

CLASSIFIED ADS

The Market Place of Union and Wallowa Counties

WANTED

EXP. LADY WANTS housekeeping. Write or call Observer. 12-12-31 tp

WANTED—Pasture for cattle, stubble with straw stacks preferred. Write J. L. Westenskow, Imbler. 12-12-31 t

WILL FINANCE married man 25-60, good appearance, fair education, in a paying business of his own. Profits not large to start with but will increase as you learn the business. Must furnish A-1 references and have car for delivery. Make application in own handwriting to McCONNOR & COMPANY, Dept. C-1982, Winona, Minn. 12-12-31 tp

CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS—Exp. woman will care for children. Phone 366-U. 12-10-31 t

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—1928 Studebaker Commander sedan. In perfect condition. 1932 license, $285. PERKINS MOTOR CO. 12-12-31 t

FOR SALE—Shelled Calif. almonds. 45c lb. Ph. 907-W. 12-12-31 t

HAY—Arno Fowler, Alicel. 12-10-31 tp

FOR SALE—2 or more cows, one just fresh, others fresh next month. Must sell—overstocked. Chris M. Stackland, Cove, Ore. 12-11-31 t

FOR SALE—Delicious apples 50c and $1.00. Jonathans 75c, A-1 potatoes 75c, cider 25c. Jay Millering, Is. City road. 419-J. 12-11-31 t

FOR SALE—Milk fed turkeys for Christmas. Order now. Farmers 42. 12-11-31 t

FOR SALE—At a sacrifice, 10 shares of 1st National Bank of Elgin stock. Apply to M. C. Hall, 237-E 1st St., Long Beach, Cal. 12-8-31 t

DRY WOOD—Tann. pine, any length. $7.00. Ph. Observer or write M. Loree, Cove. 12-8-31 mp

FOR SALE—Netted Gem potatoes. J. D. Dobbin, Farmers 20X. 12-8-31 tp

FOR SALE—Chain wood from Union sawmill, $4.00 and $4.50. Local agent Ray McCarroll, Main 284 or Main 1027. 12-24-31 mp

FOR SALE—Willard Batteries—$6.95. A first choice battery at chain store prices, 75c on old battery. AUTOMOTIVE ELECTRIC CO. 1425 Adams Phone M 320 9-1-1 m.

Professional Directory

Hospitals

DR. LEE B. BOUVY
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital
3rd floor Foley Bldg.—Ph. Main 16.

Osteopathic Physicians

DRS. J. L. & MARGARET INGLES
General Practice and Obstetrics
Commerce Bldg.
Office, Main 100 Res., Main 639

DR. E. L. FAUS
General Practice
New Foley Bldg., 3rd floor.
Phone Main 690 Res. 990-R.

Miscellaneous

ASTROLOGER
MRS. FREDERICK BALMES
203 N. Ave.
Readings Daily.

Observer Want Ad Rates

(Count five average words to the line.)
Per line, 1st insertion 100
Per line, each added consecutive insertion 75
Minimum charge on one order 250

RATES BY MONTH
2 lines, per month $2.50
3 lines, per month $3.25
4 lines, per month $4.00
5 lines, per month $4.75
Each additional line over five charged at 50c per line per month.
CASH IN ADVANCE is required on all classified orders to earn these rates. Higher rates charged on all credit insertions.
Copy for all classified orders must be in this office by 10 A. M. DAY OF INSERTION. Skip orders on ad inserted until further notice must be received by the same hour or extra insertion will be charged.
Telephone orders solicited. Cash rates may be earned on phone orders by payment on or before date of last insertion.

PHONE MAIN 600
"An Observer Want Ad Will Do It."

