

Mountaineers to Play College of Idaho at Caldwell

E. O. N. TEAM TO ENTER GAME AS THE "UNDERDOG"

Dope Favours Coyotes to Avenge Defeat Suffered At Hands of E. O. N. Years Ago.

With a number of weaknesses showing up last Saturday against the Baker Independents in a game won by E. O. N. 27 to 0, Coach Bob Quinn is drilling his proteges diligently this week in an effort to strengthen uncertain spots in the lineup before the first college game of the season.

The Mountaineers, rated as a stronger team than last fall and with more reserve strength, will journey to Caldwell, Ida., Friday morning where that night they will tangle with the College of Idaho Coyotes. The Coyotes are off to a running start in the Northwest conference race with a 33 to 6 victory over Albany college last Friday, and although the outcome of the game with the Mountaineers means nothing in the conference standings of either team, nevertheless, Anso Cornell, Idaho coach, would be ready to bite nails if his team failed to win.

Anso Eager to Win
Anso's eagerness to trounce the Mountaineers dates back to the first football game the Normal school played, when a surprised College of Idaho team was defeated in La Grande 19 to 7. And it was gall and wormwood to Anso.

This is the first year that grid relations between the two schools have been resumed and nothing would look sweeter to the Coyote mentor than to even things up.

Dope indicates that he will have a chance to do just that thing, with the Mountaineer team going into the contest rated as "the underdog." But that is exactly the situation that existed before that other game, and who knows what will happen?

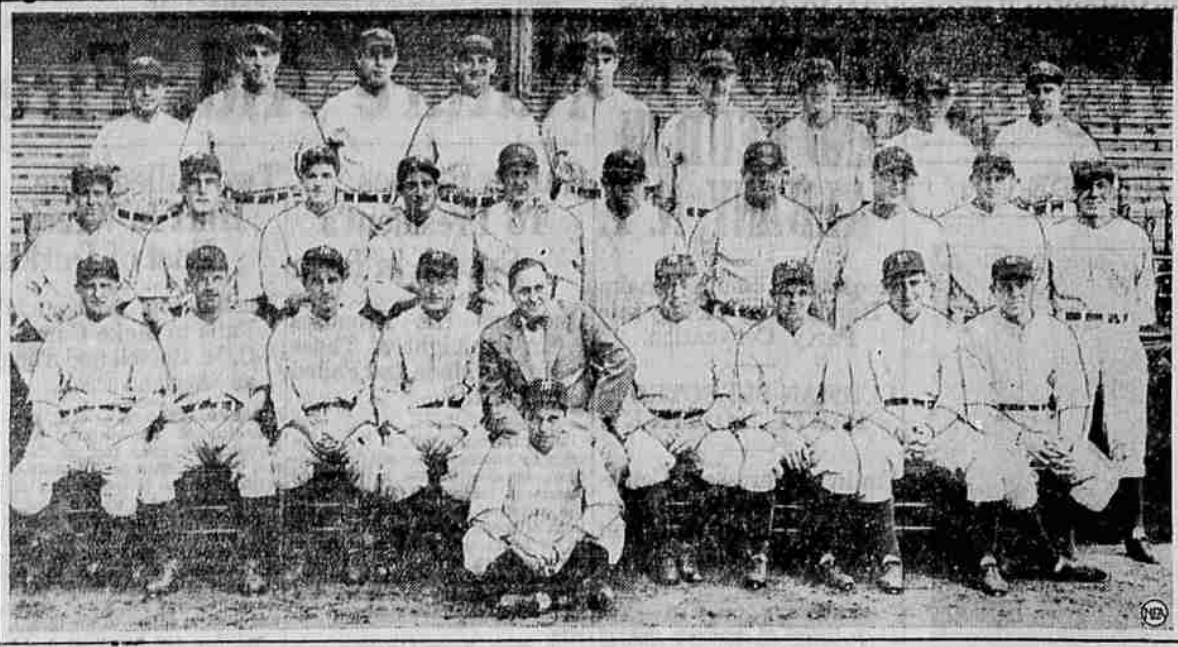

Coach Quinn is confident his team will give the Coyotes a tussle. Although not predicting victory, he is sure that the Mountaineers will make things interesting for the Idahoans.

Team in Fair Condition
The squad is in fair condition after the game with Baker, and win or lose, the coming game will be a thorough test for the La Grander. Tough competition will give fans a definite line on the strength of the team, and also will give Quinn added time in which to get his squad into first class shape before beginning its schedule against normal schools.

Following the game at Caldwell, Friday night the Mountaineers will return home for a short week of practice before going to Portland the following Thursday for a game with Columbia university, another Northwest conference eleven.

game of the season Friday evening in the lighted stadium in Caldwell.

Coach Anso Cornell's Coyotes demonstrated their scoring ability in their first home game, as well as their first Northwest conference encounter, last Friday evening when they trounced Albany college gridlers, 33 to 6. Chalking up a total of 21 first downs against their opponents' three, the Coyotes had little difficulty in turning in a victory over the Albany, Ore., eleven.

Albany's lone touchdown came early in the third quarter after Coach Cornell had inserted practically a new team into the fray. A 15-yard penalty put the ball on the College of Idaho 3-yard stripe and in two tries the Albany outfit was successful in pushing the pigskin onto scoring ground.

