ATTACKS ON CASH BONUS HEARD TODAY

(Continued From Page One) plays and employers, including a special tax on all incomes. Shortly before the day's hearings opened, Representative Mapes (R., Mich.) announced his opposition to full payment of the bonus on the ground that the treasury was in no shape to pay it now and the money inflation plan was unsound. He made his views known in a reply to the secretary of the Michigan state senate acknowledging receipt of a resolution adopted by that group advocating immediate payment. LaGuardia said the committee should consider "whether the American people through congress have properly provided for the veterans." "On the whole, I believe that congress has responded since 1919 to every demand and every request of the World War veterans," he said. "The room was crowded with ex-service men. Representative Patman (D., Tex.) leading bonus sponsor, listened from the first row. LaGuardia said the number of veterans who took advantage of the 50 per cent loan value authorized last year "far exceeded all estimates." "As I read the history of the treatment of veterans by this congress," he said, "I am just as certain as I am standing here this morning that legislation will be passed refunding the interest charges on these loans. Sponsors of this plan frankly admit the object is inflation. I submit it is hardly fair to use the veterans for the purpose of inflating the currency. That is, to devalue the dollar. We promised to pay them in good, wholesome, American dollars and we should pay them in that."

(Continued From Page One) means that tens of thousands of out-of-state tourists will be traveling over the highways, many of them in the vicinity of La Grande, and spend in vacation enjoyment. Mr. Nusbaum recently took the High school band to Corvallis to participate in place, a few points behind the winner, in the annual state high school music tournament. The Harmonious Haysees are postponing their programs during music week and service organizations and business houses are co-operating in preparing special musical features during the week.

No Vote May 20 On Special Tax Levy

SALEM, April 19 (AP)—Multnomah county's proposed special levy of $750,000 cannot be voted upon at the primary election on May 20, but will be by the supreme court today. The suit to enjoin the county commissioners from placing the issue on the ballot before the general election in November was allowed by the court. Suit to enjoin the commissioners from submitting the issue was denied by P. H. Kneeland, but the circuit court presided over by Judge Jacob Kanier sustained a demurrer to the complaint and dismissed the suit. Kneeland appealed to the state court. The special levy was to provide funds and retire county warrants issued for such relief.

Miss Kate L. Houx Will Give Talk

18 Auto Wreck Deaths In State In March, Report

SALEM, Apr. 19 (AP)—Fatalities resulting from automobile accidents during the past month totaled 18, the state police department report today revealed. This is a smaller list than the reports in the past have shown, the police department announced, with 8 under the number of fatalities during March of last year. Persons injured in the 1932 accidents were reported at 323. Most of the accidents and injuries resulted from collisions between automobiles, but the fatalities totaled two. Six fatalities resulted from collisions with striking pedestrians, while five resulted from non-collision accidents. Three were killed in railroad crossing accidents. The state police during March reported 45 arrests for reckless driving as compared to 22 the year previous, showing a determined campaign to make the highways safe for drivers. It was announced. The police also reported 27 driving while intoxicated arrests as compared to 10 the same month a year earlier. Other activities of the police during the month included detection of 337 void foreign license plates on cars, 245 without licenses, 45 switched license plates, 200 cars with no headlights and 181 without tail lights. Overloaded trucks are also checked, while 22 stolen cars were recovered. The report stated 404 arrests in general law enforcement were made during March, resulting in sentences of 34 years in prison and fines aggregating $15,334. The most heinous were charged out to convicted burglars of which 22 suspects were arrested, while the greatest number of arrests and fines were for liquor violations.

Enforcement of the state laws requiring the display of receipts of registration and a drive on defective automobiles was headed up by Charles Pray, superintendent of police, at the recent conference of all officers of the state police. The conference was held at the end of last year. It was the first since 1921. Outside of naming the winners, which is the main idea anyway, Old Joe Consensus did not do very well at picking 'em in 1931. Here's how the big league clubs are rated in the pre-season dope for 1932, compared with how they were picked and how they finished last year:

By O. B. Keeler Dave Ogilvie, veteran Scottish professional, announced that he had accepted the offer of the past in golf during the recent invitation tournament for women at Augusta, Ga., which was won by Mrs. O. S. Hill. He will be playing with the famous triumvirate, Vardon, Taylor and Braid. Andrew Kirkaldy—old Andra—will master of ceremonies at the home of Mrs. S. Andrews, though he never strays far from that spot, was the hero of classic tales aplenty.

