KITTY FREW

by JANE ABBOTT

SYNOPSIS: White Marge Crossby tries to interest Garfield Frew in the theatricals. Gar's wife, Kitty, contentedly stays at home and manages the small household...

THREE PINK ROSEBUDS

TOLD DI we could get along without her. She had something else on this afternoon, Marge had explained casually.

She had produced a long list of names. "You mother made it out, Gar. I ran into her at the Century Club yesterday and she asked me if she could help us. Wasn't that dear of her when she's so busy?"

"Good idea," Gar had responded promptly. But he had been thinking how stunning Marge looked in the thing she was wearing, whatever it was. She looked like the favorite in a arena, he had played with that fancy white Marge was talking.

He had been lounging comfortably against the rose damask cushions of the divan, his feet stretched out toward the fire.

"I've got to do something about Somerset, Gar," she had said slowly. "He's well, he's taking too much for granted. But I can't offend him, just now. I wish you'd sort of stick around. It you'd go to the rehearsal—"

"The big bouder! Why didn't you say something about it before? You bet I'll stick 'round. He has his nerve!"

Marge had sighed faintly. Her hand had reached out and tucked herself under Gar's arm. He was always completely at home in Marge's sitting room, pleasantly conscious of its luxury, of its seclusion, of the privilege that was his in so enjoying it.

She had told him of the progress the Players were making. The costumes had been ordered from New York. He must see what Gordon Wing was doing with the back drop for the first act—it was perfect. Her low voice had run on and on from one thing to another, while Gar had listened and watched the little play of muscles under the fine skin of her throat.

"Gar, I had a wonderful talk with your mother, about you. Of course she'd say things to me that she wouldn't say to anyone else because she knows what friends you and I have been. She was so sweet I just opened my heart to her. I told her—well, I'm not going to tell you what I told her. You would have guessed it a long time ago except that you're so blind."

"You're going to tell me, Marge!" Gar had asserted masterfully. "Shoot!"

She had shaken her head; she had leaned a little closer to his shoulder, her face bent away from him. When she answered there had been a suggestion of tears in her faltering voice.

"But there isn't any use, now. You've married Kitty. And you've spoiled me for anyone else. It's always been like that—that's the way I felt last winter when I came out. I didn't give a hang about any of the parties when you weren't going to be there. Oh—She strolled restlessly. "I hate everything now! I'm sick of the crowd, of all this fuss over the theater. I'm going away from Winton this spring and I'm never coming back. I think I'll live in Paris all the rest of my life. Will you miss me, Gar?"

Gar had been touched by her confession, flattered. "I'll go after you and bring you back," he had answered quickly, vehemently. He had put his arm about her shoulder and kissed her. "Gosh, Marge, I'd miss you a lot! You can't go away!"

"Would you?" she had whispered against his arm.

He had straightened, smiling down at her.

"To prove that I think of you I sent you some flowers today—"

"Oh! Selby told me there were flowers—I haven't opened the box; I thought they were from Somerset. How dear of you, Gatt!"

"I didn't put in a card. I wanted to see if you remembered our old nonsense. The three pink rosebuds—"

"Gar! How cute—that you remember. 'I-love-you' it wasn't nonsense—last winter, Gar! Then in the Grande Ronde valley. Mrs. Paul Ager, secretary of Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University of Oregon has been taking a rest cure at the sanatorium and visiting her brother and wife, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Phyl, and her mother Mrs. Edith Phyl, of Union.

Mr. and Mrs. Ager was born and reared in this valley and has many friends here. Paul Ager is a brother of Cecil Ager, who recently married Dr. Lewa Wilkes, of La Grande.

Ex-Governor and Mrs. Walter Pierce spent Sunday at the sanatorium. Mrs. Pierce is making a welcome addition to the hospital library.

J. E. Burdick and son, motoring through Oregon, stopped to sample the mineral and make a brief visit to the institution and has won many warm friends by way of his faithfulness and efficiency.

The sanatorium people are eagerly anticipating the promised program to be given by the Epworth League of La Grande next Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer P. Hill, of Union, are the proud parents of a son born to them April 6. Mrs. Hill and the baby son are doing very nicely.

Mrs. Harry Mencham, a former patient, and Jan. Cavin of Baker, made a brief visit at the sanatorium last week.

ASTORIA, Ore., April 16 (AP)—Charles C. Rosenberg, described by police as "a druggist physician," was arrested and arraigned in circuit court here Friday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death April 8 of Caroline McKeechie.

ROSENBERG was given 24 hours in which to enter a plea. Bail was set at $3000. The body of the woman was sent to Port Angeles for burial.

