America Depends On Rest of World, A.A.U.W. Is Told

Using "Dependent America," by William C. Redfield, as a basis, to show the extent to which America is dependent on foreign countries, and the economic crisis which can be caused by an upset in international trade, Miss Bessie Pettigrew and Miss Alice Klippel spoke before the American Association of University Women Saturday at a luncheon at the La Grande hotel. Miss Helen Williams presented two piano solos, "The Island Spell," by Frank Ireland, and "The Rocking Horse," from the "Kaldescope Suite," by Goossens, both modern English composers.

Miss Eleanor Vernon was chairman of the program which was presented by the International Relations group of the association, and was the final speaker on the program. Economic crises in Germany cause Yakima, Wash., to suffer, Miss Pettigrew stated to illustrate America's dependence, and the second largest market for Yakima apples is found in Germany. Therefore, Mr. Redfield, who was secretary of commerce from 1911-1915, believes that it is necessary to keep all nations happy.

Seventy-five per cent of the rubber goods used in the world are made in America, Miss Pettigrew pointed out, and 76 per cent of the total output of rubber of the world is used in the United States in making the rubber goods, but although rubber is considered an American industry and gives employment and livelihood to thousands of American people, 72 per cent of the rubber is produced on rubber plantations controlled by Great Britain, Miss Pettigrew also illustrated America's dependence on other countries for products used in making iron. Forty different commodities are needed for steel, 24 of which must be imported from foreign countries, and 57 foreign lands furnish the commodities for making steel.

Peaceful international relations are necessary, Miss Pettigrew stated, since the United States, in order to find a market for her products, cannot see the other countries of the world bankrupt.

Miss Klippel illustrated America's dependence, using the leather business as an example, and she stated that a "shoe is an international product. A pair of boots is a league of nations," and since the necessities of life are bound up with other nations, the wealth of the United States must be used well to avoid making enemies. The wealth of America brings to the average citizen the commodities of the world, and America must work with other countries to preserve a balance, Mr. Redfield believes.

Mrs. Lawrence Hull was program chairman. Mrs. Robert Eakin announced the Carlton tours, which will take members of the association throughout the United States to the International Federation of University Women in Edinburgh next summer, with a fee accruing to the fellowship fund of the association for each tour sold by a member.

Miss Mabel Morton, membership committee chairman, announced that Miss Dorothy Steimle, of Oregon State college and New York university; and Mrs. E. R. Quinn, of the University of Oregon, are new members of the organization.

Miss Helen Moor, president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Oscar Warnock, treasurer, gave her report, and Mrs. W. A. Zurbrick, chairman of fellowship work, reported on the pre-Christmas linen sale which was successful.
