

UNOFFICIAL WIN GOES TO KINGFISH

No Decision in Fight With Dempsey But Poll of Writers is Taken.

By William Weekes (Associated Press Sports Writer) CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (AP)—Jack Dempsey's promised land, in which he had visioned another chance at the heavy-weight championship of the world, today seemed to have been only a mirage.

Last night in the Chicago stadium, before a record smashing crowd of 28,332 spectators who left $74,199.95 at the gates, Dempsey in the opinion of a big majority of newspapermen and about the same percentage of the customers, took a beating from King Levinsky, the socking Jewish boy from Chicago's ghetto.

Levinsky Unofficial Winner The bout was billed as an exhibition and there was no official decision. A poll of writers at the ring side, however, gave Levinsky 18 votes, two for Dempsey and four called it a draw. The ovation the grinning Kingfish received as he left the ring indicated that the crowd felt the same way about it.

King's heavy six and one-half pounds and nearly 18 years, Dempsey was the same scowling, glowering Dempsey who knocked out Jess Willard, Georges Carpentier and Luis Firpo—until he went into action. He came out weaving and bobbing, but slowly, and Levinsky who radiated confidence from the time he climbed into the ring, met his, took everything the former champion had to offer, and it seemed, gave back just a little bit more.

Jack's Stemm Vanishes Dempsey had plenty on his vicious belts to the body in the first two rounds and the cocky King took a few and then held on. Starting with the third, there was less steam in the punches that used to lay opponents low, and Levinsky cut loose and hammered both hands to Dempsey's head and body and built up the margin that convinced writers and spectators. Dempsey showed distinct signs of wear after the first round when he stalked to his corner.

After the other three rounds the stark became a shuffle. Levinsky, stringy of leg and in no way waded by the former champion, even went so far in the fourth, as to stop almost contemptuously as Dempsey plodded around him seeking an opening, and besooked the Manassa man to come on and fight—just as Dempsey had urged Gene Tunney to come on and fight in that uproarious seventh round at Soldier Field in 1927.

Huge Crowd on Hand Regardless of whether he can ever reach the point of engaging in a real battle, Dempsey demonstrated he is still a champion at the box office. The crowd was the greatest ever to watch an indoor fight, and the gate was gratifying to the stadium corporation and the boxers. Dempsey had the option of 60 per cent of the receipts and paying Levinsky $7500, or he might take 45 per cent and leave the Kingfish 15 per cent.

Dempsey's only comment was: "He's a good boy and a dangerous

WASHINGTON

Washington's letters to prominent men aided greatly in massing sentiment for a stronger union.

By NEA Service The "father of his country" frankly despaired of the turbulent political condition of the United States in the years immediately following the close of the revolution. "Something must be done or the fabric will fall, for it is certainly tottering," he declared. He was kept hard at work recouping his personal losses suffered during the war, partly through neglect of his estates and also because of a depreciation of paper money which cost him $50,000. However, he found time to repeatedly write to prominent men urging that steps be taken to form an indissoluble union. These letters aided greatly in massing sentiment for a stronger and sounder government.

The rebellion of Daniel Shays and his army of 2000 farmers in Massachusetts with the resultant destruction of property, led Washington to decide that radical reform was necessary.

puncher." Levinsky, more cocky than ever said: "Aw, he ain't so hot, but he can still punch. His left hook is good. But the King can take them." The semi-final bout, a 10 rounder in the national boxing association light heavyweight elimination tournament, resulted in an upset victory for George Nichols, a stiff punching southerner from Buffalo, N. Y., over Billy Jones, Philadelphia negro. Jones was a topheavy favorite to reach the final of the tournament, but was knocked down twice for nine-counts and although he finished well, failed to overcome Nichols' lead.

Robin Reed, Greek Wrestle to Draw

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 19 (AP)—Robin Reed, claimant of the world's 145-pound wrestling title and Pete Metropoulos, wrestled two hours to a draw here last night. Each took a fall, Reed taking the first after one hour and five minutes wrestling. Reed started with a series of his famous whip whistlocks, then shifted to a hammerlock, finally returning to the whippers, and after ten of these which sent Metropoulos air-planning across the ring from one side to the other, Reed finally dropped him for the fall. Metropoulos took the second fall on a flying double winglock in 33 minutes, 3 seconds after Reed apparently had the upper hand. Neither was able to score another fall in the remaining 21 minutes.

Henry Jones beat Pat Ragnin, two out of three falls in the five round semi-windup.

He presided over the Constitutional Convention in 1787.

Washington was chosen one of Virginia's five delegates to the constitutional convention, which opened May 13, 1787, in Philadelphia, to "render the federal constitution adequate to the exigencies of the union." He was unanimously chosen to preside over the convention and his influence did as much, if not more, than any other force in bringing the delegates to an agreement and to obtain ratification of the constitution. The electors chosen in 1789, were unanimous in their choice of Washington as first president of the United States. He demurred at first, distrustful of his own abilities, but finally accepted. He received congressional notification of the honor of April 16, 1789.

Braves Count On Oscar Eckhardt From the Seals

By the Associated Press Talk about Boston Braves' newcomers and Art Shires immediately comes to mind but the Braves picked up at least one other youngster they think will add as much, if not more, punch than the great man himself. He is Oscar Eckhardt, a big outfielder purchased from the San Francisco Missions of the Pacific Coast league. Born in Yorktown, Texas, in 1904, Eckhardt played ball at Texas university and they with Amarillo in 1928. He batted .367 that year and .354 with Seattle of the Coast league in 1929. Back in the Texas league with Beaumont in 1930 he amassed an average of .379. That took him back to the Coast league with the Missions and he responded with a mark of .369. If he can come within 40 points of that average with the Braves he'll be plenty useful.

STOCK MARKET IRREGULARLY HIGHER TODAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—A swiftly moving early advance in stocks was largely cancelled by subsequent profit-taking today. Opening gains of $1 to $7, made while shorts were stampeding to cover on news of the stock exchange's rule affecting borrowed shares, brought a flood of profit-taking. The market withstood such sales until the last half hour, when pressure became more pronounced and what was left of the rise dwindled rapidly.

To Relieve Catarrh And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that frequently effects relief after other treatments fail. Sufferers, who could scarcely hear, have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. So if you know someone who is troubled with catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh, cut this out and hand it to him, and you may save the poor sufferer from total deafness. The medicine can be prepared at home as follows: Secure from Red Cross Drug Store or your druggist a 1 oz. bottle of Parmitin (Double Strength). Take this home, and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take one tablespoon four times a day. Parmitin is used this way to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, and also to correct any excess secretions in the middle ear. The results it gives are nearly always quick and effective. Every person who has catarrh should give Parmitin a trial. —Adv.
