"Wet Parade" Is Saga of Mooted Liquor Question

(A Review) When beer was sold behind swinging doors for a glass, the so-called "good old days," will be pictured again in "The Wet Parade," which opens for a two-day run tomorrow at the Liberty theatre. The prohibition question has been the inspiration for the picture which is practically a saga of the entire movement from pre-war days up to modern times. J. E. Wright, manager of the Liberty, states: It is said that old-timers have collaborated in recalling memories of famous pre-war drinking places in order to give the scene accurate local color, while younger members have assisted in constructing replicas of the modern "speakeasy." From the saloon through the passage of the 18th amendment to the rise of the bootlegger and the speakeasy, the picture moves, depicting both sides of the question.

The cast, said to be one of the strongest assembled in a picture recently, presents two episodes, the parade in the south and the parade in the north. In the former are Dorothy Jordan, Lewis Stone, Nel Hamilton, Emma Dunn, Frederick Burton, Reginald Barlow, John Larkin and Gertrude Howard. The parade in the north is presented by Robert Young, Walter Huston, Jimmy Durante, Wallace Ford, Myrna Loy, Joan Marsh, John Miljan, Clarence Muse, Clara Blandick, Forrester Harvey and John Beck.

Ray Johnson, Leonard Johnson, H. A. McGinnis and J. W. MacClaran. They said they planned to begin shearing at Shedd Springs, on the road to Flora, next Monday. Mr. MacClaran visited his mother, Mrs. C. A. MacClaran and his brother, Scott, of Toledo, who are La Grande visitors.

FRANCE TAKEN FROM PLATFORM BY POLICEMEN (Continued from Page One.) out of sight of the crowd. The nomination meantime had been closed and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., was recognized to second the nomination of Hoover. France himself had been nominated for the presidency a moment before by L. B. Sandblast of Portland, Ore. The former senator won the presidential preference primary in Oregon, being the only candidate on the ballot and the state delegation of 13 was bound for him. As this nomination concluded the delegation from France's home state rose in its chairs waving pictures of President Hoover. Amidst some confusion that ensued France strode from his box in the seat near the rear of the speaker's platform, saying he wanted to nominate Coolidge and insisting "on my rights to address this convention."

"You are not a delegate," Chairman Snell told him. "You have no right to speak here." "I have a right to talk. I am a delegate. Here are credentials. I am a delegate from Oregon. Look at them," said France. Snell was joined by Nathan W. M. MacChesney, assistant sergeant-at-arms, who started shoving France back from the speaker's platform. Everet Sanders, sergeant-at-arms, and an assistant grabbed France and started moving him from the platform. "You will have to carry me off," shouted France. "I have my rights. You know what I am going to do and you are trying to stifle me." Policemen escorted him downstairs as he continued shouting protests. As MacChesney stood beside the disheveled, perspiring France, the latter leveled his finger at the Chicagoan and shouted: "You'll be sorry for this."

France's answer to a direct question as to why he was ejected was: "They did not want me to nominate Calvin Coolidge."

"I wore the badge of William B. Jackson, national committee from Maryland," he said. "That gave me every right to be on that platform." MacChesney told France he could go anywhere in the convention hall except on the platform.

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—The vigorous but futile effort which Joseph I. France has made for the Republican presidential nomination today reached the convention floor with his nomination by L. B. Sandblast of Portland, Ore.

France, former senator from Maryland, claims approximately 231 votes because of balloting for him in preference primaries but indications were that he would get few—if any—since the voting began.

Sandblast, from a state where France won the Republican preference primary, said: "If you nominate this man for the presidency, you will, I believe, advance the interests of the republic through a certain victory next November for the Republican party." He said that he had been attracted to France by his clear enunciation of vital principles and then read appeals made by France. "This staunch Republican," Sandblast said, "occupies a unique position in our national life. At times he has been called too radical, at others too conservative. He belongs neither to the ring wing of freedom nor to the left wing of license. He is as radical as the declaration of independence and the constitution of the United States and as conservative."