KAYE DON RECEIVES CUP

LONDON, Apr. 15 (AP)—Kaye Don, the automobile racer, received the United States Ambassador Mellon to-day a silver cup presented on behalf of his admirers in Detroit, Mich.

There were to be ten of them tonight, at a long table. Diana came with Buck Sewall, Red came alone, Tubby with Isabel Peters, others joined them. Tubby took the chair next to Kitty and began whispering in her ear.

"Say, you look out of sight tonight." "Tubby, this old dress. You see me in it every time I go anywhere!" "I thought it was a new one, honest."

"You're silly." "But she warned to his nonsense. Tubby amused her with his devotion, his clumsy humor. She felt at ease with him. With the others, at times like this, it was like playing a part in a play, the role of which she knew well."

Gar was at the other end of the table. He had kept the chair next to him empty. He was watching the door. Presently he sprang to his feet. "Here's Marge."

Marge approached the table with Paul Somerset. The others halted her coming a little boisterously. It was Gar, not Somerset, who took Marge's evening coat from her shoulders. "Sit here," he commanded, indicating the unoccupied chair next to him. It left one for Somerset across the table. "I'm on the job," he added a low tone.

Marge lifted a deeply reproachful look to him as she slipped into the seat he had saved for her. Her fingers went significantly to the orchids against her shoulder. Her eyes traveled swiftly toward the table and met Kitty's wide startled glance fixed on her. She laughed softly, her lips scarcely parting over the word.

At their end of the table Tubby was deep in a story which he was pouring into Kitty's ear. All at once he became aware that she was not listening. He thought she spoke. "What'd you say, Kitty?"

She turned back to him, her eyes blue-black, a heightened color on her cheeks. "Did I say anything? If I did—it was only that it was just silly, thinking it for a moment—"

"But what I'm telling you is gospel truth, Kit! It happened to a fellow I know."

(Copyright, Jane Abbott) Christmas eve brings Kitty a present of tragedy, tomorrow.

Miss Marie Tiggebeck has made such a rapid recovery from her recent operation that she is returning to her home in La Grande this week. Mrs. O. E. Barnwell, of Elgin, came to the hospital for surgical attention. Mr. and Mrs. Barnwell formerly lived in La Grande where Mr. Barnwell was connected with the E. O. L. & P. Co. but now has charge of the office at Elgin.

Howard Timmerman is making a good recovery from an appendix operation performed on Monday. "Tim," as he is familiarly known about the place, dropped into the sanatorium about seven months ago and since then has fitted into so many different positions that he has become almost an indispensable part of the institution and has won many warm friends by way of his faithfulness and efficiency.

KAYE DON RECEIVES CUP LONDON, Apr. 15 (AP)—Kaye Don, the automobile racer, received the United States Ambassador Mellon to-day a silver cup presented on behalf of his admirers in Detroit, Mich.

THE sudden shock of being thrown into the stream made Duncy groan, but he began to swim toward shore, which wasn't far away.

"Well, anyway, I'm glad," thought he, "that I'm as safe as safe can be. My great big bubble broke, so in it I won't have to stay."

The other Tinies, overhead, looked down on him and Windy said, "I thought that I could land our plane right down there on the sand."

"It's too rough, though, and we might tip head-over-heels and wreck this ship. I guess I'll have to try and find some other place to land."

"I SEE a spot right over there and it looks level from the air," said Scouty, as he pointed down. Get closer and we'll see. If you know how to turn the trick, this plane should settle down real slick. Then we'll run up to Duncy and how happy he will be."

Pool Duncy, in the meantime, was a funny-looking lad because, when he swam up and reached the shore, his clothes were soaking wet.

"Oh, well, at least I'm safe and sound," said he, "and now I'll look around and find some wood to build a fire. Then real dry I can get."

JUST then he heard a funny shout and, when he turned and looked about, he saw some little fellows who were skinny as could be.

"Hello, there, wee tots," Duncy cried. "Please tell me why you're trying to hide. Come out into the open. You need not be scared of me."

The other Tinies, still in air, had found a spot both flat and bare. "That's where we'll land," said Windy. "Watch me slide right to the ground. It isn't very far from where we saw wee Duncy from the air. I'm sure that we can find him when we start to look around."

JULIA LATHROP PASSES ROCKFORD, Ill., Apr. 16 (AP)—Julia Lathrop, the benign 74-year-old welfare worker whom Jane Addams appreciated as one of America's most useful women, is dead.

Death came to her last night at a Rockford hospital following an operation for removal of a goiter and terminated a career devoted almost wholly to the well-being of the children.

Miss Lathrop's activities in the field of welfare work had been incessant and the fruits of her efforts which she considered a greater reward than widespread recognition.
