When Nugent Talks He States Facts
Monroe, La.—E. D. Nugent, retired Louisiana farmer, residing at 209 Drew St., said: "Ergon is certainly wonderful for toning up the system. I feel wonderfully improved, although I've only been taking it for ten days. Ergon Soft Mass Pills relieved me of constipation and straightened me out as nothing else ever has. I have thousands of friends all over Louisiana who know that a statement from me means facts."

Promise Youths Organize Team, Build Diamond

By Mrs. Bertha Carper (Observer Correspondent)

PROMISE (Special).—The boys and young married men met at the grange hall, Thursday evening and organized two ball teams, with Harvey McDonald captain and Henry Carper manager. They met at the grange hall Saturday and did some grading and clearing off and repairing of the ball diamond and some practice playing in the afternoon. Sunday afternoon, the two teams played a very interesting game, the score at the end of the ninth being 31 to 18 in favor of team No. 1. Leo Kenworthy and Gilbert Lyons made a business trip to Day Ridge

Monday.
Mrs. Arthur Wallace, John Lyons, and Mrs. Tex Williams were transacting business in Wallawa, Monday.
Mrs. Alice Smith left Saturday for Portland and McMinnville where she expects to visit for some time.
Frank Carper left Saturday as a delegate to the state grange at Silverton.
Chester Corbett finished shearing his sheep Tuesday. He and Duane and Ray Henderson have done all the shearing by hand. Miss Myra Corbett has been doing her cooking. The sheep are on Middle Point.
Frank Lindsey came in Tuesday from his home in La Grande and has been busy planting late garden at the A. E. Carper place.
Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Lindsey, of La Grande, were here Wednesday and Thursday visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Carper.
Lee Smith is spending a week with his daughter, Mrs. Maurice Teel on the Eden Ridge.

Ernest Johnson, county commissioner, was in Promise Saturday and returned road supervisor, John Carper, to stop the road work as only emergency work would be done now until later in the season.
Ord Wortman, of Powawaska, was on the Promise ridge Monday looking up some cattle and horses. He spent the night at Charley Moore's. Ruby Trump, of Maxville, is visiting Myra Corbett this week.
Lucella Carper returned home Sunday from visiting her brother, Howard, and family on Sunny Side.
C. P. Carper and three sons, Harold, Robert and Melvin and Frank Lindsey were working the Carper grange Monday, using four horses and the county tractor. This was donated work.
Ernest Johnson who owns a large band of sheep informs us that buyers have quit buying wool at any price. Melvin Carper helped Alvin McDonald shear sheep Friday. Alvin has a small band of about 40 head of fine sheep.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Bethel and Henry and Ernest Snouffer attended the Troy dance Saturday night.
Maxine Bethel and Lillian Carper are visiting this week at Roy Carper's on Eden Ridge.
John Carper and Arthur Wallace were building line fence Monday.
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carper and baby, Loveta, are staying with Mr. Melvin Carper, Barton.
Fred Schuller and Frank Ward are playing with the Promise boys.

It was very warm here Saturday, Sunday and Monday and Monday we received a nice shower with some hail in places, but not sufficient to do any damage.
C. P. Carper put a new roof on one of his barns this week.
The young people's Sunday school class met at the home of Mrs. Nellie Flesham Sunday evening for song practice.
Mrs. Emily Phillips went to Wallawa Saturday and is visiting there this week.
Mr. and Mrs. Edd Carper and Winnie Roby visited at Howard Carper's Monday.
Edgar Denton was at Roy Henderson's getting a load of poles for barn rafters Monday. Mrs. Denton went with him and visited her daughter, Mrs. Roy Henderson. The snow broke the barn down last winter and he has the frame repaired and is putting on the roof.
Mrs. Doris Wheeler visited her mother, Mrs. Vesper Henderson Sunday.

You Can't Marry
by Julia Cleft-Addams

SYNOPSIS: "You can't take my job away from me, it's just you cross wiring," George told Jenny. She had persuaded Jenny to marry him, but George would not let her. He would stand by her side until she was dead, but he would not let her marry him. He would stand by her side until she was dead, but he would not let her marry him. He would stand by her side until she was dead, but he would not let her marry him.

Chapter 33. BLAZING LUNACY
JENNY tried to explain Grattott Matching's friendliness to George when she had carried in the chocolate and was perched on George's bed, drinking it.
"So I think I had better go and see him every day until he says he is tired of me, don't you?" she concluded.
George had collapsed into her pillows in amazed merriment.
"I suppose so, but really, it's not much good asking me—you seem to know exactly how to manage him! I can't hope to improve your technique!"
Jenny stirred her chocolate, stilling a sigh. George was not being witty, she was genuinely of the opinion that Jenny was maneuvering herself into a millionaire's favor so that she might get some benefit or other.
"He may leave you every last cent he owns, Jenny-ween," George was babbling. "When he does don't forget old friends, will you?"
"It's not likely that he will leave me anything," Jenny mused. "He has his money, but he has his mind. He has his money, but he has his mind. He has his money, but he has his mind."