FOR RENT

FOR RENT—3-rm. Apt. heat and garage. 101 Greenwood. 12-13-31 t

FURN. HOUSE and 4-rm. Apt. 508 Adams. 12-11-31 tp

FOR RENT—Fine corner house, 6 rooms, well furnished, furnace, fire place, garage. Rent $40, 1803-1st St. 12-11-31 tp

1 2-RM. AND 1 3-RM. furn. or unfurn. Apts. Grande Ronde Apts. 12-10-31 t

FOR RENT—1 2-rm. Apt. steam heat, elec. range. Close in. Ph. 389 W. 1502 Wash. Ave. 12-9-31 t

FOR RENT—5-rm. furn. house. Close in on Adams. Inq. H. W. Smith, Post Farm. 12-8-31 tp

FOR RENT—Garage 1610 Adams. Phone Main 38. 12-7-31 t

FOR RENT—Comfortable steam-heated room, hot & cold water, close in. 1902 Second, cor. Wash. 12-8-11tp

FURN. HOUSES AND APTS.—With baths, clean, quiet, lowest rent. Adults, 1810 Greenwood. 12-11-31 m.

FOR RENT—Large, mod., furn. apt. 601 O Ave. Ph. 236-J. Apt. 3. 12-21-31 t

WISDOM demands that you secure the services of expert morticians who know the science and ethics of their profession and who have demonstrated their capacity and ability.

We Understand
SNODGRASS & ZIMMERMAN
Main 62

FOR RENT—Partly furn. and unfurn. houses at Berger's grocery, Y. and Spruce Sts. Ph. Main 289. 5-31-31 t

FOR RENT—3-rm. apt. $15, 1508 N. avenue. 12-7-31 t

FURN. APARTMENT—1809 Adams. Main 582. 12-1-31 t

FOR RENT—Modern steamheated rooms, 1408 Washington. 12-2-31 m.

MISCELLANEOUS
SUPER-TONE—Before rebuilding your radio, try the new 7-point device. Saves tubes, clears static. Distributor at 1421 S. Ave. Agents wanted. Call after 4 p. m. 12-10-31 tp

CECO WEATHERSTRIPS installed. P. B. Anderson, 2102 Cove Ave. 10-28-31 m.

LA GRANDE MATTRESS and Upholstering and Rug Cleaning Works. Ph. 424-W. Chas. Edwards, Prop. 12-1-31 m.

EASTERN OREGON School of Music. Violin, piano, voice. Credits. L. O. D. F. temple. 447-J. 9-6-31 m.

MONEY TO LOAN—We are representatives for the Prudential Ins. Co. and can make farm or city loans at attractive rates of interest. Chas. H. Reynolds, Insurance, loans and bonds. 9-1-31 m.

LOST

STRAYED—To my place, Jersey cow, branded on right ribs. David Hutchinson. 12-10-31 tp

MOTHERS' TEA WEEK FEATURE AT UNION HIGH

By Mrs. L. Z. Terrall (Observer Correspondent)
UNION (Special)—The annual Mothers' Tea sponsored by the Girls' League of the High School was held at the auditorium Thursday afternoon, with an excellent program as a very special treat for the mothers. Throughout the High School, classrooms were open and the members of the High School class Wednesday afternoon school. The evening was spent in games and a luncheon was served at the dinner hour.
Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hayward, of Salem, have been visiting at Union the past week. He was watermaster here until September.
Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hess and Elaine and Harold are leaving Sunday for California to visit in several places. They will make a visit to Tia Juana, Mex. during their absence.
T. D. Smith and S. M. Seamen have both been ill the past week.
The members of the Carnation club spent a very pleasant afternoon with Mrs. E. B. Conner in La Grande Thursday. Following a lovely luncheon at noon the guests spent the afternoon at bridge, with high honors going to Mrs. C. E. Larson and low to Mrs. Edith Phay. Other members who were present were: Mrs. Walter Cook, Mrs. Louise Burwell, Mrs. George Baird, Mrs. Alice Cadwell, Mrs. George Hoffman, Mrs. C. E. Hall, Mrs. C. A. Schard and Mrs. S. E. Miller.
A "kid" party was held at the gymnasium Friday afternoon and for going to Mrs. C. E. Larson and low to Mrs. Edith Phay. Other members who were present were: Mrs. Walter Cook, Mrs. Louise Burwell, Mrs. George Baird, Mrs. Alice Cadwell, Mrs. George Hoffman, Mrs. C. E. Hall, Mrs. C. A. Schard and Mrs. S. E. Miller.

