atternoon. If you're not in I'll leave a message."

"I'll be thinking about you—every minute."

"I'll be thinking about you, too!"

Preclous moments. Ecstacy to be treasured and relived again and again in memory.

The cab stopped a block from the Dixon home. It was time to say goodby. Cherry's lips formed the words but they were crushed against Dan's. His arm tightened about the girl. Realization that they were leaving one another suddenly became a cruelty not to be endured.

"I must go now, Dan. I must!"

She spoke the words but still she healtated. Shyly the girl took Phillips' face between her two hands, lightly and swirtly placed a kias on his forehead, then drew away.

She was outside the cab now, smilling back at him.

"Tomorrow—remember I'll call."

Dan Phillips, alone in the gloom of the the taxicab, told the driver to turn around and head for town. He leaned back against the seat. Suddenly his eye lighted on the cab meter.

Cherry slipped through the hedge, crossed the garden and reached the side door of the house. Glancing quickly over her shoulder she turned the knob and entered.

There was no one in sight. Noise-lessly Cherry mounted the rear stairway. She had almost reached her room when she heard a door open. Panic-stricken, the girl turned.

It was only Sarah!

The woman came bustling forward. "Wherever have you been?" she demanded in a smothered voice. "Do you know what time it is?"

Cherry turned a dazzing smile upon her. "Come and help me. Sarah. I'll tell you all about it!"

What she had to tell, however, waited until later. Dinner in the Dixon household was served punctually at 6:16. It was five minutes after six by the gold clock on Cherry's dressing table. As the girling off her cost and street dress Sarah extracted a fragile crope gown from its hanger. Frantically Cherry pulled the gown over her head, stepped into black pumps and ran a comb through her rumpled hair.

"I'll have to do," she murmured stairs.

Her father stood with his back toward her, looking through a window. Her mother was busy over a square of needle-point. Thank fortune, she was in time!

Cherry said, "Good evening, Mother," as she came forward. At the sound Walter Dixon turned.

"Well," he said to the girl, "you seem to be feeling better this evening."

She was surprised, off her guard. "Why—yes, I do feel better."

Dixon moved nearer. He eyed the girl critically. "Still I'm not satisfied," he said. "Not at all estisfied with your health. I've a little surprise for you. Cherry. You and your mother are leaving for California tomorrow. Two or three months on the coast will be good for you. Exactly what you need."

"But, Father—!"

"But, Father—I"

"But, Father, I don't want to go to California!"

"Just the same you're going."
tell you I've arranged everything."

"The girl's face had whitened. Appealingly she turned to her mother. "Please. Mother," she begged, "I don't want to go away now. Why, I don't need a trip anywhere. I'm perfectly well!"

Dixon's voice cut in. "You will do as I say!" he told the girl warningly. "Suppose I tell you that six you were with! You had my you were with! You had my instructions that you were not to see that scoundrel sgain, yet you dealtherstely disobeyed! Deliberately broke your word! Well, I'll see you don't have a second chance to break it. You're going to California—"

"I didn't break my word!" the girl warningly. "Suppose I tell you had my you're saying!" Mrs. Dixon's voice was horro-stricken. "Oh, yes I do!" the girl insisted. She turned blazing eyes on both parents. "I know how you and father told the servants to lie and tried to keep Dan away from me. Well, I love Dan Phillips, Yes, and I'm going to see him. Just as often and whenever I want to—"

Eagles Wallop Ghouls 6 to 1; Good Pitching

The La Grande Eagles finished up their week of baseball hast night by taking Garity's Ghouls to a 6 to 1 cleaning, Garity's equad played much improved ball in comparison to Tuss-day night when the Eagles won 14 to 8. Both teams, sithough making four errors each, played a good brand of ball.

Chuck Wilson, chucking for the Eagles, was in hot water but once during the game and permitted only two hits in the six innings that he pitched. Hall, who hurled the last three innings allowed the Chicula one hit. In the entire game only 32 Ghouls came to bat—but five more than the minimum number.

chalked up.

Tomorrow the Eagles will tangle on the High school field, at 2 o'clock, in a no-admission game with Hill Workman's all-star Old Timers. This team will consist of a group of base-ball players who were well known here some years ago. Old Timers will be in from Eigh, Imbler, Cove, Bummerville, Wallows and other nearby points to take part in the game.

leaned back against the seat. Buddenly his eye lighted on the cab meter.

Phillips whistled softly, made a quick search of his pockets.

"Hey, buddy," he said to the driver, "Let me out at the next corner, will you?"

There was 25 cents in Dan Philips' pocket after he had paid the fare. He walked four blocks, boarded a street car and rode to the News building.

Cherry slipped through the hedge, crossed the garden and reached the side door of the house. Giancing quickly over her shoulder she turned the knob and entered.

BOSTO NWOOL

Cochran and Wicklander.

BOSTON, Aug. 20 (2) — Rapidly advancing wool prices tended to retard sales during the past week. While the volume of business was smaller than during the previous two weeks, the demand for sizeable quantities was very substantial and was widely distributed over various types or domestic wool. The rise since the first of August has listed prices to about the early June level.

THE La Grande Evening Observer

Every Saturday Evening Beginning Early In September

Will you help choose the comics?

Every member of every family that subscribes to the La Grande Observer, and especially the children, will greet with genuine enthusiasm this announcement of a weekly four-page, four-color comic section beginning next month.

In this day and age no newspaper is complete without cartoons and comic strips, and the Observer has been offering the very best of such features. Everyone likes "Out Our Way," "Freckles," and "The Newfangles" which appear every day. But now we are going one step further.

Beginning early in September, every Saturday's issue of the Observer will contain a four-page comic section, featuring the very highest class comics obtainable, beautifully printed in four colors, and containing a variety of humor that will be sure to tickle the toughest "funny-bone."

You may have a part in choosing the comics which will be used in this section. At the right is a coupon with a list of the comics available to us. Cut out this coupon, check the four comics which you would prefer, and mail promptly to the Observer office. The four most popular ones will be selected and will become permanent features of the paper. Do it NOW!
