HOW TO GET RID OF RHEUMATISM
New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons from Joints—Muscles. EASES PAIN FIRST DAY
Poisons settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You can get rid of rheumatic agony till these dangerous poisons are driven out of your system. External remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.
What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine now sold by druggists everywhere, that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism.
No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is the one rheumatic remedy guaranteed by Red Cross Drug Store to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness and swelling and stop your rheumatic suffering or your money back.—Adv.

Muscle Shoals Question Before U. S. Congress

By Frank I. Weller
(Associated Press Farm Editor)
WASHINGTON (AP)—If Muscle Shoals, that 13-year-old firebrand of national legislation, ultimately is to be devoted to the interests of agriculture the stage would seem to be about as well set for that purpose as it has been at any time in the last decade.

Representative Quinn of Mississippi, new chairman of the Democratic controlled house military committee, has made disposition of the government's wartime power and nitrate plants along the Tennessee river in Alabama the first item of business.

Heaven Acts Quickly
With a similar show of speed President Hoover has transmitted to congress the recommendation of the joint federal-state Muscle Shoals commission that the property be operated, preferably by a farmer-owned, farmer-controlled corporation, for the low cost commercial production of fertilizer.

Intentionally, the administration is behind the plan. The commission, which was to whip federal and state views into accord while congress was in recess was organized at the instigation of the White House.
It stands four square for private operation under lease as against the consistently vetoed federal operation schemes of the past.
Administration forces in the house of the last congress fought stubbornly for private operation of the nitrate plants for capacity production of fertilizer, fertilizer ingredients and other chemical and electro-chemical products.

They agreed the government might keep control of the power plants so long as the lessee had prior right to buy all the energy required by the nitrate plants.
It was an effort to take the power question out of the Muscle Shoals middle and more or less a compromise with senate supporters of the

Mexico Disarms All Her Civilians By Calles' Decree

By C. P. Nutter
MEXICO CITY (AP)—The swagging, gun-toting Mexican of yesterday has been "deplotted" under a civilian disarmament program, the vigor of which surprises even Mexico.

The latest and most vigorous step in the "deplottization" program designed to take the guns away from civilian Mexico has been an ironclad order from the secretary of war, Plutarco E. Calles, to all military authorities to issue no more gun-carry-guard elements the rifles issued years ago during more active revolutionary days. It is argued that there no longer is any need for these reserve organizations, and that their ownership of guns is a constant temptation to the lawless within their ranks.

The result of the "deplottization," a word coined for the campaign begun two years ago, has been twofold. It has greatly reduced gunshot crimes and slightly increased knife crimes, for the criminal elements, relieved of their sidearms, have returned to their first love, knives.

SUNSET PASS by Zane Grey

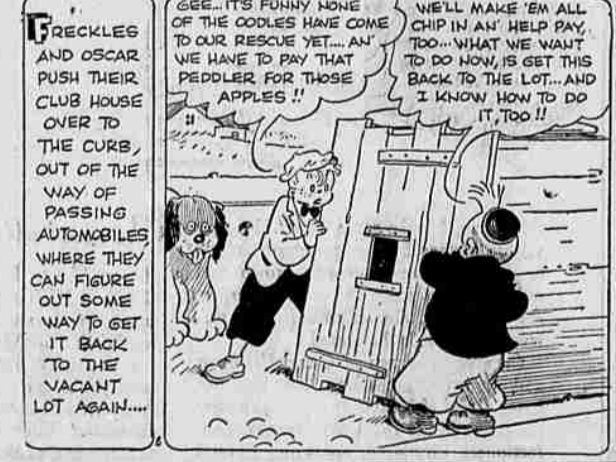

Chapter 32
"HOWDY, MISTER RED SCARF?"
"A MY'S happiness," flashed Rock. "I don't need to swear that, if you really know me, as you told Hebbitt."
"I met Amy the day I arrived in Wagonfongue and again yesterday. Dabb, she'd scalp me alive if she ever found out I told you this. . . . She's lonesome and unhappy. You've failed to win the best in her. Dabb, I don't suppose anyone ever dared to hit you this way. I don't care a d— how angry you get, if I can only make you see."
"You're making me see red, cowboy," replied Dabb, hoarsely. "But go ahead. I've not the nerve to pull a gun on you."
"Dabb, I always had a hunch you weren't a bad fellow, under your skin. You're rich now. Pay some attention to your young and pretty wife! Like you did before you married her! If you don't do this, sure as I'm sittin' here, Amy is goin' to the bad. . . . That's what I came to say and that's all!"
Rock ended abruptly, forced by the older man's torture.
The rancher wheeled in his chair, clawed at things on his desk, bent his head, and jerked it aloft, then with a growl and a snarl, he turned, and slower he lighted another cigar. When again he turned, his face was half-enveloped in smoke.
"You are a—guesser one—Rock," he stammered, with incoherence gradually clearing. "I don't know whether to order you out of my office—or to believe I'm the d— old-fool you make me out. . . . Any way, it's too sudden. You've hit me where I live. And it hurts like sixty."
"But you talk like a man. And I can't learn from any man."
"I'm not convinced, but I'm some staggered. If the truth turns out as straight as your talk—well, young man, you're on parole till I find out."
"Now since you've presumed to advise me on a delicate matter, I'll retaliate."
"Throw your gun, John. I'm ready to duck."
"Quit Preston!" cut out Dabb. "Why?" snapped Rock, just as sharply.
"I can't say."
"But why can't you say?"
"Some things just can't be said."
"Because they can't be proved."
"Exactly."
"I'll stick to Preston until these damned underhand rumors are proved—or until somebody suffers for startin' them."
"If you do any gun-throwing in defense of Preston, it'll ruin you."
"That depends. It's far-fetched, Dabb."
"Not at all!—If you're sweet on Thiry Preston," rejoined Dabb. "Between you and me—I am."
"So!—That accounts. I'll respect your confidence, Rock. She's a charming girl."
"I think I ought to tell you I've broken business relations with Preston. Preston had the small end of a cattle deal with me. I bought him out. And then I canceled all beef orders."
"How did Preston take that?" inquired Rock, after a moment.
"Kicked about the deal. But I took it he was relieved to get out of selling me more beef. My reason was good, but I could scarcely divulge it to him."
"Mind tellin' me?" asked Rock, leisurely rolling a cigarette.
"Yes, I'd mind. It would necessitate violating some one's confidence."
"By the way, Dabb, are you still head of the Territory Cattle Association?"
"No, I resigned. Hesbitt was elected."
"He never was a cowboy," said Rock, significantly. "Good day, Dabb. Reckon I'll meet up with you at the rodeo and the dance."
In the afternoon, rather late, Rock walked round to see Winter. He was received almost with open arms.
"The Prestons got in early. True, Thiry has been in half a dozen times," said Winter. "Asked for you every time!"
"Sol, you lyin' old geezer!"
"She came an' went." Sol went on. "But the last time, a little while ago, when she was with Amy. Then you bet she didn't ask about you. He! He! He! . . . I'll bet you a million Amy got in some good licks."
"Sol, you can laugh about that!" ejaculated Rock, with a groan.
Rock rushed out to the door.

Schedule Charity Tennis Match
SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Unusually warm winter weather led to the scheduling of a charity tennis match here for New Year's day. Dr. U. J. Busch and Garret Rogers, city doubles champions, were paired against W. O. Crandle and Paul Frederick.
