In Washington

By Herbert Plummer

WASHINGTON — The recent death of John Sharp Williams, venerable statesman of Mississippi, perhaps moved the capital as much as it did his home state.

"The hill" never tired of hearing about Williams or recalling the days he was in Washington, although he quit the senate in disgust to retire to his home in Yazoo City.

Senator Stephens of Mississippi once told the senate that never a day passed that some senator or visitor to Washington sought him out and asked about Williams.

For more than 30 years the Mississippian was a powerful figure in the national life of this country. But it was after he made his now famous statement that he would rather be a hound dog baying at the moon than to continue in the senate and went back home to "grow old gracefully" that he is perhaps best remembered.

STATE LIKED HIM

They used to have a saying down in Yazoo county that John Sharp Williams was prized more than the post office, the courthouse—or the Mississippi river. All over the state he was a man marked for special attention.

But he wanted only to be let alone. It was seldom that he broke his solence. When he left the senate he said that he would make no public speeches, but usually he was the first man on the invitation list when Mississippians started something, whether it was a political rally or a public improvement project.

He retained much of his old wit and satire to the last. His reply once to an admirer's praise of him as one of the foremost characters in American public life for the past 50 years was:

"No, you're wrong. I'm not a great man. As I grow older I become more and more convinced that I am like a case of near beer—something like the real article, but lacking in the kick."

WILSON SUPPORTER

Williams' career in the senate was at times stormy. Fearless and outspoken—he fought a duel once in his student days in Germany. He was one of President Wilson's strongest supporters during the League of Nations fight.

He was hissed and booed in the senate chamber once when he struck out at Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, declaring that Lodge liked to make a show of himself. He wanted the late Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin expelled from the senate and the late Socialist Representative Berger interned for their views on the conduct of the world war.

But in his last days he became singularly mellow and docile. One of his last public observations was:

"We're all little children; some of us very little children, and others very contemptible little children."

game at Groton school. His two younger sons, John and Franklin Jr., are students at Groton, of which Mr. Roosevelt is an alumnus.

WILL REPLY TO HOOVER

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 10 (AP) — Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, described in a statement by the Republican national committee as "one of Wilson's most implacable foes," and one who bitterly fought Wilson's appointment of Herbert Hoover as a war food administrator, will reply in an address here tonight to President Hoover's speech here last week.

Charles E. Huston, Democratic state chairman, said Reed would talk on "misrepresentation placed upon the vital issues of the campaign by Republican spokesmen." "His speech will be at 9 p. m., and will be broadcast by both national chains.

MRS. CATT FOR HOOVER

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 10 (AP) —Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran suffrage worker and a national officer of the League of Women Voters for years, today announced that she will campaign for President Hoover's re-election. This is the first time, she says, that she has ever endorsed any presidential candidate.

COOLIDGE AT FUNERAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP) — Former President Calvin Coolidge arrived today from Springfield, Mass., to attend the funeral of Darwin P. Kingsley, chairman of the board of the New York Life Insurance company of which Mr. Coolidge is a director.

Coolidge was asked as he left his train what he thought of Republican prospects in the national campaign.

"They're good, of course," he said.

Republican national headquarters announced that more than 50,000 requests for tickets to hear an address Mr. Coolidge will give in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night have been received. For those who can't get into the garden loudspeakers have been installed outside.

It will be Mr. Coolidge's first political speech since he left the White House.

REPUBLICANS PICK POUNDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP) — Lewis Pounds, ex-borough president of Brooklyn, has been agreed upon by the five Republican county leaders as their nominee for mayor to oppose surrogate John P. O'Brien. The victor at the November 8 election will take over the unexpired term of James J. Walker.

Pounds is 71 years old, O'Brien 59.

Pounds is a native of Lorain county, Ohio, and a minister's son.

Engaged? Marilyn Won't Say

Hollywood and New York are expecting Marilyn Miller, dancing stage star, and Don Alvarado, movie player, to set the date. Often seen with Alvarado while he vacationed in Manhattan, Miss Miller refused to comment on reports they soon would wed. Miss Miller, former wife of Jack Pickford, and Alvarado are shown above.

