SUNSET PASS
by Zane Grey

SYNOPSIS: Gimping has Allied Tucson Rock's and Nue has headed down, but he suspects trouble ahead. He believes his employer, George Preston, is a cattle thief. Preston's son Ash has a bad reputation, but is devoted by his sister Thiry, whom Rock loves. Thiry wants Rock to leave Sunset Pass.

Chapter 23
ROCK DENIES LOVEMAKING

"OUT here in the Southwest sometimes you have to use a gun," Rock said.
She was silent a moment, evidently not quite sure how to take him.
"I asked Al what you did when you found out Ash took your horse," went on Thiry, presently.

"What did Al say?"
"He said you were thunderstruck. You swore something terrible."
"Al told the truth, Thiry," admitted Rock, with reluctance. "I never was so surprised—never so furious. New trick on me! My beautiful horse—that you had named—taken from me!"

"Mr. Rock, you see, then—How impossible Ash is!"
"Nobody or nothing is impossible," "Dad says the man doesn't live who can stand Ash's measures."
"Well, I'm livin' and maybe I can. You saw him this mornin'?"

"I love you," Rock said.
She flung out her hands as if to ward off some spell.

The horse incident had thrown them off the track of the purpose of this interview.
"Mr. Rock, you—you were to tell me something tonight!" she began, nervously.

"I have several things to tell you."
"You needn't tell me one. For I know that. I can feel it. . . . You're not going away."
"No," he replied, with a ring in his voice.

"Oh—Mr. Rock, I feared you wouldn't. All day long I've felt it. . . . But, oh if you only knew! . . . It's not all for Ash's sake that I ask it. But for Dad and Mother, Alice and Lucy—for me!"

"Thiry," said Rock, with deep feeling, "last night I almost gave in to you. It was terribly hard not to. But tonight I have hold of myself. You can't persuade me. You can't drive me. I shall stay."

"Oh, you're selfish. You think only of your silly infatuation—"
"No, it's not selfishness or silly infatuation," he interrupted, with sudden passion that made her draw back. "I've thought all night and all day. Out of this torture has come two facts, which I believe as I do my own soul."

"What are they?" she asked.
"I believe I can serve you best by stayin' at Sunset Pass."
"And the other?"

"I love you."
She flung out her hands, protesting, imploringly, and as if to ward off some incomprehensible peril.

"Mr.—Rock!" she gasped. "You dare make love to me—when we've never been together an hour—when I'm insisting you leave my home!"

"I dare that, yes, under any circumstances," he retorted, coolly. "But as it happens, I'm not makin' love to you."

"I declare, Mr. Rock, you are beyond me," she exclaimed. "What in the world are you doing, then?"
(Copyright, Zane Grey)

Thiry plays her last card in the next installment. It will mean risk, but she has a startling proposal.
