TALK BOLT AS TWO THIRDS FIGHT GROWS (Continued From Page One) James M. Cox, the party's nominee in 1920, called the proposal to change the rule "an unfortunate error." Coalition Starts in South The move toward a coalition of Roosevelt opponents to pledge themselves not to support any nominee who did not obtain the two-thirds majority began to take form in conference at La Grande last night. In the face of the rapid developments, however, James A. Farley, Roosevelt manager, said: "The vote on both (the permanent chairman and abrogation of the two-thirds rule) will be substantially the Roosevelt pledged and instructed support. I expect 650 on both. A round robin pledging the singers not to support any candidate who does not receive two-thirds of next week's convention was drawn up by anti-Roosevelt men as the leaders for the New York governor began another breathless check-up of the forces they will throw into the fight for abrogation. They claim a simple majority both for their candidate and for abolishing the rule, but their figures are disputed. Baker Against Change In Cleveland, Baker, most talked of as the compromise nominee for president if the Roosevelt candidacy goes on the rocks, said "a nomination produced from a majority riding rough shod over the established traditions of the party would be deeply embarrassing both for the party and the candidate."

In Washington By Herbert Plummer CHICAGO, June 25 (AP)—It could hardly be expected that Senator Dickinson of Iowa, in sounding the keynote speech at the Republican national convention, would overlook anything that might bring discomfiture to the Democrats. That's what a keynote speech is supposed to do. If the opposition has a skeleton in the closet or a particularly raw nerve, bring 'em out and give 'em everything you've got. That's what he was aiming at when he got around to the subject of the tariff in his speech. Even the most obscure alternate to a Republican convention knows that for the past two years the Democrats have had a holiday in the contemplation of his party for putting through the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. Now it so happens that when the Democrats meet in Chicago on the 27th of this month, the two men prominently mentioned as keynote and permanent chairman of the convention are Senator Barkley of Kentucky and Senator Walsh of Montana.

THE REPUBLICAN VIEW These two senators were among those who, when the revenue bill to balance the budget was before the senate, cast their votes to place tariffs on three or four commodities, and they did it over the protest of some of their more orthodox brethren, who still cling to the traditional Democratic view that all tariffs are an abomination. Dickinson referred to them in this manner: "It is an illustration of the avidity with which the Democrats pursue high tariff rates. For two years they have chanted their hymn of hate. The guy wire which has supported the tariff bogey which the Democrats has so laboriously constructed has been cut. But, if gossip in Democratic quarters around Chicago means anything, there may be an escape from these charges—that is politically—for the Democrats when they come to frame their platform. Under Democratic leadership a tariff bill of their own making was framed and passed at the present session of congress. But when it journeyed up the White House it met a swift and sharp veto at the hands of President Hoover."

A SOLUTION Why not, the Democrats are asking themselves, put into the party's platform as the tariff plank this bill that we passed? All Democrats voted for it, including Senators Barkley and Walsh, who will be in the limelight at convention time. It looks like a splendid "out" on what might prove to be an embarrassing situation. If such a move were made, a clear issue on the subject presumably would be drawn between the two parties. And at the same time disorders would vanish. This idea is reported to be favored by such prominent Democrats as Harrison of Mississippi and Hull of Tennessee.

statement came from Smith headquarters declaring Governor Roosevelt was opposed to the abrogation of the two-thirds rule in 1924, when he was acting chairman of the New York state committee for the nomination of Smith. Quoting from a New York Times version of what Roosevelt said, the statement asserted: "Leaving out the question of Smith, McAdoo or any other candidate, I doubt if any rule of the convention should be changed after the delegates are elected, but if, after the convention has met, it should appear that the old rules are working a hardship on the party, that might be a reason for a change next year. But such a change should be made for party reasons only."

Shouse Speaks Joutet Shouse, the man whose selection as permanent chairman is being disputed by Walsh, reiterated today his opposition to the campaign to abrogate the two-thirds rule, and said he did not see how it would be possible to do away with that rule if the unit rule for states remained in effect. Shouse said it would be possible, if the two-thirds rule were wiped out and the unit law were not, for 28 per cent of the delegates to nominate the Democratic candidate for president. The move for organization came from the south and from leaders also unfriendly to the cause of Governor Roosevelt. The action was indicative of the intense feeling aroused over the sudden Roosevelt move to do away with the two thirds rule. How far the movement for members of the party against the nominee selected without the two thirds vote will get is problematical but it is under way.

Senator Glass of Virginia already has taken the lead along this line, announcing "I cannot support any candidate who takes the short cut to nomination that way." A meeting of the forces standing by the two thirds rule is contemplated and a resolution is being drafted to pledge them against support of any candidate who gets the nomination by only a majority vote. Meanwhile the friends of Governor Roosevelt were standing pat on their determination to do away with the two thirds rule and were making an intensive check-up of delegates to make certain of their ability to carry out the program.

CHICAGO, June 25 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith declared today that those seeking to abrogate the two thirds rule in the Democratic convention were "as good as licked already." "How is the two-thirds fight getting along?" Smith was asked as he opened his morning press conference. "It's a bit grimy," he said with a grin, "but it's still in the ring." "The 1928 standard bearer look-over the room and added: "They're as good as licked already but they're still talking about it." Smith then saw John F. Curry, Tammany leader, who has become the mystery man of the convention because he has not expressed a preference among the candidates. "We had nothing to say to each other about the convention—there was too much of a crowd around." He said he had also seen Ritchie of Maryland but there was no political talker. He has not seen Mayor Walker since his arrival yesterday.

