Ten Pianos In Recital; Large Crowd Attends

A large and appreciative audience enjoyed their third annual program of the piano ensemble of the Eastern Oregon school of music last night. The first group, "March of the Priests" from Mendelssohn's "Athalia," and the "Valse Brillante" of Moszkowski, was very well rendered, the latter being given with especially artistic style and finish. An encore the ensemble played an arrangement by Mrs. Parkinson in imitation of a fife and drum corps, nine piano drumming while the tenth took the part of the fife in "The Girl I Left Behind Me," "Susanna" and "Yankee Doodle," all pianos finally swinging into an unusually effective arrangement of "Die Meise." The miniature numbers were very interesting, little Miss Margaret Wonderlich playing "Valse in D" by Ketterer, and though she so tiny she had to literally "climb the bench" she played from one end of the keyboard to the other with ease and accuracy. Miss Virginia Wylie played Grotto's "Charmante," a fourth grade selection, with excellent touch and tone.

The final group, the beautiful, old-fashioned "Menuet" of Boccherini and the Overture to the opera "Semiramide" of Rossini, was rendered by the ten-piano ensemble, which in alternating triplets being played brilliantly as a cadenza by Miss Mildred Shumate at the concert grand.

EDITOR AND POLITICIAN ARE SLAIN IN CAL.

(Continued from Page One) Schindler said Spencer had gone to Crawford's office on busy Sunset boulevard in Hollywood to protest what Schindler described as Crawford's recent "bragging that he owned the Critic of Critics."

Spencer had not expected to meet a third person at the office; Schindler said. Killer Escaped Quietly. Office attaches told police that the killer appeared shortly after Spencer arrived and that Crawford greeted him amiably. The three conferred about an hour before the shots were heard. Ray Radke, Crawford's secretary said. The slayer, about 35 or 40, dressed in a sailor straw hat and blue suit, walked out a side door adjacent to the entrance of Crawford's inner private office and disappeared before attaches in the reception room realized what had happened. Spencer, blood stained, staggered out, asked, "which way did he go—that fellow?" and collapsed.

Detectives had no definite theory as to the subject of discussion preceding the shooting. In Crawford's office was found a newspaper clipping declaring that attempts had been made to tamper with prospective grand jury. A book containing several cryptic entries, also was found. One item was "Japanese rooming house $2500. Mrs. Flora Carroll and Mrs. Belle Stocking."

Spencer, former modest and Berkeley, Cal., newspaperman, came here in 1919 and never sought the Evening Express reporter, mostly on the police run. He became city editor and managing editor's assistant later. He was regarded as a prominent political writer and criminal activities.

Crawford was regarded as a power in politics, although he never sought office. For some time he had been in real estate business. Some 20 years ago, he operated the Maple Bar saloon.

In 1929, he was acquitted in connection with the alleged frameup of Councilman Carl Jacobson on a morals charge. Last year he fought in the editorial trial of Morris Lavin, newspaper reporter, charged with obtaining $75,000 from Crawford on behalf of himself and others at the price of a silence about their supposed connection with the Julian Petroleum Corporation scandal. Crawford also was freed of bribery charges growing out of the corporation's collapse.

More recently Crawford joined the St. Paul's Presbyterian church and gave it $25,000.

ACREAGE CUT IS NOT FAVORED BY RUSSIA (Continued from Page One) The announcement dealt with the Russian views regarding quotas and said Russia's pre-war status must be considered in fixing any quota scheme.

It discussed the necessity for financing any surpluses which Russia might hold off the market as a result of agreement on and operation of the system and suggested wheat stocks be held in Russia as security for "adequate credits."

The statement was signed by Ist-dore Lubimoff, head of the Russian delegation.

Heavy Surplus. In a preface Lubimoff outlined the position of Soviet wheat production. Last year the crop totaled 29,500,000 tons. Allowing for consumption, the surplus was 6,100,000 tons.

As for the new crop, the winter wheat sowing was 12,000,000 hectares; spring wheat, 29,700,000 hectares. The total area under wheat in 1931 is at least 42,000,000 hectares, with an anticipated crop of 36,500,000 tons. The hectare is a little less than two and a half acres.

Lubimoff said the Russians disagree with other delegates regarding the agricultural crisis, contending that the crisis is a direct result of "contradictions within the capitalist system."

PANAMA Light in weight — fashionable for wear with summer costumes. Tailored ribbon and patent trims — novelty bands. Reasonably priced at $4.50 to $6.00

PUTMAN'S Exclusive Ready-to-Wear & Millinery

Committees sought to reconcile divergent views as to the best method of absorbing the international wheat surplus, with indications that the two factions would stand by their views.

The American delegation's proposal to restrict acreage has clashed with Russian approval of the Danubian basin—the Polish scheme of export quotas—and neither side appears prepared to give ground.

Meanwhile, the American, Russian and Danubian delegates having divulged their plans, Canada and Argentina are hanging back pending developments and are ready to throw their influence to the faction which appears to have the best chance of drafting an agreement.
