From Portland—
Mrs. Hugh Huron, of Brooks Lane, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Avery returned yesterday from Portland where they had spent the first half of the week at the Pacific International Livestock exhibition.

III—
Roy Bell, prominent Jersey breeder who lives above the Cove is reported as being ill of the flu. Mr. Bell had planned going to the P. I. at Portland but had to change his plans.

Island City Aid—
The regular meeting of the Island City Ladies Aid society will be held next Thursday at the home of Mrs. Mary Bjorkland.

Team To Portland—
Billy Duncan, of the Mill Creek canyon road, Gale Mills, of near Cove, and Allen Mills, now a fresh at the state college, composed the judging team which represented the 4-H club livestock teams from Union county this week at the show in Portland. Billy and Gale accompanied J. E. Mills to Portland and Allen came up from Corvallis and rest them there. These were probably the only visitors from Cove at the big show and this also is the first year in a long period of time that no livestock from that section has been on exhibition.

Visit Relatives—
Mrs. Earl Morris, Mrs. Leona Bingaman, Mrs. Milo Pratt and Bobbie, and Mrs. Quintilla Morris visited at the home of their relative, Mrs. Stella Witty Saturday afternoon and the same group visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Witty and family on Cricket Flat Sunday.

Observe Wedding Anniversary—
In observance of the 42nd wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hughes and the birthday anniversary of George Hughes, Mrs. George Hughes of the Grange Hall neighborhood entertained a number of relatives Sunday, October 9, at a lovely dinner at her home. Those who enjoyed the day besides the honored ones and the hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Snodgrass and three children, Claire Hughes, Mrs. Lena Geisler and daughter, Erma and Albert and Pat Hughes.

Guests Depart—
Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hunt and their son, Bennie, of Portland, who have been guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Hefty, above the Cove, concluded their visit last week and left Saturday to visit among friends in Colorado.

Sunday Guests—
Mr. and Mrs. Bert Groat of the Grange Hall neighborhood had for their guests Sunday, Mrs. Dick Hardy and children, of Elgin, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tetreau and little son, of Huntington, Mrs. Charles Baxter and daughter, Edna Brown, of La Grande, and Alvin Boswell.

Hold Back Hogs—
Hog raisers of Wallowa county are much disappointed with the present outlook for prices for fat hogs. While fairly heavy shipments of hogs have gone from that county during the summer and fall, many of the spring pigs are still held on the farms, with fattening of many lots just starting. Wheat sales having been extremely light, many have been stocking with hogs and holding the greater part of their crops for feed purposes. Some small sales of wheat for local feed purposes have been made during the last few weeks at prices ranging around 40c a bushel.

Fall Roundup—
Smutty brothers, of the sidehill road near La Grande, are making preparations to join a group of cattlemen who will go the last of this week to the federal reserve north of Summerville to begin the fall roundup of their cattle. They plan to be gone several days.

Funeral Of Mr. Hamann—
Funeral services for the late John F. Hamann, for nearly a quarter of a century a prominent valley farmer, were held Wednesday in La Grande at the Walker mortuary. Rev. Mr. Bracher of the Lutheran church had charge of the service and Paul Knauts, a close friend of the family sang two songs "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Abide With Me." Interment was at the Island City cemetery, the hearse being three long-time friends, John Speckhart, L. L. McKennon and I. E. Chenault and three fellow-members of the Blue Mt. grange, Robert A. Masterton, Frank Wright and Ed Eckley. Members of the grange, of which Mr. Hamann had been an officer, conducted their burial service at the graveside and Rev. Bracher had charge of the committal.

Sunday Guests—
Mr. and Mrs. Roy Spencer and sons, Lee and Robert and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hughes were entertained Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Art McCall, whose ranch lies just outside La Grande on the Old Oregon Trail.

To Salem—
Mrs. Margaret Williams, of Lostine, came into the valley Thursday and went on from La Grande to Salem where she is attending the sessions of the Oregon state sectional conference of the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Williams is the president of the Wallowa County Branch of the A. A. U. W.

Visits Relatives—
Mrs. Hugh Hulse, of the Lone Star neighborhood, drove to Hilgard recently and visited with her relatives who live there.

