In Washington
By Herbert Plummer
WASHINGTON—The supreme court of the United States reconvenes on Oct. 3 after a vacation period extending from mid-June.

It hardly has been a vacation for the Mr. Justices, however, despite the fact that they have been scattered. The week goes on as usual, and the Chief Justice Hughes in Quebec at his summer retreat has worked about as hard as he would in his office at the capitol. There's enough to keep the government's great law mill grinding at all times.

Huge mail sacks bulging with documents are shipped whenever the Mr. Justices may be for preliminary study. Business of the court would long be delayed were this not done.

Actually justices of the supreme court are among the hardest working men in the capital. When the court is in session a 12-hour day six days in the week is the regular order.

NIGHT WORK, TOO
It isn't unusual for them to take court business to their homes for study at night. When the court is sitting to hear arguments, as it does for four weeks at a time with intervals of three weeks each to catch up, the justices, from Chief Justice Hughes down the line, get only 30 minutes for lunch.

He had to "be back on the bench" in the conference room. Their messengers bring trays from their homes, or from the senate restaurant. Everything is in readiness by the time the judges leave the bench.

A sort of kitchenette has been set up, with a stove, Mr. Mishig, and the like that the necessary table service may be had.

Since the death of William Howard Taft, these half-hour luncheon periods have lost much of their glamour. He regarded them as among the most important parts of his day. For it was only at luncheon that he had a certain liberty of selecting his own food.

Doctors had restricted his morning and evening meals to almost nothing. They consisted mostly of a piece of special bread toasted to hardness.

LITTLE TIME TO EAT—
It was a familiar sight to see him mount the bench at noon and almost immediately look at the menu card sent up by the senate restaurant. He would pencil those dishes that struck his fancy, and his messengers would bring up a card with guide in preparing the hurried meal at 2 o'clock.

Even so, he could do little more than merely taste his food.

He had to "be back on the bench" by 2:30.

UNCLE SAM TAKES BLAME
PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 14 (5)—Federal operatives from forty Northwest states are conducting a vigorous crusade, under the personal direction of Maurice Smith, Seattle, against the sale of liquor in the Pacific Northwest, against all places dispensing intoxicating liquor in Portland.

Smith has assumed full responsibility for the series of raids which began here Sunday.

"I take all responsibility for the series of prohibition operations in Portland and the past few days," Smith said. "This is my problem. I am sworn to enforce the prohibition law and I am trying to enforce it without favoritism or fear of con-

Party Leaders Weigh Effect Of The Walker-Roosevelt Break

By Hyron Price

Many and mysterious are the possibilities which linger in the wake of Mayor Walker's dramatic exit from public office.

Most of the politicians who will comment at all surround their predictions with provisos and reservations. A remarkable percentage remain silent altogether.

The reason for this caution is not difficult to discover. The Walker denunciation of Governor Roosevelt in one of those impromptu outbursts of public which mean one thing if followed by certain other things.

It seems quite likely that Roosevelt, for his part, will pointedly ignore the attack. The political advantages of that are patent: He not only avoids further offending Walker's friends by counter-attack, but he makes a gesture toward closing immediately an incident which caused many of his own friends pain and anxiety.

The more obscure factors of the situation include what Tammany will do, how spectacularly and effectively the former mayor will proceed with his desired "change of venue" to the people, and whether the Roosevelt-Walker split will associate itself on a national basis with the Roosevelt-Smith split. This last may, in the end, become the major question of all.

EYES ON TAMMANY
No one outside the Wisgam really pretends to know the intentions of Tammany, and it may be doubted whether the Tammany chiefs themselves have finally made up their minds.

Walker has said some very severe things about the governor, who is his party's nominee for the White House. Will Tammany, by supporting Walker for another term as governor, give his consent and support to those charges?

Already the Tiger is credited with sequences.

With Smith here is Charles Hafke, Seattle, his legal advisor, the deputy administrator from Idaho, Montana, Eastern and Western Washington and their operatives. They are not under any special instructions from Washington, D. C., Smith said.

In one raid last night, the operatives confiscated 4500 quarts of beer, more than 150 quarts of wine and two dozen pints of moonshine whiskey. Earlier in the day they had seized 924 quarts and 522 pints of moonshine; 725 quarts of beer, 108 quarts of gin; and smaller quantities of alcohol, wine, and assorted liquors. The operatives said none of the places raided Tuesday were connected with the legion convention.

At least seven persons, some of whom were described by police as having records as liquor law violators, have been arrested.

TALKS TODAY IN HEART OF "FARM BELT"

fective and direct in its operation. "Fourth—it must make use of existing agencies and so far as possible be decentralized in its administration. The chief responsibility for its operation will rest with the locality rather than with newly created bureaucratic machinery in Washington."

It must operate as nearly as possible on a co-operative basis and its effect must be to enhance and strengthen the co-operative movement. It should, moreover, be confined to so that it can be withdrawn whenever the emergency has passed, and normal foreign markets have been re-established.

"Sixth—the plan must be, insofar as possible, voluntary. I like the idea that the plan should not be put into operation unless it has the support of a reasonable proportion of the producers of the exportable commodity to which it is to apply. It must be so organized that the benefits will go to the man who participates."

The Reorganization Department would reorganize the department of agriculture, Roosevelt suggested a reorganization of the department of agriculture; a "planned use of the land," and "active assistance in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes."

The Democratic standard bearer, the present administration and the two previous administrations, in all of which the president was an important member, failed utterly to understand the farm problem as a national whole, or to plan for its relief.

He added "they destroyed the foreign markets for our exportable farm surplus, beginning with the Fordney-McCumber tariff, and ending with the Grange tariff, thus violating the simplest principles of international trade, and forcing the inevitable retaliation of foreign countries."

He called it "Gilded Fraud."

Roosevelt declared "in 1928, in his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover said: 'An adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief.' He and his supporters insisted in 1928 that we were importing $3,800,000,000 of farm products and that an adequate tariff laid on these would be sufficient for the farms, now held by institutions seeking credit from governmental agencies, the preferential opportunity of getting their property back."

"One way of attacking this disparity—the difference between the prices of the things the farmer sells and the things he buys, the nominee asserted, "is by restoring international trade through tariff policy consists, in large measure of negotiating agreements with individual countries, permitting them to sell goods to us in return for which they will let us sell to them goods and crops which we produce."

Referring to many plans advanced in the last few years, he said: "There is no reason to despair merely because defects have been found in all these plans, or because some of them have been discarded by responsible leaders in favor of new plans. It will be my purpose to compose the conflicting elements of these various plans, to coordinate efforts to the end that the program may be reached upon the details of a district policy, aimed at producing the result to which these efforts and plans are directed—the restoration of agriculture to economic equality with other industries."

Declaring "I have lived on a farm in New York for fifty years, and I have run a farm in Georgia eight years," Mr. Roosevelt pointed to his agricultural policies as governor of New York for the past four years.

Accomplishments Listed
Accomplishments of benefits to agricultural communities he listed as: "Extensive tax obligations of local communities lightened to the extent of $24,000,000 to year."

"State aid for roads redistributed on a mileage basis instead of an assessment basis."

"Assumption by the state of the cost of constructing and reconstructing roads and bridges in the state highway system."

"Assumption by the state of virtually the cost of grade crossing elimination."

"Appropriations for safeguarding of rural health were increased."