Welcome speech to mothers, Ethel Conklin; "Moms Run" and "Days of Long Ago", glee club; reading, "The Blue and Gray", Juanita Roberts; Duet, "Medley of Southern Melodies", Dorothy Baker and Fawn Geertsen; cance skit, Virginia Ward and Frieda Brown; reading, "The Best Cure", Alice Gamble; violin solo, Jean Baum; reading, "The Overworked Educationist", Erma Taylor; trio, "On a Little Silver Moonbeam" and "Kentucky Babe", Fawn Geertsen, Sylvia Jones, Dorothy Baker.
At the close of the program a bevy of girls treated the mothers to tea and dainty cookies made in the home economic department.
Mr. and Mrs. Earl Withycombe, who were summoned to Portland by the illness of his brother, Robert Withycombe, drove to Union Thursday to get Mrs. Withycombe. They left early Friday morning to return to Portland. Miss Doris Hutchinson is caring for the Withycombe family in the absence of the parents.

$5.50 and your old battery buys a new 13 plate battery, installed.

Burgess Battery & Electric Service
Opposite La Grande Grocery

OUT OUR WAY

Mrs. Will Campbell visited Tuesday and Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Leuninger at Haines; they brought her home Wednesday evening and were dinner guests at the Campbell home.
Will Vogel went to Portland Saturday with a car load of fine fat lambs which he hopes to be able to market. About two weeks ago some dogs got into a band of lambs he was feeding at the Hutchinson ranch on Catherine creek and did considerable damage; 17 lambs were killed and several others quite seriously injured.
Mrs. George Ackley entertained the members of her Sunday school class Wednesday afternoon school. The evening was spent in games and a luncheon was served at the dinner hour.
Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hayward, of Salem, have been visiting at Union the past week. He was watermaster here until September.
Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hess and Elaine and Harold are leaving Sunday for California to visit in several places. They will make a visit to Tia Juana, Mex. during their absence.
T. D. Smith and S. M. Seamen have both been ill the past week.
The members of the Carnation club spent a very pleasant afternoon with Mrs. E. B. Conner in La Grande Thursday. Following a lovely luncheon at noon the guests spent the afternoon at bridge, with high honors going to Mrs. C. E. Larson and low to Mrs. Edith Phay. Other members who were present were: Mrs. Walter Cook, Mrs. Louise Burwell, Mrs. George Baird, Mrs. Alice Cadwell, Mrs. George Hoffman, Mrs. C. E. Hall, Mrs. C. A. Schard and Mrs. S. E. Miller.
A "kid" party was held at the gymnasium Friday afternoon and for going to Mrs. C. E. Larson and low to Mrs. Edith Phay. Other members who were present were: Mrs. Walter Cook, Mrs. Louise Burwell, Mrs. George Baird, Mrs. Alice Cadwell, Mrs. George Hoffman, Mrs. C. E. Hall, Mrs. C. A. Schard and Mrs. S. E. Miller.

Have Your Hat Cleaned and Blocked for Christmas 75c COMPLETE EQUIPMENT
We have a complete assortment of boxed candies and cigars suitable for Christmas gifts.
The Best Work in Town

Angel's Hat Cleaning
Phone Main 732
"Good Service Quick"

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

GETTING ANXIOUS

THE NEWFANGLES

WELCOME BACK!

