Convicts and plantation workers are being moved to the banks to prevent a complete inundation of the section.

Elsewhere in the delta, particularly along the flood-riddled east banks of the Tallahatchie river, residents admitted defeat in their month-old fight to keep the levees intact. Manned on water covered farms, or crowded into inadequate quarters in congested, half-flooded towns, they waited for promised boats to take them out to high, dry land.

In answer to calls for aid, the Red Cross and the coast guard combined efforts to alleviate suffering. Twelve staff workers of the national Red Cross were en route to the area to take charge of relief measures and the coast guard eight crew members and eight motor lifeboats hurried to the zone from Chicago and the Gulf coast.

400 OREGONIANS FAIL TO COLLECT REFUNDS

SALEM, Jan. 19 (AP)—Two hundred persons in Oregon have failed to collect refunds due them on 1929 intangible tax payments, principally through changing addresses during the two-year period between the collection of the tax and its refunding in October, 1931. Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state, said today. He was authorized by the 1931 legislature to return the intangibles receipts paid in 1929.

The state department mailed the warrants to sue addresses as were supplied by the state tax commission and the commission had to rely on the information given on the blanks filled out when payment was made to the state. If the payee had moved to another address during the interim, and forwarding instructions had not been supplied either to the commission or to the post office where he had received his mail, the secretary's letter was non-deliverable at the old address and many of such envelopes have been returned to the secretary of state's office.

The amount involved in the uncollected warrants is $7,802.43, which is less than 1 per cent of the total refund authorized of $932,110.21.

Cage Rules Are Discussed Here Monday Night

Discussion of basketball rules featured a meeting of coaches, school men, officials and others interested at the La Grande High school last night, the first meeting of its kind held locally. Meetings also are planned for Feb. 1 and Feb. 15.

Coches Bob Quinn, of the Normal school, led the discussion. Representatives of several schools were in attendance.

Two rules of interest to basketball fans as well as to players were clarified. When a player is fouled in the act of shooting, and makes the field goal, then only the foul is allowed. If he doesn't make the field goal, then two free throws are allowed. The other governs interpretation of fouls when two players are after the ball. The rules provide that it shall be no foul if both players are in favorable position to get the ball, but if one player is not in favorable position, then he shall be penalized.

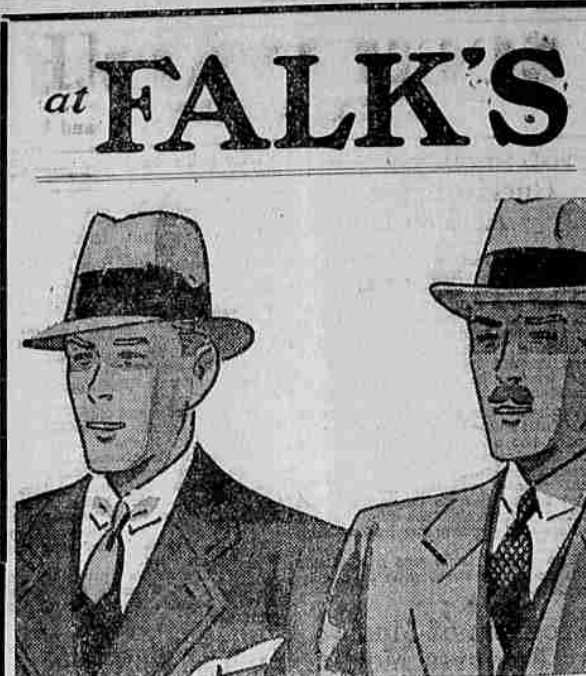

Other rules discussed included the following:

On the tip-off at center or on jump ball, neither man may touch the ball until it reaches the highest point. The penalty is to give the ball to the opposing side out of bounds.

The rules provide that "due allowance" for running with the ball should be considered carefully by officials. This was interpreted to apply specifically to cases where a player is running when he takes a pass and is unable to stop immediately. It leaves the matter largely up to the referee to decide whether he took too many steps.

Officials were warned not to blow their whistles merely to prevent fouls. Also, the rules are to be strictly enforced providing against coaching from the sidelines by either coaches or players, and concerning talking to others in the game by a substitute. The substitute may talk to the man he is relieving, since neither is officially in the game until the play is resumed.

