Italy's Literature Discussed at Club Meeting Monday

Contemporary literature of Italy, a country which has no contemporary literature to speak of, was discussed last night before the Neighborhood Literature club by Miss Helen Moor, at the La Grande hotel.

only subject with which they dealt. They introduced the canzone, the stanzetta form of Italian lyric, and the sonnet, Prose developed more slowly and the first center was not the Sicilian court, but Bologna with its great university.

Among the great Italian writers of the 14th century, which Miss Moor discussed, were Dante; Petrarch, the first modern man of letters and the father of the classical revival; Boccaccio, whose "Decameron" brought modern fiction into being.

Sixteenth century writers of Italy were Machiavelli, a political theorist who was the prophet of modern Italy; Castiglione, who represents the general Italianization of culture and society and whom "Cortegiano" is an idealized picture of the social life of the authors day in its highest development; Torquato Tasso, who was preeminently a poet of sentiment.

Galileo, who was not only supreme as a man of science, but one of the greatest prose writers of Italy, is a product of the 17th century.

In modern times, Miss Moor pointed out several writers of eminence, Carducci, a national poet of modern Italy, who is probably at his best when depicting on broad lines some great epoch of his country's civilization. Then there is D'Annunzio, poet, novelist, dramatist, who dazzles his readers by profusion and excess and sensuality. He belongs to the decadents, and has been a "front page personality" she believes. Among the real contemporaries a few names stand out which were mentioned by the speaker, Croce, the philosopher; Pirandello, playwright; Deladna, Nobel prize winner; Papini, who wrote "The Life of Christ"; Sullia Aleramo, woman novelist; and Giuseppe Borgese, who is a critic first then a novelist.

Also Furnishes "Bulk" and Vitamin B to Overcome Common Constipation

Liver is known as a good source of iron for the blood. Now, new tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

But more important still, laboratory experiments show ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

This means Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a fine way to overcome constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture, forming a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

How much better than risking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Just eat two tablespoons of ALL-BRAN daily for most types of constipation. It is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.