By J. R. Williams

denis, in youthful costumes, trolled in the games of their childhood days. Several of the students were called on for stunts, which were performed from the stage, to the amusement of the onlookers. The crowd was treated to cocoa and sandwiches after the games.
L. L. Sessions, who came to the Hot Lake section from Okmulgee, Okla., about three weeks ago to look after business in connection with his ranch, died suddenly yesterday from a heart attack. He had been staying at the Harry Schwebe ranch and had come to Union yesterday afternoon on business with the bank. They left town about 12 o'clock and he became ill soon after and was taken to Hot Lake where he died at two o'clock. A telegram was sent to Mrs. Sessions at Okmulgee and the body was taken to the Cook Bros. undertaking establishment to be prepared for forwarding. He was 55 years of age.
CONGO BLACKS EXPECT MESSIAH FROM U. S. A. LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgium. Congo (A)—Excited by prophecies that a negro "Messiah" was coming from America, natives in some sections of the Belgian Congo have begun to cause trouble.
The colonial press expresses alarm at increasing native aggression and dwindling prestige of whites.
The story is being spread that the white men are to leave the colony and that the administration will then be taken over by American negroes.
The annual report of the National Association of Minor Leagues reveals that 16 circuits own 2533 players and have 482 on the voluntary retired list.

SUNSET PASS by Zane Grey

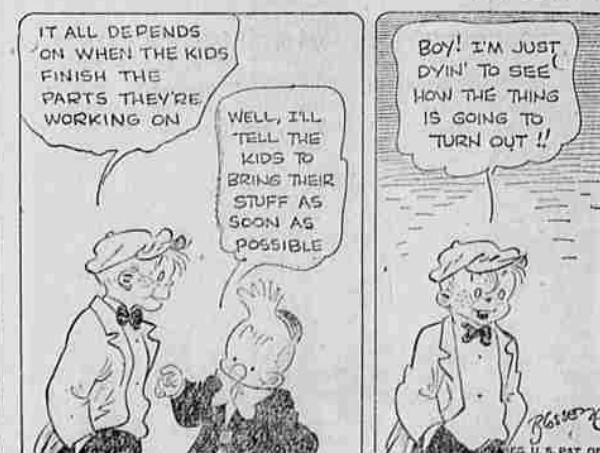

SYNOPSIS: Trueman Rock meets a challenge when he arrives at Sunset Pass, to find Ash Preston refusing him entrance. Rock has already had one run-in with Ash in Wagonwheeler, when Ash wanted Rock's interest in his sister. They have been enemies ever since. Rock is seeking work at Sunset Pass after meeting her sister, who has been interested to see her again. Gage Preston, father of Ash and Thir, breaks in on Rock's quest to find Ash. There is an friendly as Ash is hostile. But Rock knows that there are many mysteries about Ash Preston, and that he is suspected of cattle rustling. Repeatedly Rock has been warned to keep away from Sunset Pass. There have been queer happenings on the range during his stay away from Wagonwheeler. Rock left Wagonwheeler because of a girl fight. Preston only helped his interest in clearing up the mystery.
Chapter 13
DIGGING UP A PAST
"HAY, TOM!" Preston called, turning toward a lanky youth in the background, "take these horses. Throw saddle an' pack on the porch of the empty cabin. . . . Wal, stranger, you're down, so come in."
Rock had not noticed that the next cabin, some distance away under the pines, was a double one of the picturesque kind, long, with wide eaves, a porch all around, and ample space between the two log structures. Water ran down from the stream, in a chute, hollowed from sapling. This house was one of the older ones, which had become weathered, with roof greened over with moss. The newer cabin had two doors and a window that Rock could see. Evidently the second cabin was a kitchen. Door and elk antlers, saddles and skins, hang on the walls between the cabins. Table and benches there indicated where the Prestons dined.
"Reckon I'll be pleasanter sittin' outside," said Preston, and invited Rock to a rustic seat under the eaves.
Many and many a time Rock had camped in the Pass, realizing and loving the beauty of that lovely spot, yet never had he imagined it as a site for a ranch. But it was indeed the most perfect situation of any he had ever seen. And it was Thir's Preston's home.
"What'd you say your name was?" Preston asked.
"I didn't say—yet," laughed Rock, a laced Preston and could not help at compare the son most disparagingly with the father.
"Thir didn't tell me either," went on the rancher. "But I know you're the young feller who was polite to her an' did somethin' or other for her that made Ash huffy."
"Yes, I am. It wasn't much, certainly nothing to offend Miss Thir's brother."
"Aw, Ash was drunk. An' he shored ain't no credit to us then. Range, the other boy who saw you, said you was pretty decent. Thir you only stuck out your foot fer Ash to tumble over. I reckon he ain't need that to take a dislike to you."
"It didn't recognize me, I'm glad to say."
"Young man, I'll say you didn't lose any time trailin' Thir up," went on Preston, quizzically, with a twinkle in his big gray eyes. "Shore you must be one of them sudden fellers."
"Mr. Preston, you—I—I—" began Rock, somewhat disconcerted, more from the rancher's genial acceptance of a fact than from being discovered.
"You needn't be about it. Lord knows this hyar has happened a hundred times."
