

Lostine Church To Be Rebuilt In Near Future

By Mrs. Wm. Wiggins (Observer Correspondent)
LOSTINE (Special) — It is quite certain that the Christian church which was destroyed by fire recently will be replaced. Many have expressed their desire to donate work and time with the insurance money, they hope to be able to build a very neat little church.

Mrs. C. L. Allen, and daughter, Nell, left this week for Portland, where they will visit for a week or two with friends.

Mrs. C. J. Poley entertained the bridge club at her home Wednesday, with three tables at play. Mrs. Harry Wade made high score and Mrs. Roy Isaac, second. The club voted to discontinue the weekly meetings until after the busy season. Mrs. Poley was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Edgar Hook.

Earl Fleenor, who spent the past three weeks in the Veterans hospital in Walla Walla, is visiting friends in Lostine.

Mrs. Edna Hall, of Wallawa, was the guest last week of Mrs. O. J. Poley.

Mrs. W. H. McPeckridge has had her home redecorated recently.

Mrs. Rosa Owens, of Dayton, Wash., arrived here Monday to remain indefinitely. She owns property in Lostine.

The Rebekah lodge of Wallawa came to Lostine Wednesday evening and the Lostine lodge put on the initiatory work for some of the Wallawa members. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mr. Dale, who is working on the section at Elgin, was home to spend Sunday. He expects to move next week.

Mrs. Leila Reppinger and her father, Earl Allen, spent Saturday in La Grande. They met Mrs. Ernest Shipley, of Iowa and brought her and her son in for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crow, of Hurricane creek, have returned home from California where they spent the winter. Van Osaman who has been staying on their farm returned home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Clark, and son, Leonard, and George Rohan, of Union, Mrs. Virginia Chandler and Mrs. Mary Sturgill, of Elgin, drove over Thursday and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wiggins.

There was only a fair-sized crowd at the dance Saturday night, but all report a very good time.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Poley enjoyed a weekend visit with Mrs. Cornelius, of Pendleton, who teaches at the Willow Spring school.

Mrs. Albert Bratz, of Enterprise, spent the week with her mother, Mrs. Anna Nohlg, who has been ill.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Magee Tuesday and gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Howard Singletary, a recent bride. Mr. and Mrs. Magee's daughter, she received many useful and beautiful gifts. Mrs. Magee served refreshments at the close of the afternoon.

Apricot and peach trees are in full bloom on the Imnaha and prospects for an excellent crop are good, barring frosts.

Foster Wise, of Smith Mountain, came in after his sister, Velma Wise, and took her home for a weekend.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

Get your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at Red Cross Drug Store, L. & L. Drug Co., Moon Drug Co., Glass Drug, Inc. or any drug store—the drug for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

visit. She attends school here. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Orval McOrter, which has been under quarantine for so long because of scarlet fever, is again released. This is the second stage of scarlet fever they have had this season.

Mrs. Roy Cook who went to Union this week to visit her mother, Mrs. Burlich, has not returned home as was expected, as her mother was taken very ill and was removed to Hot Lake.

The bridge across the Lostine river is being raised three feet as the high water is undermining the bridge. Traffic is permissible only at night when the men are not at work.

George Wart, makes another trip to Standish after his wife, Mrs. Mary Down, went with him to visit the Ronald Downs family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Audus Golden, of Imbler, visited recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Allen. Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Allen celebrated their birthdays the same day.

H. S. Williams, who has been very ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hook, for many weeks, was in town last week for the first time. He is greatly improved.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. B. T. Worrell at Caldwell, Ohio, following a stroke of paralysis. She is a sister to M. S. M. and S. P. Crow and Mrs. Stewart Hamblenton. She formerly lived here.

R. O. Harris who has been an invalid for more than a year was in town Monday. He is so much improved that he can get around with the aid of crutches. He has been having rheumatism.

While Mrs. Edgar Hook has been in La Grande with Mr. Hook who has been having a tonsillectomy, Mrs. Berkeley Caudle has been staying at the Hook home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson have moved on a small farm which he has rented near Wallawa.

