Schaefer Seeking 3-Cushion Title

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Jake Schaefer, colorful king of the world's 18.2 ballline, reaches tonight for another crown in the 1932 world's championship three cushion tournament.

He is to meet the veteran Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, a former world's champion.

Schaefer has been in the spotlight since he astonished the billiard world in 1921 by defeating Willie Hoppe for the 18.2 ballline crown.

He was an interested spectator at the opening three-cushion games last night and watched Arthur Thurnbull, the defending champion, and Johnny Layton, ten times a king, score their first victories.

Yankees Likely To Make Peace With Holdouts

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Of all the holdouts, real and alleged, who have bobbed up since the baseball front offices began mailing out contracts a fortnight ago, those who went to New York probably have the best chance of making their arguments stick.

It is no secret that the Ruppertmen are gunning for the 1932 American league pennant, and the consensus is they will not let a few thousand dollars stand between them and a shot at the flag.

Since the announcement the Philadelphia Athletics would stand pat with last year's lineup, the Yanks feel they have at least an even chance of beating Connie Mack's veteran team to the wire next year.

Ben Chapman, who advised the Yankees yesterday he was not satisfied with the contract offered him, was the sparkplug of the 1931 Yankee attack. He didn't hit as high as several of his teammates, but he was the leading base stealer of the past year.

There is no certainty that some of the other holdouts will encounter any difficulty—the difference between $80,000 and $70,000 a year.

Yes, helpful as they are, they must be used with discrimination. Not every child of 7 years likes any one book from a list for 7-year-olds.

One child will love all the fairy tales and animal stories, another will find these uninteresting and delight in stories about actual happenings. He will be interested, perhaps, in nature books or stories about locomotives, boats and steam shovels.

One child may find terrifying a story that another finds amusing or merely pleasantly thrilling.

To know the right books for your child even when you have before you a most carefully compiled list of those which are suitable for his age you must know him.

You must take into account his interests, the kind of imaginative play which he enjoys and remember what stories have delighted him in the past.

It is a good idea also to experiment now and then with new types of stories. In this way you may awaken whole new train of appreciation and curiosities.

With the aid of a list it is sometimes possible to buy a child's books over the telephone although this is only a safe procedure when one already is familiar with the type of story which a given author writes.

In buying books which represent a new departure for the child, it is best to look them over carefully before deciding on them.

Don't buy more than one or two books of the sort you are not already sure will appeal.

Chats With Parents

By Alice Judson Peale

To every parent lists of reading material graded for different age groups now are available.

Schools, libraries and various parent organizations get out excellent lists of this sort. They are an invaluable aid in buying books for children and in selecting the proper reading for the story hour.

NECK GLANDS

It is not an uncommon experience to find parents unduly alarmed over the discovery of what they term swollen glands in the necks of their children.

Many hundreds of years of experience have led us to associate such swellings with scrofula, or tuberculosis.

Note the less, it is now known that many other causes besides infection with the bacillus of tuberculosis may lead to swelling of the lymph glands in the neck and head.

The lymphatic system is composed of many minute spaces and channels between the cells in the body, and of many glands located in various places in the body. It differs, in children, from that in adults.

In the young the lymphatic system may be said to be more active and more open.

This is to be seen in the frequent enlargement and overgrowth of the tonsils (a part of the lymphatic system) common in children, but rare in adults.

Any active or chronic irritation, or the absorption into the system of toxic substances, may cause swelling in the lymph glands draining the affected portion of the body.

Head lice, for example, may cause the lymph glands in the back of the neck to swell.

When the tonsils are diseased the lymph glands just behind the angle of the jaw may become enlarged.

In catarrh of the middle ear, in a young child, it is not uncommon to find a little gland, otherwise not readily felt, over the bony prominence behind the ear.

Finally, not all palpable glands, i. e., glands which may be felt, necessarily indicate disease or infection. Children differ as to the size of their lymph glands.

When, however, lymph glands have become acutely enlarged and painful, such a condition indicates that the glands are opposing the invasion of the body by noxious agents.

HOT LAKE PERSONALS

By Harriet MacDonald (Observer Correspondent)

HOT LAKE (Special)—L. H. Gray, of Seattle, Wash., who is a manager of a store in that city, is here taking baths and treatments.

The official cow tester for Union and Wallowa counties, Ralph Robinson, of Union, is making a good recovery from a recent operation.

Kenneth Grant, of La Grande, is spending a few days here taking baths.

William Healey and W. E. Mendenhall, business men of Boise, spent a few days in the sanatorium last week resting. Mr. Mendenhall expects to return soon. Bert Reed, also from Boise, Idaho, is a new arrival.

Miss Pauline Bauer, who has been the nurse for the Billy Pih for the most of his three years, is leaving for her home in Denver, Colo., on Wednesday. Miss Bauer, by her long residence at the sanatorium, has won many friends who will always remember her pleasantly. Before her departure, Miss Bauer will visit her friends, M. H. Herring and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gekeler in La Grande.