"I wasn't goin' to be, Mr. Preston," went on Rock.
"Don't call me mister. Make it plain Preston, an' Gage when you get acquainted enough. You're not tryin' to tell me you didn't follow Thir out hyar?"
"No—not exactly. Now you make me think I'm afraid it must be somethin' like that. But I came to ask you for a job."
"Good. What'd you work fer?"
"Reckon the same as you pay any other rider. I'm an old hand with ropes, horses, cattle—anything about the range."
"Wal, you're hired. I'm shore in need of a man who can handle the boys."
"Say, Preston, you don't mean you'll put me to handlin' Ash? He said he was foreman."
"I ran two outfits. Ash bosses the older riders. If you fit in with the youngsters I'll share a load off my mind."
"That suits me fine. I reckon I can hold up the job."
"Wal, you strike me all right. But gotta tell you that no young man I ever hired struck Ash right. An' none of them ever lasted."
"Why not?" inquired Rock.
"Say, you seen Ash an' you an' me that?" exclaimed Preston, spreading his big hands.
"Preston, if I turn out to be of value to you, will you want me to last?" queried Rock, and this was the straight language of one West-erner to another.
"Have you any money?" parried Preston.
"Well, I'm not quite broke."
"Just a poor cowpuncher with your fortune tied up in hoss an' saddle?"
"Reckon that's about the size of it."
"How about red eye?"
"Preston, I used to drink a little, now and then. But I've quit."
"Fer good?"
"I believe so. I never quit before. But I'm not a man to go back on my word. And I promise you I'll never drink while ridin' for you."
"Wal, I like your talk an' I like your looks. An' I'll say if you can handle my boys an' stick it out in the face of Ash, I'll be some in your debt."
"I don't know Ash, of course. But I can take a hunch, if you'll give it."
"Wal, Ash sees red whenever any puncher looks at Thir. He cares fer nothin' on earth but that girl. An' she's awful fond of him. She's never had a beau. An' Thir's near twenty-two."
"Good Heavens! Is her brother so jealous he won't let any man look at her?"
"Wal, he wouldn't if he could prevent it—that's dadda shore. An' far as the ranch hyar is concerned he does prevent. But when Thir goes to town accidents happen, like you mean up with her. Thir likes Ash."
"In that case, Preston, I'm afraid Ash will get riled out here. For I reckon the same kind of accident may happen."
"Hunt! Hunt! You're a cool hand to draw to," exploded the rancher, boisterously. "What'd you say your name was?"
"I haven't told you yet. It's Trueman Rock, late of Texas. But I used to ride here."
The rancher apparently met with instant check to his mood. "What? . . . Trueman Rock?—Are you that there True Rock who figured to run-play hyar years ago?"
"Sorry I can't deny it, Preston," replied Rock, his steady glance on the gray thought-clouding eyes of the rancher.
"You rode fer Slagle—when he had his ranch down hyar below in the Pass?"
"Two years I was with Slagle."
"Also the Cross Bar outfit, the Circle X? An' once you was with John Dabb?"
"Sure you have me pat, Preston."
"It was you who run down that Hartwell rustlin' outfit?"
"I can't take all the credit. But I was there when it happened."
"Say, man, I've heard about you all these years. Damn funny I didn't savvy who you were."
"It's been six years—since I left here—and perhaps you heard some things not quite fair to me."
"Never heard a word that I'd hold against you."
"Then my job stands, in spite of my belin' True Rock," asked Rock, eagerly. What a vast importance seemed to hang on this!
"Say, why'n hell didn't you yell who you was fast off?" retorted Preston.
"You didn't ask me—and I guess I've always been a little backward about my name, at least."
Preston had undergone further subtle change that to Rock's quick intelligence indicated he was finding favor with the rancher. Something of Preston's pondering speculation might have had to do with the future.
"Rock, shore you couldn't know that when you killed Pickens—"
"I'd rather you didn't dig up my past," interrupted Rock sharply.
"Hell, man! You're listenin' to Gage Preston. An' he's tryin' to tell you how you once did him a good turn."
"I'm glad, even if I don't understand."
"Wal, I'll tell you some other time," rejoined Preston, evidently relieved to be checked in his impulsive speech. "Come now, an' meet these hyar eleven other Prestons."
Rock faced the ordeal with mingled emotions, chiefly concerning Thir, but with nothing of the inhibition he had labored under while encountering Ash. Thir, however, to his keen disappointment, was not one of the half dozen Prestons who answered the rancher's threry call.
"appears, in the next in- and her attitude dismay