Have Lovely Dinner—
Some neighbors, friends and relatives enjoyed a duck dinner Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jones, who live on the Union-Cove market road. The dinner was pot luck, which meant that there was an abundance of delicious food, which all enjoyed. Besides the Jones family there were present, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bell and daughters, Gertrude and Roberta, Mrs. Florence Houx and four children, Mr. and Mrs. George Herr and daughter, Eunice, of La Grande and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher and two children, and Mrs. H. K. Kephart and daughter, Esther, of Spokane, Wash.

To Entertain Club—
Mrs. J. A. Gaskill will entertain the members of the Priscilla Sewing club at her home near Imbler next Thursday afternoon.

Special Meeting—
Special features to be given at the meeting of Cricket Flat grange to be held this evening at their meeting hall, the Highland school house, will be the presence of members of the Blue Mt. subordinate. They will present the travelling bag and will also entertain the program for the lecturers' hour. It is expected that a fair sized crowd of visitors will be present and the Cricket Flat folks are planning for an interesting evening.

Guests From Baker—
Mrs. Harry Sullivan and children of Baker were guests recently at the Grange home in Ladd Canyon district. The Sullivan family formerly lived in the Pleasant Grove neighborhood and also in La Grande.

Entertains Aid—
Mrs. Georgia Kight, of the Prosty district, entertained the members of the Ladies Aid of Cove Wednesday at an all-day meeting at her home. A fine attendance of members is reported and the day was spent sewing for the bazaar which is to come early in December.

Improve—
Mrs. Annie Huff, who had been recovering satisfactorily from a serious illness, suffered a relapse a few days ago. Her condition is slowly improving again. Mrs. Huff is at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Spencer in the Grange Hall neighborhood.

Move Into Valley—
Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Dobson and family, who have been operating a farm near Theocast, has moved into the valley and onto the farm owned by Mrs. Dobson's mother, Mrs. Sara Anson near Island City.

Resurface Road—
A crew of 10 or 12 men began Monday to resurface with gravel a stretch of the North Powder river market road near Theocast, being shoveled by hand into county trucks. The improvement will extend, it is stated, from a point near the Grant Dalton farm to the Wilson place. Excessive rains, which caused the road to get in bad shape and it has been rough all summer and it is reported that the improvement will be a help to all who use this route.

Visits Mother—
Mrs. Reese McAllister, of Grange Hall neighborhood spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Irene McCarthy, who was quite ill at her home in La Grande.

Parents' Day—
Parents' day was observed Friday afternoon at the Liberty school near La Grande. The teacher, Mrs. Mary B. Kall, and the pupils worked hard to prepare an interesting program for the occasion. We hope to be able to report next time how very successful the program and the entire afternoon were.

Visiting Friends—
Miss Bernice Bangs, of Seattle, is enjoying several days rest from her work as evangelist of the Nazarene church. While in this valley she is a guest of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jasper on the side hill road. On Thursday the Jaspers, accompanied by Miss Bangs and Mrs. H. H. Cleaver, of La Grande, enjoyed a picnic dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cleaver, after which the afternoon was spent hiking.

Enjoy The Pheasants—
A group of friends who live near Theocast, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher in the Shanghai district Sunday and enjoyed a pheasant dinner, served potluck fashion. And the feast was not only at noon, but the group remained for the entire day and had another feast at the supper hour. In the company were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bell and their daughters, Gertrude and Robert, and Mrs. C. Robinson and daughter, Phyllis, of Walla Walla, Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Jones, J. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Fisher, daughter, Josephine and son, J. Newton. There were also hunters from La Grande, O. B. Davis, P. H. Brooks and E. F. McPadden. It was a very happy day for all concerned.

Visiting—
Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Miller, who live on the "Shell" over the valley on the side of Mt. Harris have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Earnie Miller, of Lower Cove. While down in the valley Gilbert and his brother, Richard, had been on a hunting expedition.

