Nelson, professor of agriculture economics at Oregon State college wrote an article entitled, "The Black Cherry Industry on Thin Ice," which appeared in the July 14 number of the Oregon Farmer. Dr. Nelson cited the development of new fresh fruit markets as a feasible plan for the surplus outlet, and added that the airplane may prove to be a boon to the cherry grower. He also stated that the freezing in small containers for distribution to eastern markets may prove of invaluable aid to the cherry industry. Dr. Nelson stressed the need for new markets for Oregon, due to the fact that Oregon is heavily planted and is facing a price reduction crisis.

STATE BOARD WILL INVITE EASTERNERS (Continued From Page One)

for the school year starting next autumn: $17 for normal school students and $38 for college and university students.

Normal school students have been paying $12, so this new fee will be an increase of $5. College and university students have been paying a total of from $34 to $36. The new $38 fee, which is a total, including all the minor fees charged hitherto, is an increase of $2 and $4. College and university students, however, will continue to be required to post a $60 guarantee against breach, which sum is returned to them at the end of the year except for charges made for breakage of various sorts.

The board now is in the same position it was months ago when the announcement was made that the chancellor would be selected from educators outside the state. At that time the statement was made that an "administrator," even more than an educator, was sought.

The board statement last night to the effect that "certain eastern educators" will be asked to visit Oregon, came after the board had been in executive session for 30 minutes. Prior to that session the unification committee met to discuss the chancellorship.

On this committee, the duty of which is to recommend to the board its position in the matter of selecting a chancellor, are C. L. Starr, president of the board; E. C. Sammons, B. F. Irvine, C. P. Pease and Albert Burch, chairman.

Much Controversy It was reported that considerable controversy arose in this meeting over Dr. Kerr but that his name was never formally presented to the committee, which is understood to have been divided, 10 to 10 in favor of the state college president. However, the information says, those opposed to Dr. Kerr were so vigorous in their opposition that the move to seek an eastern man was carried out. Those close to the board intimated that the two men who voted against President Kerr in the committee meeting would resign if he was selected.

A delegation from Tillamook and Washington counties requested that the Wilson river road be included in the federal aid system.

In the highway appropriation bill recently passed by congress provision is made for increasing the federal aid mileage from seven to eight per cent of their federal aid system is 80 per cent completed.

Oregon now has a federal aid mileage of 2927.8 miles outside of federal reservations. The increase of 8 per cent will add about 420 miles. It is yet to be determined whether the Oregon system is 90 per cent completed. There may be a question as to whether the Pacific and other main highways which have a pavement of 16 feet will qualify as completed roads.

HIGHWAY RECEIPTS LISTED SALEM, July 20 (AP)—Total receipts for the state highway fund collected by the secretary of state's office for the year ending June 30, were $15,574,206, or $1,242,212 less than receipts at the same time last year. The report for the year on the highway fund was announced today by Hal E. Hoge, secretary of state.

The decrease was due to the collection of only one-half year of the one per cent market road tax, which was abolished by the last legislature, amounting to more than half million dollars decrease in motor vehicle licenses of about $446,000 and about half million decrease in the gasoline tax, the report showed. Bond sales increased about a half million this year over a year ago.

Democratic leader, was master of ceremonies, and in his opening address outlined briefly the activities of the party during the past several years.

Gov. Governor Pierce and Mr. Fitzgerald were the main speakers of the evening while Senator King called on prominent party leaders who were among the guests at the banquet.

Mr. Fitzgerald has the distinction of being one of the few candidates for delegate who carried all of the 18 counties in the second district. He described his trip to Chicago, including the vicissitudes of fortune which he and Mrs. Fitzgerald experienced during their stay in Chicago, and on the subsequent trip back to La Grande by automobile.

The two main questions which concerned the convention this year were prohibition and the farm board issue involving the election of unnecessary bureaucrats. Oregon's delegates lost only one vote at the convention and that in the balloting for vice president. The delegation was a leading figure in the session and Mr. Fitzgerald believes that the West is coming into its own if co-operation is sustained.

Present Speaker "The present economic situation is not merely a depression but a change of condition," Mr. Pierce stated, describing it as a fight between the advancement of capitalism on the common man and a struggle between machines and man. The struggle has sapped up the money with which man lives, said Mr. Pierce, asking "is man to be foolish enough to allow civilization to decay because they haven't enough money to exchange products?" The speaker recommended Claude Bowers' book, "The Tragic Era," in which the author shows the rise of capitalism and the ills and wrongs of special favor, and Mr. Pierce quoted him in presenting a resume of presidential campaigns and their results.

Teddy Roosevelt, a member of the same family of which Franklin Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for president, is a part, was described by Mr. Pierce as an untarnished leader. President Hoover in his office apparently knew nothing of the heavy guard at the residence.

President Hoover today faced a threat that he must call a special session of congress within 24 hours to pay the bonus or the White House will be picketed.

The warning came from Urbah Ledoux, "Mr. Zero," just before Major General Smedley D. Butler advised a ragged crowd of veterans at their camp that if they did go home they should work at the polls to "lick... those who are against you."

Secretary Takes Petition Ledoux tried to deliver to President Hoover a petition demanding the special session. A White House secretary took the request along with promise by Ledoux that if the other veterans here won't help he will picket the White House alone.

The suggestion from Ledoux that the reconstruction finance corporation immediately pay off the bonus certificates also went to the president.

Butler's pep talk to the veterans resounded with the forceful phrases that kept him under the constant scrutiny of higher-ups while he was in the marine corps. He assured the bonus seekers they are "the best behaved segment of society in America today," and told them to "hang together or you aren't worth a damn."

The former marine walked about camp for several hours, finally bunking for the night in a tent with Walter W. Waters, commander in chief of the bonus expeditionary forces.

100 MORE NEAR WASHINGTON GREENSBURG, Pa., July 20 (AP)—One hundred men, women and children today pushed on toward Washington to join the bonus campers. They are survivors of 2500 persons who left Los Angeles by automobile several days ago.

Seeking relief via a loud-speaker system, they camped here last night and left today for Gettysburg, Pa., where they expect to camp tonight. Appeals for soap were made last night. There are 20 children, ranging from two months to 11 years, in the group.