The students are out for clean up day which is to be Saturday April 15.

Lostine School Notes
The student body play "I Will I Won't!" is to be given on Friday evening, April 22.

The report cards came out on Wednesday. Only one more six weeks period remains of this school year which will conclude on May 13.

The commercial geography class was given a very interesting report of Soviet Russia by Bernice Whings.

Five lock the students on an imaginary journey through the factories, farms, etc. which are all regulated and owned by the government. Bernice also told of the operations of the "Five-Year Plan" that Russia is working with.

Several students in the economics class had an informal debate Friday. The question debated was: "Resolved that the United States should have a protective tariff policy." Those of the affirmative were: Freda Hall, Helen Leonard, Margaret Poley and Kenneth Bright. Those of the negative were: Marjorie Fischer, Bernice Whings, Louis Crow, and Ike Cole. The negative were winners.

Miss Ilita Warnock, of Enterprise, was at the High school Friday afternoon and gave a short recital. The numbers she played were: "Well Tempered Clavichord" by Bach, "Whims" by Robert Schumann, "Why" also by Robert Schumann, "A. D. 1620" by MacDowell, "The Little White Donkey" by Jacques Ibert and "Weiner Tansy" by Friedman-Gartner. The students greatly enjoyed these pieces.

The county nurse was at Lostine school on Monday examining the pupils in the grade school.

The preliminary spelling contest for the grades took place last Friday. The following patrons acted as judges for the oral portion of the event: seventh and eighth, Mrs. Frank Bradley, Mrs. M. Crow, and Mrs. F. W. Hammack; for the fifth and sixth grades, Mrs. S. M. Crow, Mrs. James H. Leonard, and Mrs. Harry Wade.

In the written portion of the contest the following are the five highest scores for each competing grade. In the fifth grade: Bernice Wisdom 95 per cent, Ruth Woods 99 per cent, Marie Harris 99 per cent, Dorothy Miles 98 per cent, Maurice (Pat) Harris 96 per cent. In the sixth grade: Jewel Olsen 100 per cent, Jimmie Leonard 99 per cent, Clayton Moffitt 91 per cent, Edwina Emmaus 85 per cent, Charles Knowles 83 per cent.

In the seventh grade: Myona Olsen 100 per cent, Orville Fischer 96 per cent, Ross Hammack 90 per cent, Ellis Allen 85 per cent, Reed Wade 70 per cent. In the eighth grade:

Jimmie Leonard 100 per cent, Victor Crow 94 per cent, Cleta Garret 92 per cent, Mike Beidler 84 per cent, Eileen Bradley 80 per cent.

The students, Jewel and Myona Olsen and Jimmie Leonard will receive special certificates for their perfect scores.

Supt. Williams explained that the smaller schools are handicapped in their report of the contest average due to the fact that the five high scores for each grade as reported represent all the pupils in that grade, whereas in larger class rooms the five highest scores represent only the best out of each grade.

The winners of the oral contest and the ones who will represent Lostine in the finals at Enterprise are: fifth grade, Maurice (Pat) Harris; sixth grade, Jewel Olsen; seventh grade, Myona Olsen; eighth grade, Jimmie Leonard.

In the typing contest held in Wallawa, Saturday April 2, Lostine was placed third except in speed in which Freda Hall stood second.

PORTLAND, Apr. 13 (AP)—Senator Steiwer, according to a Washington, D. C. dispatch to the Journal, said today he will offer his amendment for a tax on lumber imports, in the shape of an excise duty instead of an amendment to the tariff act.

This statement was made following a conference with President Hoover, attended by Steiwer and H. B. Van Duzer and Frank B. Ransom, Oregon lumbermen. Lumber duties as an excise tax on the same basis as oil and coal were the subject of a brief discussion.

The William and Mary football team will meet the Army and West Point next fall.

COIN MAKERS ARE GIVEN SENTENCES
SACRAMENTO, Cal., Apr. 14 (AP)—Pleas of guilty to an indictment charging conspiracy to counterfeit money that were made by four men in the federal court here Wednesday resulted in Judge A. F. St. Sure sentencing three of the men and postponing sentence of the fourth until Saturday.