CHICAGO, June 25 (AP)—After a conference with James A. Farley, the Roosevelt campaign manager, Senator Walsh of Montana said today "any time is a good time to abrogate the two-thirds rule." Walsh, the Roosevelt choice for permanent chairman, earlier had declined to reveal his attitude on the rule at this convention.

CHICAGO, June 25 (AP)—A chorus of "boos" today interrupted Bishop James Conroy Jr., as he appealed to the Democratic resolutions committee for a declaration in favor of prohibition in the party platform.

which the child learns bladder and bowel control has far reaching and permanent effects upon his whole personality. What parents hitherto have almost universally failed to realize is that this control can be achieved only through the relinquishment of what is, to the child, real comfort and pleasure. The human being at any time hates to give up pleasure. He will do so only under the most extreme pressure. In the case of the child this pressure is in the form of parental disapproval, the threatened withdrawal of parental love, to which the child, in his complete helplessness and dependence, must yield. It is important that the child's training in cleanliness be carried on with no more disapproval than is absolutely necessary. When he feels himself to be too harshly handled, when punishment for failures is excessive, he develops a feeling of hate against those who treat him so. To be sure this feeling is mixed with many others, love among them, but a large element of hate in his emotions is bound to make things difficult. It causes him to be negative, stubborn, over-aggressive, cruel even. There are other far-reaching effects—but those mentioned suggest how important is the manner of this one piece of training.

UNIVERSITY GIFTS REACH HIGH TOTAL Burt Brown Barker Says Donations in Money, Books, Very High. UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, June 25 (Special)—Citizens of Oregon, educational foundations in the east and various organizations during the past year made gifts to the University of Oregon totaling approximately $145,000, it was announced here this week by Burt Brown Barker, vice president of the university. Substantial cash amounts, as well as objects of art, books and other material that is hard to estimate in actual cash were included in the list. One of the most noteworthy was the presentation to the campus by Mr. Barker of the statue, "Pioneer Mother," which now rests in the beautiful woman's quadrangle between Susan Campbell and Hendricks Halls. The masterpiece of A. Phimister Proctor, noted sculptor of New York, depicts the pioneer mother sitting at rest, in a contemplative mood, in the sunset of her life. It is of bronze, 40 inches in size. Sums totalling nearly $20,000 in cash were given to the university during the year by Mrs. Gertrude Biss Warner, donor and director of the Murray Warner Museum of Oriental Arts. This fund was used for museum cases, salaries and traveling expenses during the year. The oriental art collections, regarded as one of the finest in the United States, will soon be housed in the Prince L. Campbell memorial museum, which was completed and dedicated at commencement. The memorial museum, erected at a cost of $200,000 was the gift of friends of the university. Various agencies and individuals contributed approximately $5,000 to the university school of applied social science, to aid the staff members in social work and community organizations. Funds from various endowments the university holds amounts to $10,844 during the year. The student loan funds were swelled by a total of $1,094,455. Other gifts of note include the following: Dr. John Henry Nash, San Francisco, services in printing book-lets, $1,500; governor's committee for employment relief and faculty and staff of university for student unemployment relief, $2,388.20; National Research Council for geologic studies of Mount Hood, $750, and for studies of pre-Columbian culture in Oregon, $500; Fleischman Yeast company, yeast research, $900; Associated Women Students for foreign scholarship, $750; from various donors for research projects, $1,545. Several gifts for various purposes were also made to the medical school and the Doernbecher hospital in Portland.

Chats With Parents THE SECOND YEAR By Alice Judson eale Every parent knows that during his child's second year he is learning rapidly. From week to week it is possible to observe his progress. Yet one of the things he is learning which consumes a large share of his time and energy, and which is most important in his character development is often overlooked or considered merely as a part of his physical training. Old Oregon Banker Dies In California

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25 (AP)—Hyman Wollenberg, 84, pioneer banker of Roseburg, Ore., died here last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry H. Hill. Wollenberg settled in Oregon in 1876 and had extensive ranching and cattle interests in addition to his banking business.

ROSEBURG, Ore., June 25 (AP)—Hyman Wollenberg, who died last night at San Francisco, following an emergency operation, was Douglas county's largest individual pruner grower and one of Roseburg's most widely known and wealthy residents. He was born in Prussia in 1838, coming to the United States at the age of 21. He walked across the Isthmus of Panama, sailed from there to San Francisco and came to Scottsburg, Ore., in 1860.

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—A remnant of the confederate army, whose objective 70 years ago was Washington, paraded down Pennsylvania avenue today under escort of troops of the United States government. Old glory and the stars and bars floated together from automobiles that carried the small company of United confederate veterans past the reviewing stand. Soldiers, sailors and marines marched with the aged southern soldiers and at the reviewing stand Secretary Adams acted as the representative of President Hoover. The veterans arrived here by train from Richmond, where their 42nd annual reunion was adjourned yesterday.

Bakery Organized By Portland Men PORTLAND, Ore., June 25 (AP)—Organization of the Oregon Bakery Products Co., Inc., which will be known as the Dixie bakery, was announced here last night. The new company is headed by C. W. Heiser. It will employ about 100 men and will have a payroll of about $100,000 a year.

The published statement, the complaint charges, injured Welch's reputation and damaged his business. Police records show that Welch, following the accident referred to in his suit, filed a report charging that Dr. Wilson failed to stop before entering a through street and that he was driving at an estimated speed of 45 miles an hour. Dr. Wilson did not file a report of the accident as required by law, police said. The dry crusader left Portland the day the warrant for his arrest was issued and it was not served until his return here this week. He is scheduled to go on trial next week.
