You Can't Marry

SYNOPSIS: Georgie Townsend has told Garth Avenue that her cousin, Jenny, married Eddie Townsend, so that Avenue's uncle, Grouton Matching, won't discharge her as he does all married women employees. Jenny must keep Georgie's secret, though she loves Avenue, who believes Jenny has been flirting with him.

"I suppose," said Jenny wildly, "that Brigitta Deering will be there?" "I'm hoping so, Jenny Revell. She is very lovely. Isn't she?" He came a step nearer. "But not as lovely as you are, standing there hating me. You hate me, don't you, for finding you out!"

"You are insulting!" Jenny pushed away from him, blinded with tears. "I wish you wouldn't. You played such an amusing game with me, quite slick and clever—why can't you take a hiding with a smile?"

Health

A. DIPHTHERIA YEAR

Certain epidemic diseases rise and wane in severity in a regular cyclical fashion. For a certain period virtually every case may be serious, then for reasons unknown, the germ or virus causing the disease weakens and the cases become mild and few in number.

Subsequently the disease may become more virulent. This is true of diphtheria. The intervals between the years of its epidemic prevalence vary greatly in different parts of the country.

However, as Dr. William H. Park, of the New York City department of health has pointed out, reports from various parts of the country indicate the appearance of an increase in prevalence and severity of diphtheria.

This justifies our considering 1932 a diphtheria year, and in urging all parents with young children, particularly those under three years of age, to have their youngsters immunized.

Diphtheria is one disease which we could conquer completely if all parents did their duty to their children. We know its cause and we have positive means for its prevention.

Some parents are disinclined to have their children immunized because they are afraid that the toxicant injections may hurt the child.

Yet hundreds of thousands of injections have been given to as many children and the process has been found safe.

Other parents have a false sense of security because, as they believe, there is no diphtheria around.

What they fail to appreciate is that there are so-called diphtheria carriers, persons who themselves do not suffer from diphtheria but who harbor the diphtheria bacillus in their throats. Severe cases of diphtheria may be contracted from such carriers.

No parent can afford to take a chance for the results of an undiagnosed and untreated case of diphtheria may be disastrous.

THE TINYMITES

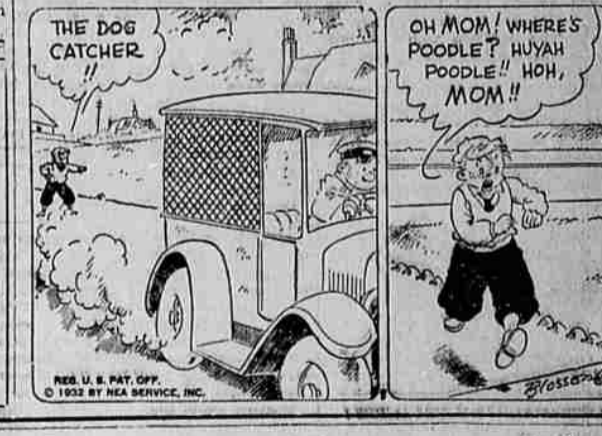

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) THE rocket made a great big rip right through the tent. "I'll bet this trip is going to lead to trouble," said Wuncy. "Shall we run?"

"We all can climb right down from here and get away from what I fear. Or maybe we had better stay and hope for lots of fun." "The latter plan suits me the best," said Scouty. "First of all, we'll rest right up here on the canvas. It's as comfy as can be."

"I'm going to stretch and rest my head. Just try it. It is like a bed. And then we'll climb down to the ground and see what we can see." A real ruff man then cried, "Well, son! Perhaps you think you've had some fun, but now you're going to work a bit. So will the others, too!" In uniforms they all were dressed. The man then said, "Now do your best! I want those big stakes driven in the ground. It's up to you!"

(The Tinymites meet a little dancer in the next story.)