Andrew and Benny Sayers, of North Berwick, were the greatest of friends—off the course, said David. "And on the course, they usually were paired in the big four-somes matches, the international, and such. And whether they were playing with or against each other, their conversation was likely to be interesting and delightful." "Sayers, as you know, was a little, short man; about five feet four. He was very ingenious and a great club-maker."

"STAND UP AND HIT!" "When a match would be lightening up, and Andra and Benny were partners, Andra would get critical. A drive by Benny seemed not long enough, perhaps." "Get after knees, ye wee bugger, and hit the ball," Andra would urge him.

Once playing the sixteenth, Sayers sliced the drive out on the railroad track, over the wall. It's out of bounds, now, but in those days there "no such thing, on that side." "Old Andra," a huge man, clambered over the wall and looked over the situation. The ball lay in a terrible place, tucked up against a steel rail among some rock ballast.

"Andra" came back to the wall. "Gie us the loan o' yer wee masher," little mon," he suggested to Sayers. "Sayers climbed over the wall and took a peck. "Break yer ain clobber" he rejoined.

HEAD-WORK And once, in a medal competition, the opening round was played right after a fall of snow which covered the old course. Harry Vardon was in it, and James Braid, and John Henry Taylor and other luminaries. But at the end of the first round it was stalwart old Andra Kirkaldy who was leading. "I played my best," he explained, when they asked him how he had done so well in the "snaw." "So some of them watched him start out for the next round—and noticed that he removed his cap and rubbed the old putty-patch call carefully through his thick and curly locks before driving, at each tee." "Old Andra," indeed, was using his "head." He had rubbed his hair full of an oily lotion or pomade, before starting. That treatment of the ball kept the "snaw" from sticking to it, so that it rolled farther and putted infinitely better. Wee Ben Sayers is dead, now; and old Jack Morris of Hoylake—gone to join one Tom Morris and young Tom Morris on the east green of the Elysian Fields. But old Andra Kirkaldy carries on.

COAST PROMOTER TO LEAD WESTERS TO SHANGHAI SEATTLE (AP)—Now that the war is over a flock of Pacific coast Westers plan to go to the "front." Floyd "Musty" Musgrave, Seattle matchmaker for the Coast Athletic club the last three years, has resigned to open operations in Shanghai. He has lined up several grasping individuals, including Steve Sawyer, Tom Alley and Al Karasick, and will move with them to the Chinese city to show their grunts and groans. If the Chinese don't take to the shores they have arranged to go on to New Zealand.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor) Old Joe Consensus gave the baseball boys quite a taste before he came up just prior to the opening of the big league season with the momentum verdict on the outcome of the two pennant races. "After all the returns in the sixth annual Associated Press poll were tabulated, it was found that only three of the 67 contributors to the selections could be found willing to

CANDIDATES AT HIGH SCHOOL IN CAMPAIGN

Campaign speeches were made by the candidates for student body officers this morning at 9 o'clock at a student body assembly at the La Grande High school. Candidates for officers make their own campaign speeches, a custom of which A. L. Grapp, principal, approves since the students are able to determine from the speeches who are best able to acquit themselves properly when elected to office. Elections will be held tomorrow noon.

Candidates who have been selected by the nominating committee are for president, Donald Culp, Robert Cunliffe, Burke Inlow and Everett Reynolds; for vice president, Ralph Flobery, Norman Hogenson and Marion Reynolds; secretary-treasurer, Evelyn Campbell, Barbara Coolidge, Sylvia Johnson and Myra Smith. Members of the nominating committee were Raymond DeLong, Paul Finlay, Myra Smith, Dorothy Stewart and Lawrence Fillmore.

agree with the results in either league. Old Joe's slate for the National League was "called" by Marshall Hunt, baseball writer for the New York Daily News, and Harvey Boyle, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette who deals in the cauliflower business on the side. The only expert whose tally agreed with the American League was John Drohan of the Boston Traveler. Maybe the returns the end of next September will enable us to tell another story.

JOE SAGGED IN '31 Outside of naming the winners, which is the main idea anyway, Old Joe Consensus did not do very well at picking 'em in 1931. Here's how the big league clubs are rated in the pre-season dope for 1932, compared with how they were picked and how they finished last year:

ALWAYS HAD ONE Over a six year stretch the consensus permanent selections of April never have failed to identify at least one of the big league winners. It will be a major upheaval, therefore, if part of the words of either next October is not played either in Philadelphia or St. Louis.

Mills Asks Changes in Tax Bill

Warning the senate finance committee not to impose burdensome taxes that would "suck out of productive enterprises" huge sums of working capital, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills is shown here (indicated by arrow) as he appeared at the hearing on the house tax bill. He held that the current revenue measure tended to retard business recovery by placing the full weight of its provisions upon industrial capital.

