Chats With Parents

THE UNDERLYING PATTERN By Alice Judson Peale

The newer psychology has made us sure that as children learn to feel and behave in relation to their parents and brothers and sisters so, essentially, will they feel and behave all their lives toward the rest of the world.

A harsh, dominating father causes his son to reflect this fact toward all that represents authority. Toward his employer he will be either subservient, with an undercurrent of resentment, or he will be openly belligerent on the slightest provocation.

If his elders failed to give him the protection and care which were his due, later he may express his disappointment in them by flouting community standards or by an attitude of destructive criticism toward all government and law and order.

A child who has been capriciously loved and made to feel jealous probably will be incapable of serene steadfast affection toward a mate.

Always there will be suspicion, storms, scenes, reconciliations and perhaps infidelities as revenge against the loved one.

If father and mother impressed him over much with the seriousness of his childish wrongdoings, especially if they let him remain for long periods under the cloud of disapproval, he will be haunted always by an incommensurate sense of guilt and inferiority.

If he felt profoundly that he was unloved, his whole moral development may be crippled by an underlying hate against a world that denied him what he needed so painfully. It is easy for such a child to become a criminal.

On the other hand, his deprivation may find expression in a feeling that the world is a dreary, hollow place where every satisfaction quickly turns to nothingness.

OLD WEST POINT ACE HEADS ARMY POST IN DIXIE

FORT McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)—The oldest living captain of a West Point football team, Major General Edward L. King, is the new commander of the fourth corps area with headquarters here.

General King was captain of the Army football team twice, in 1894 and 1895. Football brought him back to West Point in 1903 as head coach, but the San Francisco earthquake interrupted, and he was sent to the west coast to be in charge of a rescue camp.

"Tortoise" and "Turtle"

In popular usage these terms are more or less interchangeable. Strictly speaking, tortoise refers to members of the order which lives on land and turtles to the aquatic species.

RASKOB SAYS G. O. P. EYING REFERENDUM for solution of the prohibition problem is concerned, Raskob said he presented it to the national committee as a plan that would avoid giving the Democratic south "a slap in the face," and because he figured the Republicans might propose such a plan themselves.

Accuses Republicans Raskob charged Republicans are attempting to split the Democratic party by efforts to create sectional feeling. The Republicans, he added, "will say anything to create friction in our ranks."

He took occasion to deny that he ever had discussed with former Governor Alfred E. Smith the question of present possibilities.

"A great many people feel that because Smith nominated me for the office I hold and because we are both of the same religious faith, that we are working hand-in-glove. I say sincerely that I never have discussed candidacies with him, nor he with me," Raskob said.

HURLEY SAYS RASKOB SLANDERS WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—President Hoover's economic and prohibition views crashed into the pre-convention presidential race spotlight today.

Secretary Hurley said Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee and his associates were "slandering and misrepresenting the president" and were not in a position to give the executive's prohibition views.

Speaker Garner, who is being pushed for the Democratic presidential nomination, said at a press conference that the president had "led us into the greatest panic the country or world has ever known."

The war secretary's statement was made in reply to a speech by Raskob last night in New York in which the Democratic chairman said he had "good information that President Hoover will run on a prohibition referendum platform if his party should adopt such a platform."

Newspapermen asked for comment. "Mr. Raskob is in a position to speak much more accurately of the amount of money that he and his associates have spent slandering and misrepresenting the president of the United States than he is as to the president's views on the 18th amendment," the secretary replied.

"It appears a little far-fetched for the chairman of the Democratic national committee to attempt to interpret the views of the president on the subject."

Not Speaking For Hoover Asked if he was speaking for the president, the secretary smiled slightly and said: "No, I'm not speaking for the president."

Garner's statement was made when he was asked to comment on a speech by Assistant Secretary Jahncke, of the navy, last night at Wooster, Ohio, in which Jahncke said President Hoover's leadership since congress convened had made the Democrats "just a little bit dizzy."

"Since he has been president," the Texas Democrat said, "Hoover has led us into the greatest panic the country or world has ever known. The country will determine the correctness of Jahncke's statements."
