GOV. ROOSEVELT'S CHANCES DEFINED

Democratic committee, that Roosevelt would get more than half of his vote, was announced by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis' name was dropped from the roll call. Lewis is the state's favorite son candidate. Supporters of John N. Garner announced that campaign headquarters would be established in Chicago this week on behalf of the speaker of the house.

By Byron Price (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington) The Democrats have arrived at a stage in their struggle in tug-of-war where almost everything from now on depends on the six state delegations who will go to Chicago pledged to favorite sons.

If all, or nearly all, of them stand fast, Roosevelt certainly will be defeated. If a considerable bloc of them stampede to him, he surely will be nominated. The power of this group has been increased immeasurably by the Roosevelt defeats in Massachusetts and California.

Roosevelt no longer can expect to win without a struggle in the convention itself. He no longer can expect a sufficient number of recruits from the ranks of his major opponents; the battle has grown too bitter for that. The winning votes must come, if they come at all, from the favorite son states.

This means that from now until the roll call is made in progress at Chicago, the delegates from Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, Maryland, Oklahoma and Virginia will come under increasing pressure.

How It Stands—States mentioned in the situation figures out like this. Alfred E. Smith generally is conceded somewhere between 100 and 200 delegates. These delegates are all anti-Roosevelt, first and probably last.

The 44 won by John N. Garner in California were elected after a recent election-breeding campaign. It is possible that Garner's own state of Texas will switch its 46 to Roosevelt appears much more remote, now that California has joined the Garner movement.

Taking the Smith and Garner vote combined, here are, say, 275 on whom Roosevelt could not safely count at any time. It takes 110 more than this, or 385, to block a nomination. Can Roosevelt prevent 110 — or roughly half — of the 208 favorite son votes from going into solid combination with the Smith and Garner forces against him? That is the whole question.

Roosevelt's Claim—The Roosevelt claim of victory on an early ballot rests today on a supposition that considerably more than half of the 208 favorite son votes will switch without much delay to the Roosevelt column.

These suppositions — which have had no confirmation except from Roosevelt sources — are that Missouri soon will quit James A. Reed, and give the 36 to Roosevelt; and that the Illinois delegation will split away from James Hamilton Lewis, and Roosevelt will get at least 30 of the 58; that after about four ballots, 30 or more of the Ohio delegation will leave George White for Roosevelt; that William H. Murray cannot control his Oklahoma delegation, but will lose most.

Harmony a Factor—However great his handicaps, it must be remembered that several important factors are fighting on the side of Governor Roosevelt. He has no nationally strong candidate against him. The party as a whole is anxious for harmony. And the anti-Roosevelt forces are made up of such diverse elements that a harmonious unity of command on the convention floor will be extremely difficult to achieve.

BAND AND PLAYS ARE ON PROGRAM

Commencement activities at the La Grande high school will be formally inaugurated Thursday evening, when the prize winning L. H. S. band and the drama department will present a program at 8:15 at the high school auditorium. Tickets are now on sale and may be reserved tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock at the Glass Drug company, Arnold L. Graham, principal, announced this morning.

"The Romancers," by Edmond Rostand, and "Romeo of the Rancho" by the drama department, under the direction of Miss Catherine Sartin. "The Romancers" is the outstanding production of the two as far as artistry is concerned, having been written by the author of "Cyrano de Bergerac," the vehicle which has brought fame to such stage people as Maude Adams, Richard Mansfield, and Walter Hampden, the latter having played in the production recently in Portland.

The scene of "The Romancers" is set about 1650, but Miss Sartin will present the play in modern dress, with the author's costumes on which the author insists, and a modern stage setting. The two fathers, who ally plan to bring about a marriage between their two children, are played by Frank Tyler, who portrayed the father of the hero, and Myron Wheeler, the father of the heroine, Sylvette, the latter being portrayed by Melba Shepherd, while she is wooed by James Leslie in the role of Pericinet, the hero. Darl Hague is cast in the role of Stratford.

Rostand and the lines are lulling, clever and extremely poetic, worthy of being classed among the writings of immortality. Miss Sartin states, quoting from authorities on drama and literature, "Romeo and the Rancho" presents a situation, the direct antithesis to that expressed in "The Romancers," and is taken from Shakespearean drama in which an old actor, Mansfield Forrest, and his pretty daughter, Rosalind, are stranded in a small western town, the home of a small trader, only as lucky lover. The production is slightly melodramatic and extremely entertaining, with Lenn Pierson cast as the old actor; Alyce Jeannette Cooper as his daughter; and Robert Zweifel takes the role of Tupper, the bellboy.

The first performance which the La Grande high school band will most solidly and return from the state high school music tournament at Corvallis, where it was awarded second place, will be given Thursday evening. Mr. Nubatum has arranged a program which is interesting in its variety, and which the band presents with precision. It will include "March Bombasto," "La Zarzuela," "First Heel," "The Blue Bird," and "Don Quixote," a Spanish suite.

GOVERNOR DEMANDS APOLOGY

SALEM, May 10 (AP)—No more state-wide meetings or state sessions of any kind would be called for Salem unless an apology is given for an attack on members of the board of control made editorially by local Salem papers, Governor Julius L. Meier announced today. Following a meeting of the board of control, if the editorials, commenting upon the absence of Salem of the three members of the board, are representative of the community attitude, "I will not call any more state meetings such as the state taxpayers session held here yesterday for Salem," the governor said. He emphasized this decision and added he would reconsider "if the chamber of commerce apologizes to the three members of the board, or some other apology is received."

The editorials referred to appeared in the Oregon Statesman of Sunday and the Capital Journal yesterday in which, among other things, they commented that the governor spent but eight working days in Salem during the year. Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer, spent 10 days and Hal E. Hess, secretary of state, 15 days.

A's Shutout White Sox, 9-0

Philadelphia returned to old time form this afternoon when the Athletics trounced the Chicago White Sox in impressive fashion, 9 to 0. Lefty Grove hurled for the A's, allowing six scattered hits. Detroit, not to be outdone, fell on the hapless Boston club for a 11 to 0 victory with Sorrell hit-stingy. When the scorers ceased their work, there could be found no more than two hits on Boston's side of the record. The Yankees won from the St. Louis Browns 10 to 3.

Saling Iowa Hope To Keep Record In Olympic Hurdling

IOWA CITY, Ia. (AP)—The University of Iowa's ambition to be represented in the 400-meter hurdles for the third straight Olympiad rests on the slim frame of George Saling. Saling, an ace high-hurdler of two seasons ago but out of school last year, has returned to competition with a new-found ability for running the 440. He hopes to combine his stock-skipping talent with his liking for the longer distance well enough to rate the Olympic squad as a long-distance hurdler. He has run the 120-yard hurdles in 15 seconds and the 440 on the flat in 49 seconds even.

Charley Brooks, world record holder in the 220-low hurdles, and Chan Coulter were Iowa's contributions to the 1934 games at Paris, and Frank Cuhel ran in the 1928 Olympiad. Currency recently brought to banks at Lafayette, Tenn., was so old that it crumbled when exposed to the air.
