Chattering and boating were about equally divided when this throng of students assembled on the steps of the Columbia university library to listen to protests against the recent expulsion of Reed Harris, crusading editor of the Columbia Spectator, undergraduate daily. While a special student committee organized a one-day strike, the undergraduate governing body passed a resolution approving the action of Dean Herbert E. Hawkes in dismissing the crusading editor whose charges of "semi-professionalism" in Columbia athletics brought him to national attention.

Grande women plan to attend, accompanied by the pastor, Rev. J. George Walk. Those who will spend the afternoon in Enterprise are Mrs. H. H. Cleaver, Miss Charlotte Kuhl, Mrs. L. Denham and Mrs. H. R. Hanna. The meeting will close at 12 o'clock on Wednesday.

Named for Queen

The state of Maryland was named as a compliment to Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I, says an article in the Boston Post. The original charter granting the province to Lord Baltimore refers to the region in its Latin name, "Terra Mariae," land of Maria, or Mary.

4000 miles for better taste

FROM Xanthi and Cavalla... Smyrna and Samsoun... the finest Turkish tobaccos travel 4,000 miles to add flavor and fragrance to CHESTERFIELD.

CIGARETTE smokers owe a lot to Turkish tobacco, for it was cigarettes made out of Turkish tobacco that first became the vogue in this country.

Then it was found that a blend of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos was better than either kind of tobacco straight. It takes just the right amount of the right kind of Turkish tobacco to give a cigarette better taste. For Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the spice—the sauce. You want enough but not too much.

There is just enough Turkish in CHESTERFIELDS to give them a better flavor, a more pleasing aroma; to make them taste better.

Turkish tobacco must pay an import duty of 35c a pound; but cost doesn't count when it comes to making CHESTERFIELD the best cigarette that science and money can produce.
