GULDAHL, MANGRUM IN LEAD PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 19 (AP)—The phalanx of hopefuls advanced on the cache of gold at the end of the Pasadena open golf tournament trail today, leaving in their wake those dozens of aspirants who strained valiantly but fruitlessly to get a second-day try at the prizes.

Many—a few prominent—were those who failed to get under the qualifying wire yesterday, and the play was punctuated by the splendid performance of a brace of youngsters who said a figurative "hero's how" to their more experienced opponents.

Steadily, calmly, Ralph Gulda, of Detroit, and Ray Mangrum, of Los Angeles—who, incidentally, once hailed from Texas, both of them—went through the 18 qualifying holes to finish in a dead heat at 69, two full strokes under par for the rather difficult 675-yard course.

Four score 70 followed on the heels of the two Texas Longhorns in the qualifying round and knocked home-100-tentatively on the cash box as their initial gestures. They were George Von Elm, the Los Angeles business man golfer and runner-up for the 1931 open title who went out in 36 and came home in 34; Willie Goggin, San Francisco, with the lowest nine-card of the day, a 33; the veteran MacDonald Smith, New York City, and Jack Gaine, Glendale, Cal., amateur. Smith and Gaine belied in uniformity and posted 35 for each nine.

Of the 180 starters, only Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, Cal., Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn—with 81500 in gold from the San Francisco tournament weighing his pockets—Al Zimmerman, Portland, and Joe Esar, St. Louis, managed to keep up with last year's winners, who held the title, experienced some difficulty in qualifying with a 77, well down the list.

The Haig of Detroit evidently spent himself on an extraordinary round of 65 day before yesterday, and the qualifying circuit of the eight saw Haig generally add eight strokes to his record for a 73, with ten others, including Billie Burke, of Greenwich, Conn., national open champion.

HERE'S GREEN WAVE THAT WILL SURGE AGAINST TROY AT ROSE BOWL

The mighty Trojans went marching through Georgia to the tempo of 60-0 for a victory that placed them high in national standings. However, Southern California has to beat Tulane at Pasadena Rose Bowl New Year to call it a season, and thus far Tulane is undefeated. Here's the first string of Tulane. Left to right, they are:

Linemen, Capt. Daley, All-American end; Upton, tackle; Scalfie, All-Southern guard; Ledizog, center; McCormick, guard; Bankston, tackle; Haynes, end; Backfield, Payne, halfback; Felt, All-Southern fullback; Zimmerman, All-American halfback; Dawson, All-Southern quarterback.

John Richards, who coached the Badgers in 1911 and from 1917 to 1922, inclusive, enjoyed the longest span of any. Bill Juneau, who produced the last Wisconsin championship in 1912, stayed only for three succeeding seasons.

So if Wisconsin has not been a graveyard, it has at least not been a bed of roses. Alumni have been anxious to obtain a winning coach, but each succeeding change has failed to produce the desired results.

The "wolves" quickly set upon Glenn Thistlethwaite, who went to Wisconsin after guiding Northwesters from the bottom to the top of the Big Ten.

Starts With Bang

In his first year, 1928, Gloomy Ginn came within an ace of winning the conference title.

The following year the team won its only conference victory over Chicago, and was dropped to tenth position in the final standing. Thistlethwaite changed his offensive from the old punt formation to an adaptation of the Warner system with the double wingback formation.

Last year was the season of the big squabble over the election of a team king and a team of really great potentialities wound up with a pair of victories, two defeats and a tie with Ohio State. The alumni were in arms again.

This uprising was settled when team members expressed faith in their coach and said that if he would not retain them they would not report for the team.

This season was touched off with a surprising show of power against Purdue and a sensational Badger victory. But the team was defeated by Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Ohio State and by Auburn.

