After School. LEON JANNEY - popular young screen star. Chats With Parents. THE SAME BOY. By Alice Junson Peale. The teacher of the fifth grade complained that Henry was the most difficult child in her class. She called in his mother for numerous consultations and finally refused to keep him in her room. Henry was transferred to another section. And there strangely enough he gave no trouble. The new teacher said that he was her best student and it was a pleasure to teach him. The difference between a boy so bad that it is impossible to get along with him and one so good that it is a joy to have him about often is only just this—a difference in treatment. No normal, healthy child will be good if he is nagged, scolded and bored because he has too little to do.
