When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn.—Proverbs 29:2.

WORKING TOGETHER

During the past few weeks and months the people of La Grande have been hearing a great deal about farmers and gardeners and their plans for co-operating in the marketing of their products. Some people were inclined to take the news of early plans with a grain of salt, since nothing like it had ever been done before in this vicinity; but those plans are rapidly becoming realities.

The La Grande Public Market association has established itself as a going concern, incorporated under the laws of Oregon, aiding in the marketing of the produce raised by its individual members. The growers are thus organized in such a way as to enable them to work together for their mutual benefit, instead of working every man for himself and consequently running afoul of the law of supply and demand.

The growers are finding that any inconveniences or sacrifices necessitated by joining the association and working under one broad plan are greatly outweighed by the benefits to be derived therefrom.

The basic idea of the whole enterprise is orderly planting and orderly marketing, which is of recognized benefit to producers and consumers alike. Members of the association get together and agree on the kinds and quantities of products each will raise, thus preventing oversupplies and scarcities which usually play havoc with the prices.

Now that the producers are learning to work together, it is up to the consumers to co-operate with them in every possible way, for that is the only way we can hope to build a fundamentally sound and prosperous community. And by the word "community" we mean the entire valley, both city and country, both farmers and business men.

Local housewives can co-operate by insisting on local fruits and vegetables when they are buying their daily food supplies, and especially when canning. Most women know that all kinds of fruits and vegetables in the Grande Ronde valley mature later in the season than do those of Milton-Freewater and Western Oregon districts; and they also know that most local products are of finer quality than those shipped in.

It will therefore be to the distinct advantage of all concerned if local women will watch the local market and arrange their canning so as to make use of local products. Local strawberries are now coming on, and the growers call attention to the fact that the local product is a solid variety much more suitable for canning than the softer varieties brought in from other localities. Moreover, the use of local berries means employment for scores of local people, and more money in circulation in this county. Always ask for home-grown fruits and vegetables.

HOOVER GETS HUGE OVATION AS NOMINEE

ed with George Akerson, one of his political advisors, to the White House proper.

There, with Mrs. Hoover, he listened to the nominating speech over a radio in the second floor library of the mansion.

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—In wild but pleasant disorder the lid went off the Republican national convention today when the name of Herbert Hoover was placed in nomination.

In the parade of states Oregon followed California, which was first, and the Oregon banner was carried by Mrs. Pat Allen, newly elected national committeewoman. She received the banner from Chairman Russell Hawkins who remained in his seat.

Most of the other Oregonians leaped into the parade behind Mrs. Allen's banner, but Hawkins, L. N. Sandblast, Wilber Henderson and Frank N. Derby remained seated. They said they felt that since Oregon was pledged to Joseph I. France, that much respect was due their candidate. Behind them sat about half of the Washington delegation, although the delegate banner and the alternate banner of that state was in the parade.

The Oregon alternate banner was not moved from its place.

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 16 (AP)—The final session of the Republican convention was called to order at 11:43 a. m.

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Herbert Hoover was pictured as the "ideal standard bearer of the Republican party" today by Joseph L. Scott of California in nominating his old friend for the presidency.

Scott told the delegates to the Republican national convention that the president was a "past master in that greatest of all branches of engineering that I like to think of as 'human engineering'."

Life of Service
Mr. Hoover was described as a "man who has given and is giving his time, his energy, his whole being to service in behalf of his fellowman."

Scott urged his hearers to reflect upon the trials, tribulations and the spirit of the pioneers in this country.

"We have an illustrious example of such a spirit—the spirit of one who, through the last long grueling year, stood at the helm as the captain of our ship of state, and has steered the vessel safely through fog and hurricane, and passed the terrors of the lee shore," Scott said.