Chapter 13 DIGGING UP A PAST

"HAY, TOM!" Preston called, turning toward a lanky youth in the background, "take these horses. Throw saddle an' pack on the porch of the empty cabin. . . . Wal, stranger, you're down, so come in."
Rock had not noticed that the next cabin, some distance away under the pines, was a double one of the picturesque kind, long, with wide eaves, a porch all around, and ample space between the two log structures. Water ran down from the stream, in a chute, hollowed from sapling. This house was one of the older ones, which had become weathered, with roof greened over with moss. The newer cabin had two doors and a window that Rock could see. Evidently the second cabin was a kitchen. Door and elk antlers, saddles and skins, hang on the walls between the cabins. Table and benches there indicated where the Prestons dined.
"Reckon I'll be pleasanter sittin' outside," said Preston, and invited Rock to a rustic seat under the eaves.
Many and many a time Rock had camped in the Pass, realizing and loving the beauty of that lovely spot, yet never had he imagined it as a site for a ranch. But it was indeed the most perfect situation of any he had ever seen. And it was Thir's Preston's home.
"What'd you say your name was?" Preston asked.
"I didn't say—yet," laughed Rock, a laced Preston and could not help at compare the son most disparagingly with the father.
"Thir didn't tell me either," went on the rancher. "But I know you're the young feller who was polite to her an' did somethin' or other for her that made Ash huffy."
"Yes, I am. It wasn't much, certainly nothing to offend Miss Thir's brother."
"Aw, Ash was drunk. An' he shored ain't no credit to us then. Range, the other boy who saw you, said you was pretty decent. Thir you only stuck out your foot fer Ash to tumble over. I reckon he ain't need that to take a dislike to you."
"It didn't recognize me, I'm glad to say."
"Young man, I'll say you didn't lose any time trailin' Thir up," went on Preston, quizzically, with a twinkle in his big gray eyes. "Shore you must be one of them sudden fellers."
"Mr. Preston, you—I—I—" began Rock, somewhat disconcerted, more from the rancher's genial acceptance of a fact than from being discovered.
"You needn't be about it. Lord knows this hyar has happened a hundred times."
"I wasn't goin' to be, Mr. Preston," went on Rock.
"Don't call me mister. Make it plain Preston, an' Gage when you get acquainted enough. You're not tryin' to tell me you didn't follow Thir out hyar?"
"No—not exactly. Now you make me think I'm afraid it must be somethin' like that. But I came to ask you for a job."
"Good. What'd you work fer?"
"Reckon the same as you pay any other rider. I'm an old hand with ropes, horses, cattle—anything about the range."
"Wal, you're hired. I'm shore in need of a man who can handle the boys."
"Say, Preston, you don't mean you'll put me to handlin' Ash? He said he was foreman."
"I ran two outfits. Ash bosses the older riders. If you fit in with the youngsters I'll share a load off my mind."
"That suits me fine. I reckon I can hold up the job."
"Wal, you strike me all right. But gotta tell you that no young man I ever hired struck Ash right. An' none of them ever lasted."
"Why not?" inquired Rock.
"Say, you seen Ash an' you an' me that?" exclaimed Preston, spreading his big hands.
"Preston, if I turn out to be of value to you, will you want me to last?" queried Rock, and this was the straight language of one West-erner to another.
"Have you any money?" parried Preston.
"Well, I'm not quite broke."
"Just a poor cowpuncher with your fortune tied up in hoss an' saddle?"
"Reckon that's about the size of it."
"How about red eye?"
"Preston, I used to drink a little, now and then. But I've quit."
"Fer good?"
"I believe so. I never quit before. But I'm not a man to go back on my word. And I promise you I'll never drink while ridin' for you."
"Wal, I like your talk an' I like your looks. An' I'll say if you can handle my boys an' stick it out in the face of Ash, I'll be some in your debt."
"I don't know Ash, of course. But I can take a hunch, if you'll give it."
"Wal, Ash sees red whenever any puncher looks at Thir. He cares fer nothin' on earth but that girl. An' she's awful fond of him. She's never had a beau. An' Thir's near twenty-two."
"Good Heavens! Is her brother so jealous he won't let any man look at her?"
"Wal, he wouldn't if he could prevent it—that's dadda shore. An' far as the ranch hyar is concerned he does prevent. But when Thir goes to town accidents happen, like you mean up with her. Thir likes Ash."
"In that case, Preston, I'm afraid Ash will get riled out here. For I reckon the same kind of accident may happen."
"Hunt! Hunt! You're a cool hand to draw to," exploded the rancher, boisterously. "What'd you say your name was?"
"I haven't told you yet. It's Trueman Rock, late of Texas. But I used to ride here."
The rancher apparently met with instant check to his mood. "What? . . . Trueman Rock?—Are you that there True Rock who figured to run-play hyar years ago?"
"Sorry I can't deny it, Preston," replied Rock, his steady glance on the gray thought-clouding eyes of the rancher.

