Tear Gas Bombs and Fire Hose Fail to Stop Communist Unemployed As 3000 Charge Police at Ford Dearborn Plant

ROSNER SAYS LINDBERGH'S BABY SAFE

in any way a mere matter of opinion. "I have some delicate work to do this afternoon and in the next few days," said Rosner. "I have been on the go for the last 103 hours with no rest. I just came home for a little relaxation because it is absolutely imperative that I 'be sane' for this very delicate work.

"The kidnapers can be absolutely sure that nothing will ever be done toward prosecuting them either by Colonel Lindbergh or myself. We are pleading with them not to be afraid to rush negotiations. After this thing is all over they know where they can find me."

"Are you certain you will get the baby back," Rosner was asked. "There is absolutely no question about that," he replied.

"NO RESULTS" SAYS OFFICER HOPEWELL, N. J., March 12 (AP)— "No results" was the official word today from headquarters of the hunt for the Lindbergh baby and his kidnapers.

Police at the Lindbergh home told of present investigations extending into at least three states besides New Jersey, and spoke of independent investigations going on all over the country, but acknowledged the sum total of achievement was exactly nothing.

"The investigation has not revealed any information of a productive nature in the past 24 hours," Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, acknowledged in his mid-morning bulletin from the Lindbergh home.

INVESTIGATE LETTER HARRISBURGH, Pa., March 12 (AP)— Pennsylvania state police have been requested by the New Jersey state police to investigate the sending of a letter postmarked Plymouth, Pa., demanding $30,000 for the return of the Lindbergh baby tonight.

POLICE SEEK TRIO HOPEWELL, N. J., March 12 (AP)— The eleventh day of the great Lindbergh kidnaping mystery found police trying to check their suspicions of five men and a plot.

The plot was abandoned at the time it was believed, but whether it was picked up again and carried through was a question the greatest kidnaping investigation in the country's history was trying to answer.

One of the suspects, the source of the disclosure said, is in custody on a charge unrelated to the kidnaping. He was identified as an inmate of the Tombs prison in New York who was brought here yesterday after Morris Rosner, expert flier acting as Col. Lindbergh's undercover agent, interviewed him at the prison. His name was as closely guarded as his person.

Another of the five men is believed to be in prison elsewhere. Police want to find out where he is so they can determine whether the three who remained at liberty picked up the abandoned plot and carried it through by stealing Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. from his nursery crib Battered insensible by members of a mob of several hundred that attacked the Ford plant at Dearborn, Michigan, Harry Bennett, head of the Ford secret service staff, is shown in top picture above being picked up by friends after he was critically wounded from blows on the head. Below is an unemployed rioter, felled by police clubs near the gate of plant. Three men were killed and a score were wounded during the battle.

March 1. To Issue Circular A circular appealing to everyone—underworld and respectable alike—to give information about the kidnaping under pledge of strict secrecy was announced by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police.

It was despatched to every police department in the country after being submitted for approval to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the United States department of justice. Hoover was designated by President Hoover to sit at the recent conference called to co-ordinate efforts in the search for the world's most famous baby.

"In our earnest desire to accomplish the recovery of the baby," said the police announcement, "the police will welcome information of any kind leading to its return, regardless of the source."

"The identity of all people disclosing information leading to the recovery of the baby, whether the information be valuable or not, will be treated with confidence."

Rosner's Activities Guarded Rosner's activities were the most closely guarded of all the fitting figures working behind the screen encircling the investigation. Joseph Fishman, deputy commissioner of correction in New York, admitted Rosner visited the Tombs, but he added that "any statement now would kill the effectiveness of our work." Rosner is under indictment here on a charge of "stock kiting."

Everything that came to light only deepened the mystery surrounding the case. And while the machinery of investigation clicked all about them, the kidnaped baby's parents dragged through another day of anxiety.