"You're very vehement about it." "There's no other way of convincing you, George." "How do you mean—oh, I see! But I wasn't getting at you and Eddie," explained George, with the large simplicity that is sometimes better than oceans of tact. "I got the idea, for one wild moment, that you were interested in Garth Aveney."
"I think we had better both turn in. You're getting inquisitive," Jenny's smile felt nailed to her face. Oh, to be alone!
"Yes, I must sleep. I have a heavy date tomorrow. Sorry I was such a fool about Aveney. Only—"
She stopped pummeling her pillows and turned inquisitive, amber eyes upon Jenny and her smile. "Why did you ask me if you could give me and Eddie away to him? It was such an amazing suggestion, especially now he's boss, that I naturally wondered—"
Jenny smiled steadily down at the tray she carried.
"I didn't realize this evening that he had been told I was 'Mrs. Townsend.' And I forgot I was supposed to be, and I had myself announced as 'Miss Revell.' And—"
"Oh, that's all?" George slumped cosily back and yawned. "Oh, well, that's nothing to worry about—heaps of married women use their maiden names. And Aveney would probably only think that you were so newly-married that you were shy."
"Also I was under the impression," Jenny ploughed on, "that you had told him about yourself and Eddie. I thought you told him that first night when we met him, with Ryder Vale."
"My dear kid, I don't confide my love-affairs to perfect strangers!" George's eyes were getting franker and franker. "It's unwise—and in this case, it would have been suicidal. Imagine the situation when I discovered, as I should have by the end of the evening, that this perfect stranger was the Old Man's nephew—who I know was to take over from the Old Man in the near future! No, no, little George may be all kinds of a fool, but she isn't that kind yet!"
She snuggled down under the covers, stretching her long limbs one hand under her cheek. Jenny rubbed her smile away—no need to keep it there, actually, now that George was so nearly asleep. The big question could be asked with a pretense of indifference in one's voice only. She turned the words over in her mind. Supposing she said quite simply "Garth Aveney wanted you to marry him, didn't he?" Or would that appear prying—?
She had opened her mouth to ask it when George's crowses murmur took shape.
"Good thing you haven't fallen for Aveney—he's marrying Higit to Deering, the actress, as soon as she's free. I forgot who her last husband was, but she has just divorced him. . . . Turn the light out at the door, honey, as you go."
(Copyright, Julia Cleft-Addams)

Jenny heard the secret of Aveney's test to George's husband. Her employer, tomorrow, and reflects she may have misinterpreted his attitude.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN PICTURES BY JOE KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

ONE seal, that played the big bass horn, made notes come out that were forlorn. "It sounds just like a fog horn," said we Duncy, with a grin.
"Each note that's played sounds just the same, but that your seal is not to blame. Why, look! The seal has puffed so hard, I think he's getting thin."
Another seal slapped at the drum. Said Scouty, "He is not so dumb! He rests his head upon the drum and almost falls asleep."
"His happens simply rise and fall that isn't very hard, at all. Just listen to him, Timon. Hear what good time he can keep!"
SOON Duncy said, "I wonder what real tricks they know. As like as not, they've all been trained in something. I am going to have some fun."
"The rest of you can watch a bit. Pick out a place where you can sit." And so the Tinymites all sat down to see what would be done.
A trunk of trick stuff stood nearby and Duncy said, "I guess that I will take this rubber ball and try some of my tricks right now. 'It'll come to the seal, you see, and he will toss it back to me. You kids may not believe it, but that big seal knows just how.'"
THE ball went sailing through the air and Duncy promptly shouted, "There! What did I tell you? Gee, that seal is clever as can be."
Upon the seal's nose, safe and sound, the ball had landed. It whirled round. The seal then tossed it back to Duncy very cleverly.
"Now, watch!" said Duncy. "Here's a trick that you all will admit is slick." Once more he threw the big ball high. The seal reached out seal far.
He bounced it with his little head. "That stunt's a good one," Scouty said. "I've heard that seals are really smart and now I know they are."

Hop Markets Are Firm For Oregon
CORVALLIS, Ore., June 17 (AP)—Oregon hop markets were steady during the past week, says the weekly review of hops and frames issued by the U. S. C. extension service and the U. S. D. A. bureau of agricultural economics. Prices were unchanged from a week ago at 13 cents to growers for cluster and 11 cents for fuggles.
The demand is moderate and mostly for domestic consumption.
Official June 1 estimates of the California prune crop places it at 219,000 tons, compared with 203,000 tons last year.