Girl's Picture Sends Him 10,000 Miles to Win Bride

"There's a girl I could love," was the comment of Andrew P. Maclachlan in Cairo, Egypt, when he saw a picture of Miss Evelen B. Ashley of Kansas City, Mo. So, by mail and cable, he carried on a correspondence until he could leave his business, then made the 10,000-mile trip to see her. He met her for the first time in the morning, they were engaged by noon — and soon they'll be honeymooning along the Nile. He is 48. His fiancee is 24. They are shown above.

Roosevelt, Back From U. S. Swing, Steps Into Home State's Political Affray

Back in Albany after an arduous but "thoroughly satisfactory" three weeks' campaign tour, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt launched himself immediately into the hot political fight in New York State. Here you see him and Mrs. Roosevelt as he left his train with Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman, whom he is backing against the opposition of Tammany Hall for the Democratic nomination for governor. Roosevelt had defied the Tammany organization with a threat of open warfare over the choice of a leader for the state ticket.

Grain Markets Weaken Due To Light Demand

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (Special)—Domestic grain markets weakened under a continued light demand during the first week in October and at the close prices of most grains were well below a week earlier. Continued heavy marketings of Canadian wheat, reduced demand from European importing countries, increased offerings of new crop grain from Argentina, together with lower securities markets, were the principal weakening influences in the wheat market and prices declined sharply, according to the weekly grain market review of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics. Corn and other feed grains were lower with wheat, but relatively large offerings, particularly of corn, together with the limited outlets, added weakness to the situation. Rye declined under a dull demand for cash offerings, while flax turned sharply downward influenced by lower grain prices and weakness in the Argentine flax market.

Continued light demand from European importing areas and heavy marketings of Canadian grain were the outstanding features of the world wheat situation during the week. The light European takings of foreign wheat this season are reflected in reduced world shipments, which since Aug. 1 have totaled only about 80,200,000 bushels compared with 141,750,000 bushels for the corresponding period last season. Northwestern shipments during this period were slightly smaller than last year, totaling 52,042,000 bushels as against 54,712,000 bushels, but comprised a much larger part of the total, amounting to approximately 61 per cent of this season's worlds shipments as against 38½ per cent in 1931. Argentine shipments during Aug. and Sept. totaled only about 7,000,000 bushels as against 12,400,000 bushels a year earlier. Australian currencies amounted to only 12,000,000 bushels compared with approximately 17,000,000 last season. Shipments from all other areas, including Russia and the Danubian countries, totaled only a little over 14,000,000 bushels compared with nearly 58,000,000 bushels last season. Of the northwestern shipments the bulk has been of Canadian wheat and reflect the unusually heavy Canadian marketings this season, which totaled around 150,000,000 bushels during Aug. and Sept., compared with about 62,700,000 bushels, during the same period last year.

Pacific coast markets weakened with the decline at other points but were relatively stronger than eastern and central western markets. Marketings remained below normal and receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals during the week totaled only 677 cars compared with 918 for the corresponding week last year. In addition to the car receipts, 7,000,000 bushels were received at Portland by boat and 3,000 by truck. Demand was dull and almost entirely from domestic mills since local wheat prices were still above an export basis and the foreign outlet for flour was also limited. At the close of the market Oct. 7 bluestem hard white wheat was quoted at Portland at 58@59c, soft white at 50c, western white, hard winter, northern spring and western red at 49c, sacked, basis No. 1. 12 per cent protein dark hard winter was quotd at 56c per bu, sacked, Western white and western red were quoted at 50c, hard winter at 51c and Baart hard white at 57c, sacked, basis No. 1. No. 1 dark northern spring in bulk from Montana was quoted at 60c per bu. Receipts of Montana wheat at Spokane were smaller than for the previous week, reflecting the holding tendency on the part of Montana shippers and a reduced demand from coast millers for choice milling wheat.

Continental European markets were weak and lower with buyers generally meeting only current needs and reluctant to accumulate stocks for future requirements. Prices in France declined to the lowest point of the season with milling wheat quoted at Paris at $1.11 per bu., a decline of about 30c per bu. since the beginning of the season. Prices in Germany were also lower with native wheat quoted at Hamburg at $1.37⅛. Italian markets were steady and trade reports indicate import requirements of between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 bus. Quotations on foreign wheat at Liverpool were also lower with No. 2 Manitoba quoted at 55⅝c, Argentine Rosafe at 57⅛c and Western Australian afloat at 58¼c.

