By Harriet MacDonald (Observer Correspondent)
HOT LAKE, Ore. (Special) — The sanatorium people are anticipating a treat in the near future.

The sanatorium has been enriched by the gift of 40 Bibles from the "Gideon's."

Mrs. Gus Pines, of Kameha, who is finishing out her convalescence in the hospital, received a cheering visit on Sunday from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Simonds and her uncle, Mrs. J. W. Wilson, all of Walla Walla.

An interesting guest at the sanatorium just now is Miss Norma Olsen, of Honolulu.

Chas. Lockwood has been added to the force at the sanatorium desk. He is a brother of Mrs. H. K. O'Brien and well known in La Grande where he formerly resided.

Dr. P. Gill Edwards, of the hospital staff, went to Portland for the week-end to meet two under officers of the German cruiser, Karlsruhe, which was in port on a good visit.

Mrs. Ella K. Gilbert, of Colorado, is visiting her son, Warren K. Gilbert and family, in their cottage at this place.

A SANE FOURTH OF JULY
By Dr. Frederick D. Stricker
Everyone likes to see youngsters have a good time on the Fourth of July but it is of the utmost importance that this celebration be such that permanent injury or death does not result.

but there are still many accidents that could be avoided by the use of a little foresight. A little time spent in planning your children's celebration would undoubtedly save them many hours of anxiety.

Users of fireworks, and especially parents should exert every precaution to prevent injury to themselves and to others.

Fourth of July accidents are particularly likely to result in lockjaw or tetanus. This is not a cure for tetanus or lockjaw; it can only be prevented.

Everything should be done to prevent Fourth of July accidents but if an accident does occur a competent physician should be called immediately so that proper treatment can be administered and lockjaw or tetanus prevented.

Gambler's Throw

by Eustace L. Adams

SYNOPSIS: Racing along in an airplane Jerry Emory and his friend, Emory, search for the kidnapers of Nancy Westworth and two well-known millionaires. In letters demanding ransom the kidnapers have given instructions to leave the money in a rowboat moored ten miles southeast of the Montana point lighthouse. No boats may remain within eight miles of the rowboat. But Jerry and Emory hope to trick the gang by using an airplane for pursuit. Jerry is particularly concerned with catching the men, because he was with Nancy when she was abducted, and although he was hurt in an attempt to help her he feels responsible for her capture. That the captors are of superior intelligence is plainly seen from the letters. No promise has been made as to the return of the prisoners, but there are veiled threats about the results if instructions are not carried out.

Chapter 5
'THEY'RE AFTER THE MONEY'
JERRY'S eyes followed the line of Emory's pointing arm. There, perhaps eight miles from shore, were three child-size destroyers, steaming eastward in a fan-shaped formation. Four or five minutes later, off Southampton, another could be seen, idling along a mile or two off the beach. Between East Hampton and Amagansett, they flew over a half-dozen coast guard boats. The plane was flying at its ceiling, sixteen thousand feet, when its crew saw the lighthouse at Montauk point slide beneath their lower wings. They gazed down in astonishment. Hidden on the Gardiner's bay side of the point were four more picket boats and another destroyer. Between the point and Block Island could be seen several of the larger ram-chasing patrol craft, which were drifting about, apparently in designated position, awaiting the call to action.

Jerry turned sharply over the lighthouse and headed on a southeasterly course bearing straight out to sea. As he had anticipated, he soon saw an almost invisible white speck on the water which represented, presumably, the rowboat in which a fortune in hundred dollar bills awaited the kidnapers.

From their lofty seats Jerry and Emory could see that the authorities, acting in cooperation with the coast guard, had drawn a network of ships about the boat from which it would be almost impossible to escape. Yet each of the guard ships was so far away from the rowboat, as to be invisible at sea level. Jerry understood the strategy that was so evident from above. The kidnapers' speechbook would undoubtedly be permitted to approach the rowboat unhindered. Having grabbed the satchel containing the money, the criminals would turn to race for safety. But the chances of successfully eluding the cordon of vigilant ships seemed, from the air, to be slight indeed.

Jerry hoped that he was flying sufficiently high to be unobserved. Emory studied the outlying ring of ships, rejoicing in the tense excitement of the moment. What a binge this might turn out to be! He was content with life again for the first time in months. Surfeited with the hothouse atmosphere of New York night club life, he had turned the key on his Gramercy park apartment. For a while, he had enjoyed the quiet calm of the mid-Victorian house on Beacon street, Boston. But as usual, six weeks of peace had whetted his appetite for adventure. He had picked up a two-day-old newspaper with the vague idea of reading the advertisements of round-the-world cruises when his eye had fallen upon the first-page story of the spectacular kidnapings

Mistletoe a Parasite

All attempts to raise mistletoe from the earth by means of slips or seed have failed. The curious word "mistletoe" is from the Saxon word "mist" (glue) and "toen" twig. Mistletoe is a parasite and grows only on other trees, chiefly the apple, poplar and maple.

Passion often makes a madman of the cleverest man, and renders the greatest fools clever. —La Rochefoucauld.