The Hall Call

Here are the coaches who have served at Wisconsin since 1892:

1892—Ted Meire (Yale).
1901—Herb Alward (Harvard).
1902—Crawford (Yale).
1903—Parks H. Davis (Princeton).
1904-05—H. O. Stuckey (Harvard).
1906-1907—Phil King (Princeton).
1908-1909—Art Curtis (Wisconsin) and Ed Cochran (Wisconsin).
1910—Phil King (Princeton).
1911-1912—Dr. Hutchins (Syracuse).
1913-14—J. A. Berry (Brown).
1915—J. R. Richards (Wisconsin).
1916-17—W. J. Junken (Wisconsin).
1918—P. W. Whitington (Harvard).
1919—J. R. Richards (Wisconsin).
1920—J. R. Richards (Wisconsin) and Guy Lowman (Wisconsin).
1921-22—J. R. Richards (Wisconsin).
1923-24—J. J. Ryan (Dartmouth).
1925-26—George Little (Ohio Wesleyan), present athletic director.
1927-31—Glenn Thistlethwaite (Baltimore).

Couldn't Rush Disraeli

It is told of Disraeli that when the old statesman was dying, one of the doctors, feeling his pulse, said: "I think the old gentleman's gone at last." Whereupon the supposed blind man quietly remarked: "Not yet."

Weeks Through the Blood

In the light of modern medical knowledge, it is apparent that the weapons through which nature works are humoral—that is to say, that her messages are transmitted through the blood.

King Levinsky Whips Loughran In Dope Upset

By Hugh Fullerton Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—To King Levinsky, a wild punching youngster from Chicago, goes the credit for scoring the biggest upset of the New York indoor boxing season.

The Kingfish ripped into calm Tommy Loughran last night, floored him four times with his rough and tumble attack and gave the Philadelphia stylist his first defeat in 13 matches since he was knocked out by Jack Sharkey here two years ago.

Through his victory over the former light heavyweight champion, Levinsky climbed right up among the leading heavyweight contenders. Previously Loughran had defeated Levinsky in Chicago.

Forgot to Duck

Tommy, the cool, clever boxer, hardly had a chance last night after he stepped into one of Levinsky's long looping rights just before the end of the first round. In the third round and the fourth and again in the ninth Loughran forgot to duck the Kingfish's wild swings and went down for three counts of nine.

Levinsky earned the unanimous decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and two judges.

After the ninth, Loughran was so dazed that he sat down in Levinsky's corner and had to be hauled away by his seconds.

Loughran gave away 104 pounds in the encounter, weighing 183 1/2 to Levinsky's 184.

Rhododendrons

While rhododendrons are most numerous in eastern Asia, there are seven species indigenous to America. Among the American species the great laurel is the largest. It is indigenous from Nova Scotia to Michigan, and southward in the mountains to Georgia. The species is cinnabarinus, which has lilac-purple flowers, is common in the mountains from Virginia to Georgia, and is hardy to New England.

Shipping Luxury

Swimming pools were first installed in the three German ocean liners, the Imperator, the Vaterland and the Bismarck, which are the Majestic, the Leviathan and the Berengaria, respectively. The Berengaria began service in 1913, and the other two were built about the same time. The first Cunarder in which a swimming pool was installed was the Aquitania, which made her maiden voyage in 1914.

Baby Carriage in Museum

The baby carriage has been placed in the collection of vehicles of transport at the Smithsonian institution. For some reason no one ever thought of including a perambulator until one of them, bought in 1833, was donated to the institution. The carriage differs from our modern four-wheeled perambulator. It looks like a miniature one-horse shay, has two wheels and is pulled by a long handle.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Japan's Climate

Since Japan extends through nearly 90 degrees of latitude, it necessarily has a great range of climate. In the south the climate is subtropical; in the north it is extremely cold. The southern islands have high temperatures in the summer and no snow or ice in the winter. In the Kurile islands the snow and ice never entirely disappear. Kinshu and Shikoku have a moderate climate.

NEW GOLF BALL WINNING FAVOR

Trial in Pasadena Open Tournament Brings Expert Opinion.

By Paul Zimmerman (Associated Press Sports Writer)

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 19 (AP)—The jury of golfing money seeking Pasadena's $4000 prize money in the annual open tournament here has turned in a verdict in favor of the new ball—1931 diameter and 1833 weight.

At the same session, however, there were votes for the 1831 "balloon" ball which was at once absolved of high crime in the alleged theft of many a player's good game during the past year. The smaller pellet of previous years was condemned and reprieve from death sentence granted.

Most of the country's ranking professionals and amateurs who gave the ball its first tournament test in the opening round yesterday expressed high approval of the sphere which weighs six-hundredths of an ounce more than the "balloon" ball of 1831 origin, but retains its diameter.

