whenever a situation arises which in the opinion of any one of them involves the application of the stipulations of the present treaty, and renders desirable discussion of such application there shall be full and frank communication between the contracting powers concerned."

President Hoover personally expressed anew today the American government's "deep concern" over the Far Eastern situation.

Replying to a formal address by W. W. Yen, newly appointed minister of China in presenting his credentials, the president said the American government was mindful of its engagements under treaties and "proposes to continue to follow with close and meticulous attention developments."

"I request that you convey to your government and to the people of China," the president said to the minister, "the assurance that the American government and people continue to observe with deep and sympathetic interest the present struggle of the Chinese nation for the realization of those principles which form the foundation of a Democratic state."

Smoot Finds in Rugged Health At 70 Proof Religious Faith Pays

WASHINGTON (AP)—Years rest lightly on Senator Reed Smoot, who, January 10, reaches the Biblical span of three score and ten.

Hard work, now as in his youth, is his key to success, and his recipe for living is in the tenets of the Mormon church.

His virility—a sort of wiry, rugged vigor—baffles his years and his "dearship" of the senate through unbroken service since March, 1903.

He is recognized as keeping about the longest office hours of any member of congress.

"I have a right to demand such endurance," he says, "I have lived in accordance with the principles of right living as taught by my religion."

There is a grim doggedness about the senator—the result of mature decisions before taking a stand. Thus his admonition to young people is: "Make up your mind what you are going to do and work to attain it."

As a boy, fresh out of school, he first worked at sacking potatoes and fruit. Three years later he had made good his promise to become manager.

His father was a "rabid, irreconcilable Democrat of the Kentucky brand," the senator says—but young Reed became a Republican after study had convinced him that the protective tariff was essential to Utah and the nation—and that the Republican party, standing for it, should be his party.

Though a baseball catcher in earlier days, the senator now finds recreation in golf, but not to the disturbance of office hours.

Tieling, opened the prison, liberated all prisoners and set the prison buildings on fire before Japanese forces arrived.

FARMERS OF WISCONSIN ASK SUBSIDY

ly on the subsidy, and that amount shall be raised through dividend taxes and surtaxes on incomes. The farmer is guaranteed a return of two per cent on the assessed valuation of his farm and enough more to assure him at least the 30 cents an hour wage on the basis of an eight-hour day.

The senate has yet to act on the amended measure.

Assemblymen John Fronck, Frank Panzer, Ray Lawton, and L. S. Shauger introduced the bill—and they believe in it. Farmers, they said, have the same definite rights to profit as do manufacturers, whom they state are subsidized by tariffs and what-not.

PEACE TIME ARMY ARRIVES AT CAPITOL

loans to reestablish the farmer, and that the money be raised by increasing the surtaxes on large incomes, inheritance taxes up to 70 per cent and by a large gift tax.

Their journey was in vivid contrast to that of a body of demonstrators that concentrated here at the beginning of congress to chant "the internationale" in the streets of the capital.

Extra police stood about the capitol but they were there more as traffic directors than in anticipation of trouble. The riot guns and tear gas bombs with which they were armed for the December demonstration were absent.

More than ten thousand unemployed were fed at the foot of Capitol Hill this morning to begin the day. The followers of Father Cox consumed hundreds of gallons of steaming coffee and thousands of doughnuts and rolls.

Eight army rolling kitchens from Fort Meyer provided the food. The feeding started at 7:30 and continued for three hours but the supply of rolls and doughnuts furnished by District of Columbia relief organizations ran out before everyone was served.

Extra policemen were drawn up in front of the capitol but such jobless men as came were admitted freely. Extra details of police also were stationed in the halls but there was no sign of disorder.

The visitors inspected with all the apparent interest of a group of tourist sightseers, their subdued manner contrasting sharply with the shouted demands of the marchers led by communist sympathizers a month ago.

Capitol authorities planned to admit the marchers to the galleries to the limit of their capacity.

White House officials indicated if Father Cox sought an appointment with the president, to lay before him the marchers' unemployment demands, he would be received.

The heavy police guard thrown entirely around the White House grounds during the demonstration of December 7 was entirely lacking.

STRAGGLERS IN PITTSBURGH
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 7 (AP)—Trucks bearing 871 stragglers from the march of unemployed on Washington came into Pittsburgh early today.

One man had frozen feet and many of them were so numb with cold that they were tied to the trucks to keep them from falling off.

The trucks were sent out last night and they followed highways as far east as Ebsenburg, Pa. Great containers of coffee and 1100 sandwiches were taken to give the hungry.

Many of the men were described as ill from exposure and hunger by an aide to Rev. James R. Cox, leader of the march.

"WEDDING" FEATURE OF MASONIC MEET

Rev. J. George Walz described the ancestry, the life, home and attributes of Washington, paying high tribute to the moths of the first president of the United States, and the man who has become to be known as the father of his country. Mr. Walz described Washington as the perfect husband, kind to the children of his wife by her first husband, gentle and gracious to guests in his home, and kind to his subordinates, although he was a member of the highest class of Virginia society.

Miss Helen Williams played two instrumental numbers, opening the program, "A Fantasy Impromptu," by Chopin, and "Rocking Horse."

George T. Cochran was master of ceremonies.

Officers of the six Masonic bodies in La Grande were introduced. Milo Smith is eminent commander of the commandery, and introduced L. H. Russell, recorder; Joel Richardson, captain general; R. F. Tyler, senior warden, and Avery Harrison, junior warden.

A. J. Cook introduced Joel Richardson as high priest of Chapter No. 9, Royal Arch Masons; Lyle Kiddie, king; E. D. Towler, scribe, and Walter Nowland, captain.

Miss Stella Bloch was introduced
