Apartment Houses Of U. S. Style Are Jeered In Panama

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Modern apartment houses that have begun to appear in this city have aroused the scorn of old time Panamanians. "They do not even have balconies," is the derisive comment. This, in the Panamanian's viewpoint, is a serious lack. Nearly all of Panama's houses have balconies on their street fronts. They reach out over the sidewalks and from May to December, when it rains almost continuously, protect pedestrians and shoppers. During the sunny days of the five dry months, the balconies cast shadows passed by the great for. Aside from these hours shade commands little premium. Nights are almost chilly.

Urges General Use Of Public Library

Miss Mabel Doty, librarian, in a letter issued today, urged all La Grande students to make a liberal and profitable use of the public library during the summer vacation months. "When the call to vacation comes," she said, "so many students plan to leave on the train without a book behind but on forgetting about books until the school bell rings again. The fact is that those students who are busily engaged with their studies during the regular school year find that the summer months afford them the opportunity they seek of reading exactly the books they enjoy reading. Another consideration is that students are not so rushed in the summer. They can spend time browsing around the library, getting acquainted with this store house of information, they can discover how to look for things they want and how to use the library efficiently and to advantage not only now but in years to come. The library presents a real opportunity to students of all ages during the vacation period and it is our hope that we may make many new friends during the months immediately ahead."

LOCAL AIRPORT IS DISCUSSED AT LUNCHEON TODAY

as yet. Mr. Friel mentioned the Rankin field here as being excellent in location and arrangement. The government cannot deal with private individuals or business firms, however, according to present rulings. "We're willing to help but we'd like to know what your plan is," he said in closing his talk. President Harry McKinlay declared that the matter should be given serious thought, and then called upon Mr. Perkins, who suggested that some civic organization would be the best to take over an airport. "We must act now if we want to take our place with other cities," he said, pointing out that La Grande is on the air map now only as having an emergency field, placing it on par with emergency fields at Kamela, and other similar places. Other cities, with regular airports, attract the commercial fliers who pass La Grande by, unless an emergency stop is necessary. Mr. Hoover, in charge of always maintenance, and a resident of La Grande, spoke highly in favor of some organization sponsoring an airport here. Several others joined in a general discussion, which was followed by a decision that the aviation committee of the chamber—Mr. Perkins, Dr. Gilstrap and Gene Walker—make a thorough investigation and report as soon as possible at a called meeting of the board of directors.

The minimum prices of said property are to be equal to the amount of accumulated taxes plus penalties and interest as shown by the tax rolls. The court also authorized the cancellation of all warrants issued more than seven years prior to July 1, 1931, and the advertising of same as provided by law. The clerk was instructed to issue a warrant for $1000 in favor of the Eastern Oregon Livestock show, which amount was included in the county budget for that purpose. A permit to operate a dance hall was granted to Pleasant Grove Grange.

Keep Your Heads Up And Due Sense Of Proportion, Urge

cal value at all to us in this swiftly changing, immensely complicated and tremendously stimulating western civilization of ours, we must keep our heads and a due sense of proportion. The economic development of this country has been amazingly rapid, but it has taken quite a considerable while longer than 40 months or so. If, as practical business men, we are to form a balanced conception of the significance of that development, of the factors upon which it is based, and the permanent forces determining it, we must certainly take a longer and larger view than is comprised in the perspective of those who at this moment see nothing about us but collapse and unending chaos.

What actually is our present economic position and how does it compare with the past when viewed in reasonable perspective? Let us look back only as far as 20 or 30 years—a short time, surely, in the course of civilization or in the life of our own nation. Let us look at some plain, unvarnished facts, and see whether they justify the gloomy commentators or warrant the belief that on any reasonably broad basis we have nothing hopeful to anticipate.