Melbourne Dunn of Yreka was sentenced to serve five years in prison, Harry Jennings will have to serve two years in prison and his father, Frank C. Jennings, was sentenced to serve one year. The Jennings are prospectors and said they have a mining claim in Southern Oregon.

Benjamin W. Batten of Medford, Ore., made a strong plea for probation and his remarks to the court were so impressive that Judge St. Sure postponed until Saturday any sentence.

The four men were involved in counterfeiting in Northern California, principally around Yreka.

KITTY FREW by JANE ABBOTT

SYNOPSIS: Disregarding entreaties Kitty Frew and her husband's father-in-law, David, go to the city to get her own life and Kitty change to her own name. Her only friend, Gar, that he must not live on his mother's name, causes a temporary quarrel, but makes Gar agree to support her.

Chapter 25
AN OVER-STUFFED APARTMENT
HER throat did not move a vivid instant denial. For a moment he seemed to consider what answer he would make, his eyes leveled on a spot beyond Kitty's head, his brows drawn together.

"I haven't thought of offending you—that it made any difference one way or another what I said. Of course I don't want you to go away. In fact, I have missed you quite a bit more than I like." He kept his voice flat.

"Oh, that's nice, that you've missed me! David, because Gar's a little, well, prejudiced, is not going to make a bit of difference in the way I feel. Do you think I can ever forget how kind you've been to me? And I'm going to see you often. You must tell me things about what you're doing. You can't throw your manuscript away; you've got to finish it so that I can read it. Why, David, think how thrilled I'll be when I hold a book in my hands and know that my brother David wrote it!"

He laughed at her genuine excitement. "Even if I finish it I may not find a publisher who wants it."

"Of course you will! It's your old fear of ridicule, David! I know it's good—Dorcas believes it is."

"Oh—Dorcas. She's believed other things of me that haven't turned out so well!"

"David! Kitty yielded to an impulse. "David, why don't you marry Dorcas?" She flushed a little at her daring.

"Why? What have I to offer her? I'm thirty, more or less disagreeable, earning a paltry amount a week, writing stuff that anyone could write, but she calls drizzle—"

"But Dorcas—"

"You know her well enough yourself to understand that compromise is the last thing Dorcas would consider."

"Then stand up!" Kitty cried, borrowing Dorcas' words and manner. "Finish that book."

He smiled at her. "If you talk to Gar like that I have hopes for the boy."

But he had put her interest in himself aside; Kitty felt silenced. And when she left him, a block or two from the Tudor Arms, he did not say anything about hoping to see her soon. She would, though, she told herself as she went on. She'd see Dorcas, too.

She and Gar had sub-let the apartment in the Tudor Arms the day after Gar had met her outside of Stratton. It was an over-gorgeous thing of three rooms and a bath, a cubicle of a living-room paneled in black and green and hung with orange silk draperies and seemingly padded with soft fat orange and black pillows scattered over the chairs and the floor and the legless divan. Where there was space in the clutter of orange and black pillows were big and little tables and lamps on standards and lamps without standards. An Italian table and buffet, designed for a state dining-room, were crowded into the limited dimensions of the dinette and the tiny bedroom was smothered in green and orchid pleatings.

"The agent said we could move in today." That settled their choice. "Did you ever see such a little stove, Gar? I'll cook our supper on it tonight. It'll just about cook enough for two—"

"When we get settled we'll have the crowd in, Kit."

It hadn't been possible to settle quickly for Kitty had to puzzle and scheme and pack and repack to stow away even their personal belongings. The crowd hadn't waited. They'd come in a few evenings after Kitty and Gar took possession of the place, Marge and Diana and Isabel Peters and Red and Tubby and Sewall Buck, and, a little later, Paul Somerset.