"At times upon the ship's bridge he has stood alone with his thoughts—alone with his conscience. He has never lost faith. He has never relinquished his soul for the applause of the moment. He stands today

SCOTT SAYS THAT IN THESE DAYS OF "ATLANTIC COMMUNISM AND ILL STARRED MILITARISM," HE BETTER RENEW OUR COURSE BY THE FIXED PRINCIPLES OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Scott said that in these days of "atlantic communism and ill starred militarism," he better renew our course by the fixed principles of the republican party that fundamentally must live and will live if, with God's help, we do our full duty.

"The president's life," the Californian said, "typifies the 'typical values' and 'exemplifies the undaunted courage of the real American sprung from the grass roots of the nation.'"

"The Californian told how Lincoln's nomination was greeted with derision by half the states and added that 'today the skeptic and cynic are still around and about us.'"

"The weapons of contemptuous assaults and scurrilous innuendoes are at work today throughout the land in vain effort to besmirch the character of a great American."

Hoover Meets Trials Well
"He has been weighed in the balance and has not been found wanting, because modestly and fervently he has fulfilled his pledges," the Californian continued.

"He has come back to us with his shield unharmed and his head unshaken. He has taught us to strain our individual selves to the limit rather than cowardly to lie down under a paternal government because he knows that rewards come to those who bear the burden of the heat of the day."

"With hearts full of gratitude and fidelity, we of his own state of California—the state of our love and devotion—proudly present this home-spun American, a man in the best acceptance of that term, lead us to victory in November as '13' next president of the United States."

"I nominate him and I give to you as your candidate our great Californian—Herbert Hoover."

"We of the Republican party are proud that he has justified the trusteeship that we so confidently committed to his hands. He has remembered the words of the good book that righteousness comes before peace and that not to him who inflateth but to him who endureth shall come the victory."

By Byron Price (Associated Press Staff Writer)

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 16 (AP)—The Republican party, in noisy and demonstration-louder convention, gave a new pledge of support today to President Hoover.

Reaching at last the one item of the "bullet bill" on which there was substantial unanimity—renomination of the president—the convention marched in a long and brilliant parade.

side in his honor, with the standards of the states crowding one another thickly for places in line.

California led off, its delegation jumping to its feet shouting when Joseph L. Scott, of Los Angeles, making the Hoover nominating speech, concluded with a tribute to the leadership of the Californian.

At the head of the circling delegates Governor James Rolph of California and Governor William T. Gardner of Maine, whose seats were near together in the front row of the delegate section, joined in carrying at the head of the parade a 30-foot banner, reading:

"Prove Maine to California, press on with Hoover."

A shouting, dancing holiday parade it was. All the familiar paraphernalia of convention demonstration had been provided. A band mixed with the marchers, winding in and out among the delegates.

Tin horns and whistles added their discord to the riot of noise.

High above, five thousand toy balloons, every color of the rainbow, were released to float far and wide across the broad hall, their tints enlivened by the daylight glare from the ship of splendor. The speaker's stand a delegate held high the first picture of the president to be displayed in the convention.

This renomination over, the delegates had only to select a running mate before going home. It looked more and more like a renomination for Vice President Curtis, too, as the vote approached.

practiced on the straight away along the railroad tracks for lack of a field. One boy was posted to announce the coming train. The power of the train must have inspired the team for that year the greatest track meet held previous to 1928 was added to L. H. S. history.

In the first days of the forward pass, Mr. Heidenreich played full back on the La Grande football team along with Merle Childers at half back and Bill Drinkoll at tackle. With an arm developed by discus throwing in which he held the record at the University of Oregon, he soon became famous for his ability to throw the football from one end of the field to the other.

Mr. Heidenreich set the record in the discus in 1912 in Eugene, and three years ago he was able to throw the pan within four feet of his record.

Not only for his athletic ability was Mr. Heidenreich noted in La Grande, but also as a singer. He came to La Grande, while a student at college, and appeared in two performances at the Stewart Opera house, with the University of Oregon glee club, joining his vocal achievements with such singers as Raymond O. Williams and Merlin Batley, both well known La Grande musicians.
