Mrs. John Y. Richardson, State Regent,
Speaks at Meeting; Mrs. William House
And Mrs. J. L. Hall Also Are Guests

The aims of the Daughters of the American Revolution are for the promotion of children's dentistry. Mrs. John Y. Richardson, state regent, stated yesterday afternoon when she was a guest of the local chapter at the home of Mrs. J. P. Murphy, at 3:45 o'clock. Mrs. William House, national vice chairman of radio and state chairman of membership, and Mrs. J. L. Hall, state head of the Children of the American Revolution, accompanied Mrs. Richardson and spoke briefly and interestingly, outlining their work.

The four aims of the D. A. R. are patriotic education and national defense, interesting all women in political issues which will be considered in the November elections, sponsoring a large student loan fund and supporting the approved schools, many of which have been founded and maintained entirely by the organization. Relief work served later in the afternoon to the aims of the group.

Mrs. Richardson is an advocate of world peace but at the same time favors adequate protection in armed forces. She also pointed out the dangers of communism and the necessity for patriotism.

The approved schools of the D. A. R. have been founded in isolated mountain districts of Kentucky and Alabama. Their welfare work also extends into Ellis Island and Angel Island, where immigrants are stationed before entering the United States. Mrs. A. T. Hill presiding at the attractive tea table which was decorated to carry out a pink and white color scheme with a centerpiece of flowers and tall pink tapers. Mrs. George T. Cochran, Mrs. William Miller and Mrs. Homer V. Leffel, the entertainment committee, served.

Radio Party Held At Koeter Home

A radio party was enjoyed yesterday afternoon by the So-Ne-He club at the home of Mrs. William Koeter. Lively games were played and a brief program was presented including a reading by Mrs. Lena Harmon and a song by Mrs. Reta Guertner. Mrs. Ellen Ashman and Mrs. Blanche Prouty.

Dr. Sweet Speaks At P. T. A. Meeting

The care of children's teeth is essential to health, according to Dr. Charles A. Sweet, of Oakland, Cal., who addressed the La Grande City Council of Parent Teacher associations yesterday afternoon at 8:45 at the Sacajawea Inn. Dr. Sweet is the secretary of the American Association

For the Promotion of Children's Dentistry. The parent teacher association can aid in insuring the health of the children by furnishing milk or orange juice. Vigilance is required in keeping children's teeth in good condition and a plan is being evolved by the La Grande Dental society and the parent teacher associations.

Library appropriations were discussed by Hugh E. Brady. The committees for the year were appointed by the president, Mrs. N. W. Frees. Committee heads are Mrs. O. B. Maxam, membership; Mrs. Harvey Patten, program; Mrs. F. L. Hanson, hospitalities; Mrs. Smith Hendrickson, finance; Mrs. Fred Reed, publicity; Mrs. Lowell Williamson, publications; Mrs. Nell Thacker, organization; Mrs. H. J. Leonard, extension; Miss Alice Marquardt, Mrs. Fred Gehring, home service; Mrs. Louis Wetzel, public service; Mrs. Merline Bailey, education. Mrs. Maxam has called a meeting of local presidents and membership chairmen to be held Monday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock at the Sacajawea Inn, to discuss plans for the annual membership drive.

Faculty Reception Tomorrow Evening

The annual Eastern Oregon Normal school faculty reception to students and townpeople will be held in the Normal school auditorium tomorrow evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. President H. E. Inlow and the committee in charge state that a very cordial invitation is extended by the Normal school to the citizens of La Grande and vicinity to attend the reception and become acquainted with the faculty and students.

80th Anniversary Is Observed Here

The 80th anniversary of the founding of the Rebekah lodge, was celebrated at a large and impressive ceremony last night at the Odd Fellows hall. Fifty members attended the business meeting which preceded the program, and several more Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were present later in the evening.

After the program was opened by the singing of "America," Mrs. Minnie Bragg read the proclamation of the founding. Putnam Yeck and Mrs. Garnet Ruckman spoke on the history and founding of the organization.

