorge. Chairman H. B. Van Duser said the problem would have to be met soon.

Oiling of the Bend-Horse Ridge section of the Burns-Bend highway was asked by County Judge De Armond, Deschutes county. Judge Williams, Harney county, wanted the commission to oil the road still farther toward Burns.

Agreement was reached with the Lake county court whereby the state would guarantee cost of constructing the Lakeview-Burns road through four miles of private land and assume cost of construction through three miles of state school land.

WALZ RETURNS FROM SERVICES AT BURNS, ORE.

Rev. J. George Walz, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, returned Wednesday evening from a trip to Burns, where he delivered the sermon at the installation service placing Rev. Samuel Harris as the pastor-elect of the First Presbyterian church there. The service was held in the church at Burns, Tuesday evening.

A hopeful outlook for the future development and growth of the church is taken by the congregation because of its proximity of the new town of Burns within the past few months one of the most modernly equipped lumber mills has been opened. Mr. Walz states. Already organized department heads of the company are uniting their services with the congregation there.

Rev. A. D. Swigger presided at the meeting and propounded the constitutional questions to pastor and people, and Rev. Frank B. Gigliotti, of Baker, gave the charge to pastor and congregation, he says. This church is taking up a number of out-stations to be carried on by the mother church, and is also taking an interest in the group of Indians who have lived near for many years.

At the close of the service hour, the congregation held a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Harris, presenting them with many flowers and gifts.

Green, who will have charge of the construction work. They were ready to start work at once and asked the La Grande committee if their $2000 would be available by July 1. Believing that they have the citizens of La Grande solidly behind them they replied in the affirmative, and work has been already started on the road.

A public appeal will be made for contributions to secure the amount in order to keep faith with the forest service and provide work for a group of men for several months. It will mean that almost the entire sum of $16,000 will be disbursed here in wages.

NEW WHEAT PARLEY

The recent international wheat parley in Rome dealt in generalities and accomplished little more than draft a publicity program to encourage increased consumption of wheat and discourage surplus production. Anticipating such a result, the United States government sent no delegate.

Delegates to another wheat conference are now assembling in London for the purpose of solving the wheat surplus problem, a question of vital interest to the United States. Washington will be represented there.

Ex-Governor McKelvie, of Nebraska, the wheat man on the federal farm board, is the American delegate, commissioned to cooperate with representatives of other wheat-producing countries in finding a way to end ruinous over-production.

Successful culmination of this conference will mean much to the United States and Canada, both of which have large carry-overs. They should be eager to sign an agreement with other wheat-producing countries for the regulation of production. There can be no stability of wheat prices as long as wheat growers continue to plant more than they can sell.

It is believed the foreign conferees will find the American delegate ready to subscribe to any reasonable and equitable pact.

before a blizzard had raged for several days, completely covering the igloo. It was out of the question to try to dig himself out, first because the snow would have fallen in on him and then because he had left his only shovel outside before the blizzard began. Part of his supplies also were outside.

There was no opening to the outside world from the murky igloo except by the chimney, which he had to keep open to provide him with air. For a month he was without a permanent light and depended for an occasional glimmer upon a little gasoline lamp which he used to melt snow to obtain drinking water.

He said that he spent most of his dreary time in his sleeping bag, dozing and thinking, telling himself to keep his courage up.

OREGON, STILL IN HEAT WAVE GRIP

WEATHER UNSETTLED
SAN FRANCISCO, May 14 (AP)—Unsettled weather conditions continued over Northern and Central California today, following thunderstorms and light rainfall over a wide area yesterday. Additional rain in intermittent showers is promised in today's forecast.

Vineyards and orchardists in the San Joaquin Valley were the heaviest losers in yesterday afternoon's disturbance, limbs were torn from orchard near at Fresno, where automobiles were stalled in flooded streets. A stenographer, Miss Lydia Oyer, of Fresno, was injured when a limb whipped from a tree by wind, fell upon her.

The cherry crop near Stockton was damaged by hail, and more fruit will be lost through splitting, due to the rain, orchardists said. Wheat growers feared their crops would be damaged as a result of rust, following the dampness.

Yesterday afternoon, Governor Rolph, flying from Oakland to Sacramento encountered an electrical and hail storm over Benicia. Stones striking the plane nearly broke the windows, and lightning flashes uncomfortably close, the governor said after landing.

Tahoe City reported the worst electrical storm in years late in the day.

Dr. Kerr said $259,920 would be taken from resident instruction, $52,208 from the agricultural experiment station, and $22,500 from the extension service. The budget, thus pruned,