Also, when a man is holding the ball while being guarded, he may not put it longer than five seconds without it becoming a jump ball.

Among the members of the board in attendance was Mrs. Walter M. Pierce, of La Grande.

According to reports received in La Grande the selection of Mr. Richards was influenced to a great extent by the fact that he is a technically trained livestock man and that the Union station is primarily devoted to livestock.

UNIFICATION BOARD NAMED

PORTLAND, Jan. 19 (AP)—Appointment of a committee to study out plans for the proposed unification of all institutions of higher learning in Oregon was made here Monday by C. L. Starr, president of the state board of higher education, at the conclusion of a meeting of the board.

This committee, of which Starr is ex-officio member, is composed of Albert Burch, Medford; B. F. Irvine, Portland; E. Pease, The Dalles; and E. C. Sammons, Portland.

Details of the proposed unification were not discussed at the meeting, although at the time the survey was completed last year it was suggested the entire system be consolidated under the direction of one man to have the title of "chancellor."

It is assumed as the result of several board discussions, that in event the unification plan is carried out, a chancellor will be selected from some point outside Oregon. Each of the present institutions, under that arrangement, would remain under the direction of its president.

The board agreed to restrict what it described as "contacts" the large institutions maintain with high school students. It was decided that the state board issue a booklet on all institutions of higher learning wherein the high school graduate may obtain a definite and non-competitive idea as to what the various schools offer, and that special catalogs be issued by each school with each course of study marked plainly as either a "public" or "service" course so the high school graduate may properly select a course.

Faculty people of the large institutions may not make addresses in high schools; the board agreed, unless they have a special invitation from the school and unless the high school pays incidental expenses.

Holding Companies To Be Investigated

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The house today directed its interstate commerce committee to investigate public utility holding and trust companies to determine their ownership and control.

The inquiry would affect only companies operating in interstate commerce.

The Rayburn resolution authorizing the inquiry was adopted over the protest of Representative Cooper of Ohio and Underhill of Massachusetts. Republicans, who claimed it would be expensive.

Rayburn said it was hoped the investigation would be concluded by the end of this session. The inquiry, he said, was impartial.

Simplicity Of Auction Bridge Play Emphasized

Emphasizing the simplicity of the duplicate auction bridge tournament, which opens tomorrow evening at 7:45 at the Sacajawea Inn, C. H. Devine, in charge of arrangements, states that partners sit at the same table during the evening and play the hand which are passed to them, while Mr. Devine and his assistants manipulate the details of passing the cards from table to table.

The tournament, which will be held Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Jan. 20 and 21, is sponsored by the American Legion auxiliary and a large committee of ticket sellers announce that a large number of tickets have been sold and that the prospects are that the competition for the prizes will be keen.

Mr. Devine will be assisted by a group of members of the American Legion auxiliary, appointed by Mrs. Charles Graham, president. They will arrange for seating the players and assist in distributing the cards.

Both Mr. Devine and members of the auxiliary urge bridge players not to miss the tournament simply because they feel that they are not sufficiently schooled in the science of bridge, because the tournament will be both interesting and educational and all players regardless of their proficiency will have a chance to be among the winners.

The same tournament system is being used in La Grande as in Portland and in distributing the cards, which are passed to them, while Mr. Devine and his assistants manipulate the details of passing the cards from table to table.

TEACHERS' SALARIES CUT

PORTLAND, Jan. 19 (AP)—A temporary salary reduction for teachers in Portland schools, amounting to as much as 25 per cent for a four-month period, is being considered by the board of education. The board said this step must be taken to absorb a $367,000 deficit, attributed to tax delinquencies.

The deficit was reported to be $450,000, but only $367,000 is chargeable against the payroll.

The board expects to wipe out the deficit entirely before Jan. 1, 1933. A total of $64,000 in savings is in sight for this year.

FEMININE COACH CARRIES HOPES OF BOYS' NET TEAM

LOMAX, Tex. (AP)—Despite the loss of six lettermen by graduation, the Lomax Hornets are confident of retaining the county basketball championship won last year.