Sunshine Pie
Bake a golden brown pie shell and when cold remove to the most interesting golden colored plate that you can find. Whip 1½ cups whipping cream. Flavor with any desired fruit flavoring and ¼ cup powdered sugar. Put lightly into baked shell and arrange on top of this half rings of lemon-yellow pineapple, golden apricot halves, rich red cherries pricked with almonds.

Inner Secrets
Peel and cut in half crosswise perfect bananas. Dip in lemon juice, sprinkle with a mixture of ¾ teaspoon pastry spice to 2 tablespoons sugar. Mask in jackets of left-over pastry. Bake 450° F. until brown.

Fried Pies
Use pastry left over from our Sunshine pie. Roll thin and cut large rounds with cutter. Make some spiced apple sauce for some and raspberry jam, etc. for others. Put a spoonful of jam or sauce in round of crust, brush edges with cold water and press together. Fry in deep fat. Drain and dust with powdered sugar.

English Pastry For Meat Pies
Sift 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Cut in the sifted dry ingredients 6 tablespoons shortening. Dissolve 5 tablespoons boiling water. Add yolk of 1 egg, slightly beaten, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Combine with first mixture. Roll to ½ inch thickness. Cut rounds of paste of a sufficient number to make upper crust for individual pies. This recipe makes enough pastry to be used for Clam pie and to be cut into fancy shapes and baked to be served with the pies. For the Meat pies we use:

Old-Fashioned Stew
Cut 2½ lbs. of meat in slices about 1 inch thick, season and dredge with flour. Dice 1 slice of lean ham, slice 3 onions, dice ½ cup celery, 2 carrots. Brown all in about 2 tablespoons shortening. Add 1 cup boiling water and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Season with bit of salt.

Cover and cook slowly until done (about 1 hour). Add ½ cup cooked green peas. If not using for the Meat pies, arrange meat on a platter, surround with the vegetables, cover with the gravy which may be thickened a little more with flour, (made liquid with a bit of cold water). Sprinkle with chopped parsley garnish and serve.

If used for Meat pies—a few potatoes should be added. Bake until crusts are brown. With the addition of a salad we have a whole meal.

Clam Pie
If using fresh clams, carefully pack over 2 cups clams. Strain, removing liquor, and mince. An equal amount of minced canned clams may be used. Finely dice 1 slice of salt pork, 8 small chopped onions. Add liquor from clams and 1 cup hot water, 1 tablespoon butter, salt, pepper, 45 minutes. Add dice potatoes (which have been parboiled 5 minutes), 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, minced clams. Put into a greased baking dish, cover with pastry and bake in hot oven 450° F. for 20-25 minutes.

Tuna Pie
Melt 2 tablespoons shortening. Add 4 tablespoons flour and when thoroughly blended add ½ cup milk. To 1 cup boiling water, add 1 chicken bouillon cube and carefully stir into first mixture. Stir until sauce boils. Rise 12 ounces can tuna in boiling water. Separate into large pieces and put into casserole. Over this put 2 or 3 sliced hard cooked eggs. Add

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN
(Copyright 1932)

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to lack money. They take a cheap apartment and struggle with housework as discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry, she meets handsome Max Pearson, also on the News.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

July brings an intense heat wave. Friends invite Cherry and Dan to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed at the office and Cherry sets out with Pearson in his car. A heavy rainstorm overtakes them and they lose their way. At last they reach an oil station and take shelter there. Pearson tells Cherry he loves her. She becomes angry and he leaves. Later they set out in the car and after a dangerous drive arrive home. Several days later Dan tells Cherry he is tired of the town and wants to go to New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI
Dan was back. Why no, he said in a startled voice. "That isn't what I mean at all. I wouldn't go anywhere without you, Cherry. You know that!"

"But you said you wanted to get away from all this. I don't know how we could leave. There's the lease on the apartment—"

"Leave? Just leave? He insisted. "Leaves—bills always something to force you into a rat! That's what I hate, Cherry. That's what I want to get away from!"

"But I see how things would be different anywhere else."

Dan stood before the window, a musing figure. He rubbed a hand through his hair, pushing the locks away.

"Oh, I suppose you're right. But, Lord! I wish something would come along to stir things up. I'm used to this sort of life. I've always pushed on somewhere else when things got too tame."

