Butter Steady; Rumors Say Milk Price Will Drop

PORTLAND, Apr. 28 (AP)—Although increasing supplies of butter continue to be reflected in the Portland territory, trade conditions appear more or less steady.

Rumors are current in the trade that the co-operatives will cut the price of milk May 1.

Storage movement continues to gain along with the increasing production of butter, taking practically the entire surplus.

Selling of eggs by unattached producers at 1c or more below the price established by the co-ops keeps the price flat down generally and creates adverse business sentiment locally.

Spring lambs are showing a general cut in the price for country killed, this being the result of very liberal offerings.

There is some showing of weakness with slight price recession in the market for country killed calves.

Receipts recently have shown an increase with practically no trading above a 9c basis for tops. Hogs are steady.

Further fractional price reduction has been forced in the market for asparagus with increasing stocks from the Columbia as well as a fair supply from local places.

Prices appear about steady in the market for California strawberries with bulk of the sales around $2.00 to $2.15 for 96c. Quality in general is considered favorable.