They'd been riotously gay. Red had brought a satchel filled with the makings for cocktails and he and Gar had mixed them, shaker after shaker, until Kitty's next kitchen was cluttered with peelings and bottle tops and empty bottles. Kitty had assembled sandwiches and cakes and olives and coffee. At half-past one the operator at the desk in the lobby called to say that a complaint had come in about the noise and everyone had shrieked at that—everyone except Kitty. The party was a success! They went at three o'clock, leaving the living-room in a sorry mess of tumbled pillows and empty glasses and plates and cigarette stubs with a pall of stale cigarette smoke hanging over everything.

"Now that's the kind of evening I like—I hope the crowd sort of makes our place a headquarters." Gar had declared with immense satisfaction.

"I don't like Paul Somerset, Gar." "Oh, he's all right for his kind. Marge is just having a little fun—I've talked it over with her."

Gar's friends had seemed more friendly. Or perhaps, Kitty had thought as she fussed in the kitchen over the refreshments, it was that she felt different toward them, now, in her rôle as hostess. Tubby had seized a chance to squeeze her hand and ask her if he wasn't Mr. Flit? "You can count on me, Kit. I'm not going to breathe a word about it." She'd wished she could tell him that she wasn't ashamed of working in Stratton's but there had been no time, then. Tubby thought of it as Gar did.

She'd hated having Paul Somerset come; she'd caught herself watching him with Margery Crosby, and thinking of Carol. Was he seeing Carol now? Or had their quarrel at the Hoffman that day ended their acquaintance?

It had taken her the greater part of the next day to restore order to their doll's house. But she had worked cheerfully; Gar had litled his evening.

Pleasing Gar gave glimmer to her every thought, every task.

Her pride in Gar, her belief that he could do anything, was wholly renewed. She shared his importance when he talked about his work. His father had transferred to his office, one Jonathan Drew who, in one capacity or another, had served Dalton and Winters for fifteen years. Gar called him Old John. Gar said he was as faithful as an old hound dog. He had laughed at Kitty's dismay one morning when they both overheard, "Old John can talk to that man who was coming in at ten o'clock. What have I got him for?" And she had lost her alarm in a little rush of pride that Gar had important connections and Old John under him to take care of them until he got around.

Gar was the lover of those first weeks of their marriage. She felt no jealousy when the Players' demanded his time. Frequently he telephoned that he'd be late for dinner, he had to see Decker, or someone else, sometimes Margery Crosby. Now and then a committee met in the evening. But she had not felt left out, as she had at his mother's house; there was always his homecoming, a moment apart from all others in its certainty of closeness.

Oh, if David could only know how happy she was, she thought as she opened her door, returning from having tea with David.

Gar had telephoned earlier in the day that he would be late, tonight. There was some trouble with the lighting at the Little Theater. She mustn't wait dinner for him.

She wouldn't cook anything for herself. When Gar came she'd make a mushroom omelette.

And as she stitched on a handkerchief she was hoping for her father's Christmas box, she thought of David and the pleasantness of her encounter with him. He'd tried very hard to be disagreeable. Almost as if he weren't glad things had straightened out with her and Gar. But it was silly to think he really felt that way, he'd said so often that he wanted her to be happy, he'd only seemed half-hearted because he was in low spirits, discouraged.

"I'm glad I talked straight from the shoulder to him," Kitty mused, smiling down at her busy fingers. "And I'll be every chance I get!" Her own rosy security made her the more compassionate for David. She'd seen him, often. She'd invite David and Dorcas up to the apartment for supper some night.

Of course David was too proud to ask Dorcas to marry him. He'd said Dorcas wouldn't compromise. That's all he knew about women—But at this point in her thoughts Kitty felt a sharp prick of memory. That day out in the little house, David had said to her: "The most you can do is compromise and then you won't be anywhere." That was David's feelings, now, that she'd compromised, with her self-respect, perhaps he thought, or with her ambitions.

(Copyright, Jane Abbott)

Kitty sees an untroubled life ahead. But Marge Crosby shows her determination to capture Gar's interest, tomorrow.

Coin Makers Are Given Sentences

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Apr. 14 (AP)—Pleas of guilty to an indictment charging conspiracy to counterfeit money that were made by four men in the federal court here Wednesday resulted in Judge A. F. St. Sure sentencing three of the men and postponing sentence of the fourth until Saturday.