E. O. N. Tennis Singles Draws 26 Contestants

Twenty-six contestants, among them some of the best tennis players in Eastern Oregon, are showing a great deal of interest in the men's singles championship tennis tournament which is being played at the Eastern Oregon Normal school this week. The tournament is of the single elimination type, one defeat eliminating a contestant. The original pairings are Ralph Connor vs. Charles McClain; Roy Nelson vs. Ralph Eastridge; Bill Temple vs. Don Poarch; Clare Thomas vs. Joe Sayre; George Plank vs. Barton Connor; Alex Dawson vs. Ray Cook; Floyd Baxter vs. Charles Hogg; Bob Hinton vs. Harold Bonner; Harvey Carter vs. Ellis Watkins; Austin Dunn vs. Jack Parsons; Garland Cole vs. Dwight Mahoney; Dallas Norton vs. Derwin Reynolds; Harold Hoyt vs. Lewis Halvorson.

Two of the matches were played yesterday with Norton defeating Reynolds 6-6, 6-6, 6-4; and Nelson taking the match from Eastridge, 6-0, 6-1.

The men's ladder tennis tournament, with 27 entries has been in progress for the past week, but has been suspended until completion of the championship tournament. Additional players in the ladder, who are not participating in the championship play are Myra Weir, Wilson Ogan, Arlo Noyes and Edward Hatt. Coach E. R. Quinn is directing the tennis activities.

So far as the boys in the press box are concerned, they probably would welcome a change of venue, at least for variety, and in spite of the celebrated hospitality of Messrs. Shibe and Brendon. Pepper Martin did well enough personally to give the boys a good show last fall but it is a long ride between Philadelphia and St. Louis, in addition to the monotony of seeing pretty much the same band of athletes perform and hearing the national anthem played on a phonograph record.

If it's economy they are looking for, what could be simpler and more enjoyable than a subway series between the Yankees and Giants? It may be about time this warfare was renewed, after nine-year lapse; at least there is a good chance for both to come through again.

The Garden

HEAD LETTUCE AND BERMUDA ONIONS You can't delay longer in planting seed if you want head lettuce with real heads and big onions of the Bermuda type. Both must get the jump on the reason to realize a garden ambition.

This is about the latest that seed can be sown for the more northerly states with prospects of success. In more southerly climates and in the warmer far western states, they have already been started and are in full growth. In sections where the garden season usually opens about May 1, the seedling plants should be ready to set into the ground on that date.

Head lettuce needs to be sown early and transplanted as it must attain its full development in the cool part of the year. Head lettuce plants should be transplanted from frames or seed boxes at about the same time that seed of leaf lettuce is sown in the open ground.

Onion seedlings need to be set out in their permanent quarters as soon as the soil is workable and danger of killing frosts is over. Selection of seed types is important. The Prizetaker and Ailsa Craig type of onions give the biggest onions. Lettuce of the head variety has two fairly distinct types, butter head and crisp head. The former type is best for the early crop and the latter for the later which matures with the approach of warmer weather.

Big Onion and All Season are well known butter head varieties. Iceberg, New York and Mignonette are popular crisp head types. You can't have soil too rich for either onions or lettuce. The growing of best quality head lettuce and Bermuda show types of onions require the best of cultivation. Fast growth is essential for both. Moisture must be supplied when dry spells occur to keep the plants moist.

Lettuce is recognized as the most available green vegetable for proper balanced diet. It contains the vitamins A, B, C and D. It is one of the easiest of homegrown vegetables in its leaf and core forms. They are as valuable from a health standpoint as the higher quality head lettuce and well grown, yield little if anything in quality. Some prefer the flavor of leaf lettuce to that of head lettuce. Both are needed in the garden.

Scathing Mrs. Smith was so upset over the actions of one of her acquaintances that even her tongue got twisted, and what she said, with withering emphasis, was: "Well, I must say her actions were very rude and craw."

Exclusively American The raccoon is a strictly American animal, native to no other part of the world.

Fifty power boat owners are chartering the Greger, the first formed Fort Worth, Tex. Motor Boat club.

Ray Pepper, outfielder brought up from Rochester by the St. Louis Cardinals, is a former University of Alabama athlete.

Five high school track meets were held in one day this spring at Kansas City.

Exchange Rates Are Lower because less auto accidents occur in the country than in the city. Then why pay high insurance rates based on city traffic? Here is a clean cut policy protecting your car, or any damage to others caused by it. The rates are based on the low accident risk of rural traffic. The rates are the lowest obtainable and the service is the best.