Scouts from Eastern Oregon Normal were on hand to watch the Coyotes perform Friday evening. And Cornell obliged with an array of single and double reverses, spinners, passes and the old trick "Chico" play with Ed Smith, guard, carrying the ball. Eastern Oregon Normal turned in a 27 to 0 victory over Baker Independents last Saturday and this week's nocturnal encounter between the Normal outfit and the Coyotes bids fair to be a real contest. Just a week later the Coyotes are scheduled for another Northwest conference game, this time meeting Willamette university Bearcats from Salem, Ore. The Willamette game will mark the 14th annual homecoming for College of Idaho alumni with a luncheon being scheduled to precede the football game.

Jones Working Troy Team For O. S. C. Invasion

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5 (AP)—Although the Trojans expect to coast to victory over Oregon State here Saturday, Head Coach Howard Jones is driving his men through hard scrimmages in preparation for the contest and endeavoring to take some of the confidence out of the men. Oregon State was defeated last Saturday by Stanford by 27 to 0 score.

Art Tafoe, advance man for Oregon State, said Stanford has the strongest team since 1928. That, perhaps, is one reason why Jones is taking the game more seriously than the players.

Sport Slants

Unless the magnates surreptitiously inserted some jackrabbit juice into the American league baseball again this year, after being a trifle dissatisfied with the "deadening" process publicly proclaimed in 1931, it is difficult to explain the slugging rally led in such spectacular fashion by baby-faced Jimmie Fox of the Athletics. Fox not only came within two roundtrip blows of equalling Babe Ruth's major league record of 60 homers but combined with Al Simmons, the Polish pounder, in the best double-barreled clouting act the American league has known in five years.

Jimmie's 58 and Al's 35 belts for the maximum distance produced the combined total of 93. This has been exceeded only once by the famous and hitherto dominating act of Ruth and Gehrig. In 1927, the Babe's biggest year, his total of 60 combined with Gehrig's 47 for a two-man record of 107.

The best the Babe and Lou could do this year, with the Yankees riding high, wide and handsome over the A's, was a combined total of 75 home runs, eighteen less than the twin bombers of the House of Mack produced.

All of which is just another one of those things that happen to be interesting even if they didn't affect the main payoff for 1932.

NEW GRID RULES STOP "CRAWLING"

Penalty Provided Also For "Piling On"—Ball Dead When Player is Down.

(Because of widespread comment on the 1932 football rules, The Associated Press requested William S. Langford, secretary of the national football rules committee, to clarify the principal changes in the play code. Following is the first of a series of four explanatory articles by Mr. Langford.)

By William S. Langford
(Secretary, National Football Rules Committee)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (AP)—Players and the football public generally have always expected the man carrying the ball to fight for every inch of ground that he can possibly gain until the ball becomes dead.

Under the former rule when any part of the player in possession of the ball, except his hands or feet, touched the ground, while he was in the grasp of an opponent, the ball became dead automatically and play stopped.

This year's rule reads as follows: "The ball is dead and shall be so declared by the referee: (A) When a player having the ball goes out of bounds, cries 'down', or is so held that his forward progress is stopped, or (B) the holder of the ball in a place-kick when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touches the ground."

The change was made in the elimination of the words "while in the grasp of an opponent," and its purpose was to do away with the dangers that came from "crawling" and "piling up."

This year if the man with the ball stumbles so that his knee touches the ground, or if he is bowled over by an opponent, or if he falls on a loose ball, it is instantly dead.

Crawling Penalized
Although it is the referee's duty to announce that the ball is dead by blowing his whistle, any "crawling" which occurs, even before the whistle is blown, is to be penalized by the loss of five yards. "Crawling" is defined as "an attempt by the player in possession of the ball to advance the ball after he has been downed; viz., when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touches the ground."

There doubtless will be cases of "crawling" especially in the early games, and this will invite "piling on" by opponents. In such event a foul will be committed by each team and under the rules the play will be played over, unless the captain of the team in possession of the ball declines the penalty for "piling-on" which he may wish to do if the gain made by his team, previous to the "crawling," is a large one.

In other words, if his team has made a gain of say, 20 yards and the runner then crawls and opponents pile-up on him, it would be more to his advantage to suffer the penalty of 5 yards for "crawling" and decline the penalty for the foul committed by his opponents as he thus would make a net gain of 15 yards and a first down. After a short time "crawling" and "piling-up" will entirely disappear.

Walter Johnson, the smoking "big train" of baseball history, today was a cast-off from the Washington American league club after four seasons as its manager on top of 20 years as its record-setting fireball pitcher.

Walter Johnson Not to Continue Managing Solons

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP)—Walter Johnson, the smoking "big train" of baseball history, today was a cast-off from the Washington American league club after four seasons as its manager on top of 20 years as its record-setting fireball pitcher.

No reason was given by Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, in an announcement last night that Johnson would not remain as manager. He said only that his contract had expired and was not to be renewed.

The name of a successor also was unknown. Griffith said he had no one in mind, while fans speculated on Joe Judge, veteran first baseman; Joe Cronin, ace shortstop, and Sam Rice, long a Washington fielder.

Except for one year as manager of the Newark club in the International league, Johnson played only with Washington from his appearance as a gangling 19-year-old rookie from Idaho in 1907.

Strikeout Mark Still Stands
From his first game in 1907, which he lost to Detroit 3 to 2, to his final hurrying in 1927, Johnson blazed his way through a trail of records. His strikeout mark of 3487 still stands.

Here are some of the other things he did while a fast ball artist: 1913, 56 consecutive scoreless innings; 1910, struck out three Philadelphia pinch hitters in a row; turned in a no-hit game against Boston in 1920; led the American league in strikeouts for 12 seasons.

In his first world series in 1924, Johnson won the deciding 12-inning tilt after losing his first two starts. He won two games in the 1925 series but lost the final.

Johnson was one of the most popular players in the league. His man-
