Helen Hicks Has 100 Sweaters In Golfing Wardrobe

(This is another of a series of the personalities and achievements of young American sports stars in the 1932 spotlight.)

By Edward J. Neil NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—A few years ago when Helen Hicks' father needed a golfing partner, he used to take the young lady along with him for company. Now she takes him out and charitably helps him polish up his game.

She was twelve then and didn't like golf. Now it dominates her life. She can tell you offhand how many strokes she took on any hole in any tournament during the last five years. Today she is the national women's golf champion, 20 years old, a stocky, powerful young lady with a booming laugh that has rung out over most of the great courses of the country. She is five feet six inches tall and weighs 140 pounds. If she could ever get away from her favored occupation, chocolate cake and milk, she believes she could reduce. She never has been able to.

Plays Orthodox Game Her game is orthodox, good form all around. She hits magnificent tee shots. Improvement in her approach game brought her into the championship class last year. Glenna Collett Vase, six times national champion, and her greatest rival, is one of her best friends. Maureen Orcutt is her jinx, can usually beat her just by tossing a putter on the nearest green.

Helen gets a big thrill out of college football, reads a great deal, likes to fly but doesn't want to learn how, plays basketball with her high school alumni teams at scores most of the points. She drives a big car fast but the motorcycle policemen on Long Island know her and wave her on. She's a good trapezist and swimmer and dotes on contract bridge and backgammon, dancing and sport clothes. She has 100 sweaters. She can't sing and isn't interested in music. She isn't engaged but has one favorite boy friend.

Played "Hooker" After the golf bug hit her, she'd didn't feel well, get off for the afternoon, and play in tournaments. Next day the principal would see her name in the papers and congratulate her. She belongs to three golf clubs and likes to play the toughest, Lido. Her usual exclamation when she misses a shot is "Aw nerds." Then she laughs. Mistakes never bother her.

Everyone but her mother and father call her "Billie." Her sister was called "Bill." Helen is the younger. When she gets restless at home on Long Island she gets a club and practices shots around the front lawn. Her father usually follows her. He tears holes in the lawn and swears. Helen never disturbs more than a blade of grass. She borrowed a putter from a famous player last year and she believes it won the national championship for her. She was heart-broken when he asked for it back. But she never indicated how much she'd like to have kept it. If he reads this he'll know for the first time.

Seeks the Arrest Of Wife's Suitor

ST. HELENS, Ore., Jan. 22 (AP)—While Mrs. Patricia Cavin, 20, was safe at the home of her mother, Mrs. Joe Hobeleski, today, Columbia county officers were on the watch for Herman Reiten for whose arrest John Cavin, the young woman's husband, swore out a warrant yesterday. Sheriff Oscar G. Weed said he had not yet seen the warrant, was unaware of its exact charge and that no intensive search for Reiten had yet been launched.

Patricia Sobieski and Cavin were married in Vancouver this week. The girl's mother, officers said, sought to have the marriage annulled and yesterday she and Reiten allegedly induced Mrs. Cavin to return to her parents' home on the plea that her sister was ill.

Reiten, who had been living at the Sobieski home, officers said, had been a suitor for the girl's affections and Cavin obtained a warrant for his arrest.

IDLE BLACKS ROAM CONGO

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP)—Because work has been stopped on the Unshumba railway and road construction in Ruanda-Urundi has been abandoned, 1800 natives are unemployed in the Belgian Congo. They are wandering beyond their districts and Europeans are demanding protection.

"Squeeze" Play Favorite With Bridge Experts

(This is the third and last of a series of articles on master winning plays, as distinguished from bidding, emphasized in the recent Lenz-Culbertson test of systems of bidding in contract bridge.)

By Tom O'Neill NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—The squeeze play, which takes its name from baseball, is a favorite with the contract bridge master. It involves playing a long string of trumps to compel an opponent to make discards in other suits and unguard high honors. Sidney S. Lenz, who was defeated in the recent great contract match, gave the play its name, but one of its best exponents in the match was his former pupil and an opponent in the series, Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

On one hand she was doubled in a contract for four hearts, but made five through the squeeze. The hand: North—S—7 4 H—8 D—Q J 10 8 6 3 C—10 8 4 3 West—S—K 10 3 3 H—Q 10 6 5 4 C—Q 6 5 2 South—S—Q J 9 5 H—K 4 D—K 6 5 C—A K J 9 Mrs. Culbertson (east)—S—A 8 6 H—A J 9 7 3 2 D—A 7 2 C—7

Both the bidding by east and west and the double by south were justified by holdings. South led the king of clubs, and when he noticed the queen in dummy, led a low diamond, which was won by east with the ace. East returned the diamonds and trumped in dummy, then finessed the queen of hearts, south winning with the king. South returned his valueless low trump as the least of evils. East won and led her last diamond, trumping in dummy. Then she led a low club and trumped in her own hand. Now came the squeeze.

Mrs. Culbertson played her last three trumps. In order to protect the ace of clubs south discarded the nine and five of spades and the club knave. Had he discarded the ace of clubs the queen would have been good in dummy. On the tenth trick, Mrs. Culbertson discarded the queen of clubs in dummy. On the eleventh trick she led the ace of spades and followed it with a low spade to the king. South's queen and knave of spades dropped on the ace and king, his ace of clubs died on the thirteenth trick, won by the six of spades in east's hand on the lead of the trey followed it with a low spade to the king in dummy.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming. Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor. Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