The underdog cause for the optimism is the fact that the team again will be coached by Miss Aral Phillips, attractive 23-year-old principal of the local school.

Miss Phillips is entering her fifth year of coaching a boys' basketball team. In the last three years her teams have won 41 games while losing only five.

PORTLAND, Jan. 19 (AP)—Joseph W. Powley of Toronto, Can., white-haired chief of 2,225,000 Odd Fellows over the world, was an Oregon visitor today, the first time in 25 years the organization has had a man in an official call on Oregon members.

Powley will remain in Portland until Wednesday morning when he will fly to Los Angeles. Officially he is being here to attend the Odd Fellows represented in Oregon.

Country Club to Expand

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Mission Hills country club has arranged to purchase 18 acres adjoining its golf course for a new clubhouse and parking grounds. Cost of the land will be paid for out of earnings of the club, whose present holdings are entirely free of debt.

This Game of Golf

By O. B. Kehler

It is possible that a good many other people interested in golf have shared a wish which I candidly confess—to see, and possibly to play, a golf course designed according to the ideas of Bobby Jones, who (as is pretty well known) has extremely definite ideas of his own as to what a golf course should be, as a test of the championship caliber.

It now develops that this may be done, within a year or a bit more, and that Bobby further has decided that a thorough test of championship golf may at the same time be a fair and not too rigorous course for the average player and the frank duffer.

At Augusta, Ga., there has been organized the Augusta National Golf club, planned as a golf club with a national and international membership, with Robert T. Jones Jr., as president; and Dr. Allister Mackenzie, the famous Scottish golf architect, as designer of the course. Bobby and the excellent doctor have worked out the design together; construction has been started and before the end of 1932, in all probability, there will be play over the layout.

"I suppose no two people ever agreed better on a golf course," says Bobby. "Dr. Mackenzie and I tried each other out thoroughly. Our ideas seem to be synonymous."

The Layout

And here's a brief summary of the Jones (and the Mackenzie) idea of what a golf course ought to be:

Eight holes of the long two-shot variety, par 4, ranging from 410 yards to 440 yards from the championship tees. You would be sure to find plenty of holes of that character on a Bobby Jones course. They are the "backbone" of any layout; Bobby's favorite type.

Only two holes of the drive-and-putt type, 340 and 360 yards, both in the second hole, and neither likely to be done over by the big driver into the contemptuously styled "drive-and-kick" hole which enables so many sluggish-and-pitchers to score below 70 and play on even terms with really first-rank golfers who possess all the shots.

One-shot, holes, four of them, spaced to afford play with the mashie-niblick or spade (130 yards), the mashie (150 yards), the iron (170 yards), and the big iron or the spade (200 yards).

"None of these 240 and 250-yard one-shot holes," says Bobby. "I never have cared for brassie shots off the tee, or driver shots to a green—unless from the fairway."

"The brassie and the spoon fundamentally are clubs for a second shot, not a drive. The longest of our one-shot holes is 200 yards from the tournament tee, and 180 from the regular tee."

Bonus For Long Drives

The four par 5 holes are of 470, 485, 490 and 510 yards from the

"I have requested General Dawes to accept the position of president of the new reconstruction corporation."

"It is gratifying to state that he has accepted."

"Mr. Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, will also be chairman of the board of the reconstruction corporation."

"In order that we may preserve the non-partisan character of the institution, the other directors will be chosen after consultation with leaders of both political parties upon completion of the legislation."

"I announce General Dawes' name at this time because of the required change in plan as to the chairmanship of the delegation to the arms conference. Otherwise, General Dawes would be leaving for Europe tomorrow."

Stimson Selected

The president's second statement said:

"In view of the change in General Dawes' plans, Secretary Stimson has undertaken the chairmanship of the delegation to the arms conference at Geneva."

"The secretary will not attend the opening meeting but will take part in the work of the commission after the preliminaries have been disposed of."

"Ambassador Gibson will be acting chairman of the delegation."

In announcing these changes, the chief executive spoke quietly and quickly, but with a smile.

As he concluded, he glanced up at the correspondents, smiled broadly, and said:

"That is all the news there is today."

Dawes was at the state department talking with Mr. Stimson when the presidential announcement came.