Jack Hamby, of Cascade, Idaho, has just had a thrilling experience. Being overtaken by a serious illness, in the mountainous region near Cascade with no way of getting out, his messengers were dispatched who secured the services of an airplane on Saturday. By this means a landing was effected and the patient brought to the hospital here. He is now resting comfortably preparatory for a major operation.

A distressing accident befell an elderly Cove woman on Saturday. Mrs. Eva Millman, mother of Mrs. Joe Goyette, fell and broke her right arm.

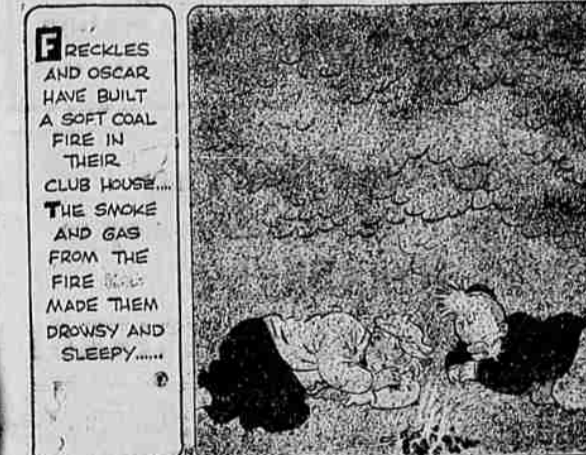

John Fagerstedt, of Weiser, Idaho, who is a patient in the hospital, has been much cheered by a visit from his wife who is spending a few days with him.

Mrs. C. Y. Beale, of Ladd Canyon, and Roy Baker, of Cove, have been recent departures from the hospital.

Mrs. Francis Greulich and her small son left in good health and spirits on Monday for their home in Baker. Mr. and Mrs. Greulich are former residents of La Grande.

John McLean who has been in the hospital for sometime, is making a visit at his home at Burns.

Farm Leaders Prepare to Fight Uncle Sam's Auto and Gas Taxes
By Frank L. Weller
WASHINGTON (AP)—Immediately after the tariff debate in congress, organized agriculture is scheduled to let loose against a legislative measure one of the most powerful broadsides it ever has delivered in defense of the American farmer.
Representative Bailey, floor leader of the Democratic majority in the house, has suggested that among other things to meet the treasury deficit there may have to be a general sales tax on automobiles and a federal tax on gasoline.
Every national farm convention in the country has gone on record against either tax. The suggestion was scarcely an hour old when the National Grange had asked the house to appoint a committee for a hearing.
It is expected to be backed by every other agricultural organization represented in Washington for, contrary to precedent, all stand as one to expect farm legislation by the general assembly.
On the theory that a federal gasoline tax would mean double taxation, the grange has resolved against it on no fewer than six separate occasions.
In 1930 there was about one passenger automobile to every farm and one truck to every eight farms. In many states the rural population is paying a gasoline tax, a license tax, a property tax and buying driver's permits.
The former runs from 2 to 6 cents a gallon, most of the farm states falling into the 4 to 5-cent bracket. Federal state gasoline tax receipts were estimated at $404,000,000 in 1930. On that basis a probable federal tax of 2 cents a gallon would amount to $250,000,000.
Farmers consider automobiles and trucks a necessity, just as they do the hoe and the harrow, and are said to be gravely opposed to either a federal gasoline tax or a sales tax. They point out that motor taxes of all kinds cost $1,388,000,000 in 1930.
With state and local revenues depending to such a material degree upon farm property organized agriculture does not feel that it should be asked to shoulder an increased share in the cost of federal government.

Hen Continues In Role Of One Of Best Assets
PORTLAND (AP)—The hen continues west's greatest wealth producer. West's greatest wealth producer, bringing in nearly $60,000,000 annually to Oregon, Washington and Idaho poultrymen. This figure is based on the report of the federal census bureau.
E. J. Dixon, manager of the Pacific Cooperative Poultry Producers, an organization which confines its activities principally to Oregon and Clark county, Washington, reported that in 1931 Oregon hens outdid themselves and the association handled 304,075 cases of eggs of 20 dozen each, the largest volume in the history of the organization.
In 1930, the previous biggest year, 291,416 cases were handled. In 1929 when Dixon took over the management of the cooperative only 49,070 cases of eggs passed through the plant.
The government estimates that out of the $60,000,000 income from poultry, only half is derived from eggs. Eggs, sold mainly in the east, account for the other half. Nineteen million chickens in the three states produce this wealth each year.
The figures reveal that 2131 carloads of eggs were shipped to New York, Philadelphia and Boston in 1931. This means that roughly computed, hens of the Pacific Northwest, working eight hours a day, Sundays excepted, produce a carload of eggs an hour.
In addition to the eggs, millions of fryers and other types of cookers are shipped to distant markets.
There are 167,000 farms in these three states raising poultry on a more or less commercial scale. On 129,000 of these poultry raising is a major project.