The girl said nothing. Phillips turned and brushed her eyes with a handkerchief. He crossed the room and put a hand on her shoulder.

"Listen, honey," he said. "You know I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Why, I wouldn't do that for the world! Just forget I said anything. I'm just a tramp I guess used to this sort of life. I've always pushed on somewhere else when things got too tame."

His arms were around her. "Why shouldn't I be happy? I've got you, haven't I? Say, I guess I'm just about the luckiest guy on earth. And don't think I don't realize it! That crabbiness doesn't mean anything. Come on—I'll help with the dishes!"

He was unusually cheerful throughout the rest of the evening. After they had finished the kitchen work they rode down town to see a motion picture. Dan talked more than usual. It was only occasionally that he seemed to forget and lapsed into silence. Then Cherry saw the brooding look return to his face.

She could not persuade herself that whatever was troubling him had vanished so easily.

If Dan was worried he gave no indication of it during the next few days. He was punctual at meals, liked of his work and seemed in-erected in Cherry's recital of each day's events.

There were more letters from Cherry's mother. Mrs. Dixon reported she had gained four pounds. She and her husband were considering a drive into Maine with some friends for a short stay. The letters consisted chiefly of trivial bits of news. There had been a touch of hot weather but now it was gone. Mrs. Dixon hoped Cherry and Dan were both well.

There was a card from Dixie Shannon, bearing a Canadian postmark. Dixie wrote that she was having a glorious vacation and would be sorry to return home.

August proved to be as agreeable as July had been hot and unpleasant. Cherry, reading in newspaper society columns that Gretchen Alden and her mother were extending their stay at Lake Louise, that other acquaintances were summering at Newport, attending the race meet at Saratoga or visiting distant resorts, was not in the least envious.

Her life settled into an agreeable calm. Dan, to his amazement, received the long expected raise in salary. It meant $5 a week added to the scanty household budget. They celebrated with a dinner at the Wellington that took the entire first week's $5.

Then on a Thursday evening Dan arrived home excitedly. "Cherry!" he cried as he pushed the door open, "you can't guess what's happened!"

She hurried from the kitchen. "No, of course I can't," she said. "What is it?"

"Say—wait till you hear! Boy, did I run into luck today! It's the chance I've been looking for—"

"For heaven's sake, Dan Phillips, stand still a minute and tell me what you're talking about summering!"

He caught her by the shoulders and held her away from him. "What would you say," he began, "if I told you that one of the best magazine writers in the country has promised to read those short stories you've been writing, has promised to criticize them and help him find a market?"

"Oh, Dan—really? Why, that's wonderful! Who is he, Dan? How did it happen?"

Phillips drew himself up in mock dignity. "It's like this, lady," he began. "I was walking down the street—"

"Stop it this minute!" Cherry insisted. "And tell me what's really happened. Who is this writer and how did you meet him?"

"It's not a 'he'," Dan told her. "It's a 'her'." Brenda Vall—ever read anything of hers? To tell the truth neither have I but she's one of the big shots." He rattled off the names of a half-dozen magazines to which Brenda Vall had contributed. "She's here on business. Something about some land she owns and wants to sell. Rogers usually does all the literary interviews, you know, but he's on vacation."

Cherry didn't have much to do this afternoon and she sent her over to talk to Miss Vall. It seems that years ago when she was a kid she had an aunt who lived here. She—mean Miss Vall, not the aunt—here. It made a pretty fair feature about the famous author coming back to the scene of her childhood—but that's not the important part!

"Two got to talking about writing. She's—oh, she's marvelous! The minute you see her you know you're not meeting an ordinary person. She has beautiful red hair and big, sort of gray-green eyes—I don't know how to describe her exactly. There's something about her, though, that's different from other people. She wanted to know if I'd ever written anything except newspaper stuff and when I said 'No' but hadn't been able to tell anything she asked me if she could see one of my stories. Said she'd read it and maybe she could advise me where to send it. Can you imagine that? A writer like Brenda Vall going to all that trouble for someone she's never seen!"

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at Red Cross Drug Store, L. & L. Drug Co., Glass Drugs, Inc., Moon Drug Co., or any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.