30 CARLOADS OF PRUNES UNPICKED; 40 CARS SHIPPED

T. R. Conklin will operate his drier and will dry his own and the crop of Lund and Towle, while Dela Gautier, of the Dean place, is considering starting the drier to dry the prunes left there.

Miss Mary Davis who has been nursing at the Grande Ronde hospital is at home again.

Mrs. G. E. Barker was hostess to the B. Y. D. sewing club at her home Tuesday evening. A dainty lunch was served.

Mrs. E. H. Robinson, of Alhambra, Cal., is a guest of her mother, Mrs. Anna Lorenz and her sister, Mrs. Lulu L. Weeks. Mrs. Robinson will be remembered as Miss Tiny Lorenz who attended the Cove school and after completion of her school work entered the field of nursing. This is her first visit here in several years. She came Thursday and remained until Monday.

The young people of the Baptist church enjoyed one of their parties at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson Friday.

Bottles as Windows

In the Klondike region of the Yukon territory, window glass is difficult to obtain. So prospectors and trappers resort to empty bottles which they frame into their cabins as windows. The glass lets the light in, though making it difficult to see through. The space between the bottles is chinked with cement or mud, to keep out wind and snow.—Grit.

Unfilled Orders Of U. S. Steel Are On The Increase

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP) — Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation increased 15,495 tons in September to a total of 1,985,090 tons on September 30. August tonnage gained 3293 tons, but prior to this the corporation had reported 16 consecutive monthly decreases.

Early estimates on the September increase in the backlog ranged from about 50,000 to 100,000 tons, though in the last few days it was generally anticipated that the gain would be considerably less than 50,000 tons.

Wall street's confidence that the September backlog would be increased was based on the moderate expansion in the corporation's rate of ingot production over the past few weeks, reflecting a slightly larger volume of steel buying. Tonnage statistics over the past ten years show the backlog has declined oftener than it has advanced in September.

Butterfat Now Steady to Firm; Egg Trade Good

PORTLAND, Oct. 10 (AP) — Market for butter reflects two conditions, the decreasing local supply, which is seasonable; and the increasing stocks from out-state points. Prices are uniform and generally unchanged. Butterfat is steady to firm.

Egg trading continues to reflect more or less firmness. No change in current values is suggested. Receipts showed a fractional increase last week but the chief trading is in cooled offerings.

There was little change to note in the general cheese market. Throughout the country, little, or no material price change was noticeable in the week's activities.

Prices are well held at Tillamook and Coos Bay points.

Leading cash buyers have reduced the buying price on spring chickens here with all weights of live birds as low as 13c lb. although some operators have not yet lowered their price to that mark.

Further carload movement of Deschutes potatoes is reported in this direction. A car came to the Pacific Fruit and was priced $1.10 or but a dime above the best Yakimas.

Late shipment of Dillard cantaloupes of the season is here. A small supply came out of that territory by truck during the day and found a rather fair welcome around $1.25 a crate.

Owing to the lateness of initial deliveries of Oregon stock, which is not yet available, California new crop walnuts are finding a rather fair sale. Three carloads have already arrived from the south.

Restricted trading is reported in the onion market at Willamette valley sources. The Oriental business has dwindled and buyers are not keen seekers while growers are not anxious to sell at current figures.

Notes of wholesale trading:

Quinces are in liberal offering with sales around 2½c lb.

Quite fair movement Bartlett pears in open lugs around 1½c lb. for Medford offerings.

Tomatoes continue badly depressed with sales 10@15c box generally, a few higher.

Country killed meats are generally without change for the week's opening.

Peach trade is still showing but generally no higher than 10@15c box for both Hales and Elbertas.

Yom Kippur Is Observed Today

Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, when members of the Jewish race seek atonement for their sins through supplication, is being observed today by a small group of Jews in La Grande. Because of their small number, no observation has been planned although the Dalles Furniture store, of which Max Turn is the owner, and the Dora Vi shop, managed by M. D. Geller, have been closed during the day.

Four 200-pound tackles, a pair of 180-pound ends, guards that weigh 185 and a 170-pound center have lifted the Davidson college Wildcats from the "little" class this year.