No One Favored 1830 Ball

A goodly number insisted the difference in the way it played was negligible, and the average player was given little hope that it would materially improve scores. No one testified in behalf of the smaller ball of 1830 vintage.

Billie Burke, of Greenwich, Conn., national open champion, although he expressed the opinion that it should "set down" better and putt better, preferred not to "wrap horses in the middle of the stream" and accepted the privilege of using the "balloon ball." So did Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn pro, and the veteran MacDonald Smith of New York.

Walker Hagen, Detroit, Canadian open champion and a veteran campaigner of many honors believes the average golfer will get more distance on his drives.

Experts Give Opinions

"As I see it," laughed the Haig, "it will allow the club to hook or slice a lot farther but I don't think it will affect the professional's game to any degree."

Joe Kirkwood, the trick-shot artist from Philadelphia, said it would make "meaner score marker for the club, but will compensate by being easier to putt."

George Von Elm, Los Angeles, runner-up in the national open said the only difference between the 1831 and the 1932 creations is that the heavier ball is harder to get into the air.

Horton Smith, one of the greatest of money tournament winners, forced to the gallery with a fractured wrist, voiced the popular opinion that "it doesn't make any difference which ball you play on a still day. The balloon ball was condemned from the first just because of the psychology of the change."

"The average player wouldn't know the difference unless he was told, and that goes for a lot of professionals as well."

Aubrey Boomer, French open champion said, "It isn't the ball but the player, mind-over-muscle."

"Both good all the same," was the opinion of H. Asami, Japanese professional.

McGraw Counts On Recruits To Pep Up Giants

(Note: This is another of a series of baseball stories noting major league shakings and 1932 prospects.)

By Gayle Talbot (Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—John McGraw still one of the greatest judges of baseball talent, has delved into the bag again and come up with a trio of brilliant prospects for his 1932 Giant machine.

Just as Johnny Vargas lived up to his fondest hopes at third base last season, McGraw expects Jim Mooney, Sam Gibson and Leonard Noonke to step into regular jobs next spring and transform the Giants from a second place club into a championship outfit.

Gibson is the 205-pound right hander who won 35 games and lost only 12 for San Francisco last year and led Coast league pitchers with an earned run average of .248. He struck out 207 batters and walked only 39.

Mooney a Sensation

Mooney is the young southpaw sensation who was recalled from Bridgeport late last season. All he did was win seven out of eight games and clinch second place for the McGrawmen.

Noonke is the 475,000 outfielder purchased from Indianapolis.

He belted American Association pitching for an average of .334 last year, including 23 home runs, 20 triples and 35 doubles. McGraw expects him to play left field regularly next summer.

Gibson and Mooney round out a first pitching staff which includes Fred Fitzsimmons, Bill Walker, Carl Hubbell, Clarence Mitchell, Jim Chaplin and the great-looking youngster, Hal Schrammer.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor)

The baseball over possible changes in the football coaching personnel at the University of Wisconsin brings to mind the old change that the Badger school is one of the smartest universities in the country for appointing football coaches.

The records show that since the sport was begun there 42 years ago, there have been exactly 13 different coaches, making the average life less than three years.

Finalists for S. F. Open Title

"Wiffy" Cox (left), the roddy Brooklyn pro, and George Von Elm, Los Angeles, a veteran of many national amateur tournaments, battled through a big field to reach the finals and the purse in the $7500 national match play open championship at San Francisco. They're shown shaking hands before the finals started. Cox won.

WITTMER RESIGNS UNDER PRESSURE

Princeton Football Coach to Continue to Guide Cage Quintets, However

By Herbert W. Barker (Associated Press Sports Writer)

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 19 (AP)—

Wittmer will continue as Princeton basketball coach, a post he has held since the 1922-23 season.

Criticism launched at Wittmer's methods began almost with the opening of the 1931 season and increased in intensity as the Tigers lost eight of their nine games and wound up with the poorest record in Princeton football history.

Bargaining for Victory

As an example of the religious concepts of the pagan world of the Greek and Roman classical period the story is told of two cities at war with each other, both soliciting the god Apollo at Delphi for victory. One offered a tenth of the spoil to the shrine for victory. The other, hearing the offer, offered a ninth, thus assuring victory for themselves.
