SOLVING EDUCATION RIDDLE

After months of uncertainty as to the future course of higher education in Oregon, the state board has finally taken a long step toward solving the riddle by appointing Dr. W. J. Kerr as chancellor of Oregon's five institutions of higher learning.

For many weeks there has been a growing sentiment in favor of such action, for most people had come to realize that continued uncertainty would lead inevitably to demoralization of our entire educational system, and that it would be exceedingly difficult to obtain the services of any really competent man outside of the state because of the present unsettled condition of our system.

The resignation of Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University of Oregon, to take effect at the end of the year in order that he may assume duties elsewhere, left the way clear for the board to appoint Dr. Kerr as chancellor without offense to Dr. Hall or to his many loyal supporters.

Although it was the original intention of the board to choose an outsider in order to forestall any possibility of a continuance of institutional rivalries, recent sentiment is inclined to discount the danger from that angle, and to emphasize the advantage of having a chancellor who is well and favorably known throughout the state and who is familiar with the state and its peculiar problems.

The ability of Dr. Kerr to fill the chancellorship has never been questioned. From the little college which he found when he came to Oregon in 1907 he has built one of the three or four greatest land grant colleges in the United States, and upon the occasion of his twenty-fifth anniversary as president of Oregon State college he was most highly praised by prominent educators throughout the nation.

As one college president said, "Higher education in America has attained its high place under the guidance of a group of far-seeing educational statesmen, and President Kerr is a dominant member of this group. Modern education throughout the world is indebted to his vision, courage, untiring industry, and attractive personality."

The general attitude of the people of Oregon is apparently one of approval of the board's appointment. It seems that if any man can bring order out of the chaos that now exists, and put our state educational system into smooth, efficient operation again, Dr. Kerr can do it. And as far as danger of prejudice is concerned, there could be no possible advantage to Dr. Kerr in favoring Oregon State at the expense of the other institutions. On the contrary, he has a splendid opportunity to cap the climax of his career as an educator by developing the unified system of education to the point where it will be recognized throughout the nation, as Oregon State college has been under his capable administration.

In his resignation Dr. Hall makes the following statement: "The board's policy of a single administration for all five institutions is in my judgment an extremely wise and salutary one. It will give to the state a single leadership in the field of higher education. It will inevitably tend to integrate and unify the different institutions into a common unit and at the same time preserve the institutional identities which have played so large a part in the development of the commonwealth, and will attract because of its magnificent opportunities for service the finest type of educational leadership that the nation affords."

Other Papers Say:

DR. HALL TO GO Resignation of Arnold Bennett Hall from the presidency of the University of Oregon will not surprise those who are observers of the trend of events in higher educational affairs. It will arouse regret among well informed friends of higher education and of the university. These know that Dr. Hall has performed valuable services here. They know that under his leadership the university has made vast educational and cultural progress.

Dr. Hall came to the presidency of the university at the close of an interim that had followed the death of President Campbell. Faculty, students, alumnae and citizen supporters had all alike accustomed to think of the university and Dr. Campbell together, for the deceased president had not only been a great educator and administrator but also he was essentially of Oregon, identified for years with his best interests and known and loved by most of its citizens. The new president, coming from abroad and a stranger, thus inherited a situation of some difficulty from the standpoint of his own immediate establishment of himself. He handled that situation well and tactfully. He made no effort to bring into the university organization key men of his own, but worked with those he found. Neither organization nor morale suffered. With the backing of a well-manned board of trustees, the new president put the university again in the way of progress and kept it there. And besides inaugurating valuable educational innovations, Dr. Hall has by his personal efforts brought a million and a half in endowments and gifts to the school. It is altogether a worthy record.

problem by electing President Kerr as chancellor. Reasons for this view we have previously set out in these columns. We restate on this occasion merely the facts that Dr. Kerr is well qualified, that he has the confidence of a large majority of the people of Oregon, and that he is peculiarly the man for the present emergency. But whether Dr. Kerr or some other is to be chosen chancellor, the time for action is fully ripe and there should be no further delay.—Portland Oregonian.

SCHOOL BILL VICIOUS ONE, BROWN SAYS

came up to attend the funeral of their brother, Royal Jones, on Friday. Lewis Levy, who visited several days at the Levy home, returned to his home in Baker Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Walnum and daughter, Phyllis Jane, of Yakima and Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Skiff and daughter, Darcia Lee, spent Sunday and Monday with Mrs. O. J. Skiff at her home at Sweet Home, Ore., the first of the week.

Jack Cox, who has spent a couple of weeks with his mother here, left Thursday afternoon for Chicago, where he will train for a few weeks preparatory to taking up professional football in Boston. He was joined at Union Junction by five other members of the O. S. C. football squad who also are going to take up the professional game.

Mrs. Grace Kelsey, mother of Mrs. Will Hutchinson and Mrs. Ethel Forsstrom, came from Eugene to spend the weekend at the Hutchinson home. Buddy Forsstrom who has spent the summer at the Hutchinsons returned with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hutchinson and daughter Mary, drove over to Pine valley Sunday to take Mrs. Vera Wright and Mrs. John Nodine, who will spend the week there and attend the annual picnic of the Pine Valley and returned home by way of Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Bradshaw and son, Freddie, returned to Salem Monday after a couple of weeks visiting her mother, Mrs. Mabel Galt, and others in Union.

Women who would otherwise be described if, as under the Zorn-MacPherson bill, the educational facilities were within a radius of 25 miles from the city of Eugene, would be affected by this bill.

The taxpayers in the state would anticipate an expense of $8,000,000 if this bill is adopted, the speaker added. "This cost in additional facilities and an amount of property will very largely be an immediate one for by the provisions of the bill it is to be in full force and effect not later than September, 1933. The cost will be in addition to that suffered by private capital."

"No Economy" The Zorn-MacPherson bill has been termed an "economy measure," he added, "but there is no scouting in it. In the first place there is not a word in it about reducing taxes, and if it were adopted there would be an increase in the basic tax for higher education, but it would still be 2.04 mills as it is now."

Expenditures were reduced $600,000 by the state board last year and by June 30, 1932, had been reduced to $1,800,000 from the two year period. "Without making provisions for financing the Zorn-MacPherson bill, the plan to build the Oregon State university in theory, with the university and college features located at Corvallis upon the present O. S. C. campus. Physically impossible is the plan to house the additional courses and departments at the state college, he said. It would have to be increased by at least one-third and this expense, a conservative estimate of this expense, is $1,000,000.

Housing also is a problem with which they would be unable to cope in a town the size of Corvallis, 7585 population according to the 1930 census, with fewer than 2000 houses. "Last term," he explains, "887 of the 2661 students at the college lived in town and 1774 in dormitories. The number of students at the college of the latter quarters, the state board reports upon the recommendation of the state fire marshal, is 2498, 1926 in dormitories and 572 in quarters, especially for women students, can be found in Corvallis. If 2000 of the 2554 students at the university last term transferred to Corvallis, living quarters would have to be provided by the overburdened taxpayer for 1400 of them at a cost of $1,300,000 at least."

Students Denied Work Mr. Brown also cited the manner of student employment for the many who work their way through school. A town of the population of Corvallis could not furnish jobs and many self-sustaining deserving would be denied the advantages of the higher educational institutions.