"You rode fer Slagle—when he had his ranch down hyar below in the Pass?"
"Two years I was with Slagle."
"Also the Cross Bar outfit, the Circle X? An' once you was with John Dabb?"
"Sure you have me pat, Preston."
"It was you who run down that Hartwell rustlin' outfit?"
"I can't take all the credit. But I was there when it happened."
"Say, man, I've heard about you all these years. Damn funny I didn't savvy who you were."
"It's been six years—since I left here—and perhaps you heard some things not quite fair to me."
"Never heard a word that I'd hold against you."
"Then my job stands, in spite of my belin' True Rock," asked Rock, eagerly. What a vast importance seemed to hang on this!
"Say, why'n hell didn't you yell who you was fast off?" retorted Preston.
"You didn't ask me—and I guess I've always been a little backward about my name, at least."
Preston had undergone further subtle change that to Rock's quick intelligence indicated he was finding favor with the rancher. Something of Preston's pondering speculation might have had to do with the future.
"Rock, shore you couldn't know that when you killed Pickens—"
"I'd rather you didn't dig up my past," interrupted Rock sharply.
"Hell, man! You're listenin' to Gage Preston. An' he's tryin' to tell you how you once did him a good turn."
"I'm glad, even if I don't understand."
"Wal, I'll tell you some other time," rejoined Preston, evidently relieved to be checked in his impulsive speech. "Come now, an' meet these hyar eleven other Prestons."
Rock faced the ordeal with mingled emotions, chiefly concerning Thir, but with nothing of the inhibition he had labored under while encountering Ash. Thir, however, to his keen disappointment, was not one of the half dozen Prestons who answered the rancher's threry call.
"appears, in the next in- and her attitude dismay

By Blosser

By Cowan