Lindberghs Standing Ordeal Mrs. Lindbergh, worn but still standing up to the blow, went about her household duties, and took her meals on the second floor of the house with her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow. The Colonel, active as ever, was seen about the place wearing his grey cap and suit.

The usual torrid tips poured in, and Harvard university started a collection of dreams people have had about the case. The Harvard psychologists don't hope to solve the kidnaping; they're collecting data on what happens inside some people's heads.

Police are searching for a former Brooklyn grocer, Dominick Peruo, who lives on the edge of the Lindbergh estate but has not been seen since the night before the kidnaping. A 16-year-old son told state troopers Peruo went away with a relative and he hadn't heard from him.

WATCH DENVER HOME DENVER, Colo., March 12 (AP)—The Rocky Mountain News says three United States secret service investigators have kept the home of Mrs. S. E. Land, aunt of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh here, under constant surveillance for the past several days on theory that kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby might try to communicate with its parents through Mrs. Land.

Mrs. Land might be utilized, says the News, as a medium through which ransom could be paid for the return of the child. Interviewed at her home here, Mrs. Land refused to answer any questions about the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

The Japanese have further reinforced their elaborate defense line from Nanzhang to Yangtze road. The Japanese consulate said its investigation into the beating of Miss Rose Matlow, American missionary teacher, a week ago revealed one Japanese civilian was responsible. They said he had been sentenced to 15 days in jail. The United States consulate was notified of the action by letter and the Japanese consulate expressed regret over the incident, declaring it had issued a warning to Japanese citizens to avoid a repetition.

A torrential rain storm, the first of the spring downpours upon which the Chinese had banked as an ally, turned military roads into rivers of mud and trenches and dugouts into catch basins. Nanzhang, the southwest corner of the Japanese zone of occupation, was virtually cut off from highway communication from the rear.

Tractors In Use The Japanese brought out a number of tractors and substituted these for the trucks in hauling the heavy guns to the front. The Shanghai-Nanking railroad also was put to use. Freight cars were loaded with supplies at Chenju and, in the absence of locomotives, were propelled to Nanzhang by man power.

Groups of more than 100 soldiers plodded along the tracks pulling steel cables attached to the heavily loaded freight cars. All the villages along the front were heavily garrisoned with Japanese troops. Luho, Kating, Lüthang and Nanzhang, with a normal Chinese population of about 75,000 remained virtually deserted except for the unending stream of soldiers.

Commanding officers of all foreign fleets represented here, including Admiral Montgomery W. Taylor, American commander, were guests of Admiral Kiro Shibusawa Komura aboard his flagship, the Idzumo, today. The installation of a steel net around the flagship to prevent further attempts to explode mines under it was being completed as the gold-branded dignitaries assembled on board.

May Recall Division Japanese army authorities said the ninth division had received no orders to return to Japan but expressed no surprise at reports from Tokyo that it was to be recalled. The division was sent here in the early stages of the conflict and relieved recently by fresh troops. It is now resting at Shanghai.

TROUBLE IN MANCHURIA TOKYO, Mar. 12 (AP)— Press reports from Blagoveshensk, Siberia, today agreed in saying two Japanese civilians and ten Chinese officers of the new regime of General Mah Chan-Shan were killed at Taiheio on the occasion of hoisting the flag of the new Manchurian state.

The Japanese consul at Blagoveshensk, it was learned, recently asked Soviet Russian authorities to afford protection to a small Japanese colony at Taiheio in anticipation of an outbreak there.

Recent reports said Wan Kuo-Pin, son of Wan Fu-Lin, governor of Manchuria, under Marshal Chang Hsiang-Liang was active at Taiheio in inciting a revolt against Japan and the regime of Henry Pu-Yi in Manchuria.

NORTON TO GET REWARD SILVERTON (AP)—Ray Norton, of Silvertown, officers here announced, will receive the $500 reward offered by the city for definite information leading to the arrest of those connected with the murder of H. J. Iverson, night officer, at Silvertown last May.