Melbourne Dunn of Yreka was sentenced to serve five years in prison, Harry Jennings will have to serve two years in prison and his father, Frank C. Jennings, was sentenced to serve one year. The Jennings are prospectors and said they have a mining claim in Southern Oregon.

Benjamin W. Batten of Medford, Ore., made a strong plea for probation and his remarks to the court were so impressive that Judge St. Sure postponed until Saturday any sentence.

UNION PERSONALS

By Mrs. I. Z. Terrill
UNION, Ore. (Special)—J. B. Kicker, superintendent of schools at Milton-Freewater, and Mrs. Kicker drove over Friday to spend the weekend with their daughter, Mrs. J. Q. Gilmore. Their son, Roy, who had spent the week at the Gilmore's, returned with them and went back to his school work at Whitman college.

Miss Marge Campbell was hostess to a few friends Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Campbell. After an evening of ping-pong, hearts and fan-lan, a tasty lunch was served. Those who attended were Freda Brown, Wythele Ackley, Kathryn Green, Gladys Wortman, Earl Cook, Roy Conklin, Chet Baum and Fernia Wolf.

Mrs. J. W. Kim and two children and Jean Hamrick, of Imbler, were dinner guests of Mrs. Will Campbell and Margaret Monday evening. Mr. Kim and Mr. Campbell attended the schoolmaster's meeting in North Powder.

Mrs. Vernon Allen returned Sunday from Hot Lake where she spent several days following a tonsil operation.

Mrs. Edith Poy and Mrs. Mark Poy drove to Baker Monday to attend a bridge luncheon at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. J. K. Romig.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, of Baker, were Union visitors Tuesday. Mrs. Ross visited Miss Georgia Wright while her husband attended to business matters.

Ellis Hess and W. E. Moore, of Elgin, made a business trip to Portland Sunday night returning home Tuesday morning.

P. M. Little left Wednesday morning for Idaho where he will visit several towns including Twin Falls and Boise before his return the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keen and son left this week for Elgin to visit for a time before going to Washington. He was suffering the effects of some severe burns sustained Sunday morning when an oven door fell and caused him to lose his balance, throwing him against the stove. Mrs. Keen is a sister of Mrs. Giles VanHusen.

Mrs. Dorothy Crawford, home economics teacher in the High school, enjoyed a visit from her mother the past week. Mrs. Crawford returned to her home in Oregon City Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Couper and children visited in Union Monday on their way to Welser to visit his mother, Mrs. Ida Couper. They have been living at Vernonia, Ore.

The different Sunday school classes of all the wards in the Union staked of the L. D. S. church are practicing their dances and games for the May festival to be held in the La Grande park on April 30. Among the exhibitions will be the Maypole dance, giraffe and butterfly dances and special features by the primary department.

The members of the J. J. club were entertained by Mrs. Fred Brown Wednesday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in needlework and games and the first and second prizes for the weekly guessing contest were awarded to Mrs. Ida Cline and Mrs. Ellis Hess. A lunch was served late in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ab Gipson were hosts to the pinocle club Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Clark Martens were guests, making up three tables of cards. High scores for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vogel and low, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gipson. The hostess served a lunch at midnight.

G. I. Hess returned Wednesday morning from Salem where he attended the Monday convocation of the Royal Arch Masons. He went down Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Baxter and son, Raynolds, Mrs. Will Kirk and Norine Kofford returned late Wednesday afternoon from Salt Lake City where they had been attending the semi-annual conference of the L. D. S. church. They remained over Monday to help celebrate the 74th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Baxter's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Bowthorpe.

A busy evening was spent by the members of the reading club at their meeting which was held at the hotel Tuesday evening. Among the book reviews were: "Mourning Becomes Electra," by Eugene O'Neill given by Miss Elizabeth Pugh; "The Lady With a Fan," by Harriet Henry; "Her Father's Partner," by Berta Ruck; "Mary's Neck" by Booth Tarkington; and "Heroines of the Prairies," by Sheba Hargreaves. The next meeting will be held in two weeks.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rinin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, sweet and sour, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly alert and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't take liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.