Countrywomen's Club—
The Countrywomen's club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. O. Groat. The regular program for the occasion in keeping with the Halloween season. Mrs. Ellen Ashman acted the part of a gypsy fortune teller and told fortunes with cards during the afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Golden and Minnie Holman had charge of the entertainment hour and each conducted a clever game. Guests were Mrs. E. A. Sayre and Mrs. A. Ashman. Mrs. Anson, assisted by Mrs. Delbert Anson, served refreshments at the close of the meeting. Mrs. Orin Anson will be the next hostess to the club.

Spend Day—
Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Huffman and children, Adeline and Sidney, of Union, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Eaton, of Portland, spent Thursday in La Grande visiting and transacting business. Mrs. Eaton, who has been visiting relatives in Union, is Mr. Huffman's aunt. She formerly made her home in that city.

In Portland—
R. S. Constock, of the Mill Creek canyon, left last Sunday morning for Portland where he has been spending the week on business.

Gather Sunday—
Last Sunday afternoon some of the members of the Cleaver clan from Imbler and La Grande, drove to Meacham and enjoyed dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Cleaver who make their home there. The remainder of the day was spent socially. Those present besides the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cleaver, Ralph

Probable Reduction In Sheep Nos.

A prospective reduction in the sheep population in the western states where two-thirds of the total winter grown, is foreseen because of the material reduction in number of yearling ewes on hand, according to the mid-summer sheep outlook report issued by the economics department of the Oregon State college extension service.

In the western area including Texas and South Dakota, where two-thirds of the sheep in this country are found, the present number of yearling ewes is now about 15 per cent less than enough to maintain the flocks with normal death losses and marketing. In the rest of the country little change in sheep production is expected, the report states.

"Numbers of sheep in this country reached a peak Jan. 1, 1932 when more sheep were on hand than ever before," the report said.

"Owing to unfavorable conditions for sheep in the western states last winter heavy death losses of ewes occurred after Jan. 1, and the number on hand at shearing and lambing time was less than a year previous. This was the first time since 1921, smaller and the wool crop estimated at 7 per cent under 1931.

"The sheep industry has been feeling the combined effect of increased supplies of lamb and wool and sharply curtailed consumer demand, so that in July 1932 the farm price of sheep in Oregon was but 31 per cent of the 1925-1930 average, lambs 33 per cent and wool 24 per cent.

"There is a close relationship between the price of lamb and wool and the purchasing power of consumers as indicated by the index of industrial payrolls," the outlook report concludes. "This index is now at 40 per cent of the 1925-1930 average, a situation which can reasonably be expected to improve materially within a year or two."

Western Lamb Report Is Published

Direct and contract sales of sheep and lambs in the intermountain territory continued in fair volume during last week in the west coast markets, said Monday's western sheep and lamb report reviewed by the Oregon State college extension service.

West coast packers are apparently looking for fat lambs for the California market, but actual buying is mostly for immediate demand.

A scarcity of choice 70 to 80 pound lambs is noted in all far western territory resulting in some medium and common lambs going to slaughter, which in other years would be placed on feed.

The bulk of good lambs from Southern Oregon and Eastern Nevada are being marketed by Frank and Frank. Some choice Washington lambs averaging 80 pounds from the Klickitat area brought $4.35 per shipment to San Francisco. In Southern Idaho several cars of 82 pound blackface fat lambs were shipped to the coast at $4.35. In South Central Idaho reports indicate that mixed fat and feeder stuff generally brought $4 straight.

Sales throughout the intermountain region varied up to a top of $4.50 for best stuff, though in some sections prices were lower than the week previous. In excess of 50,000 lambs from the Central Wyoming districts will be forwarded to Northern Colorado feed lots in the next few days for contract feeding. No sales of feeding lambs were reported in this area at less than $4 in the past week.

BAPTISM ENDS IN TRAGEDY

DURBAN, Natal (AP)—A native minister and a convert whom he was baptizing were drowned when they waded out to their necks at a treacherous bend in the Umluthana river. They were engulfed at the second immersion.

Keep Eggs Cool; Bring More Money

Very few poultrymen are making as much money as they would like to, yet many can materially increase their egg receipts through the proper summer care of eggs, points out W. D. Buchanan, extension poultryman, Washington State college. Some poultrymen average from two to three cents per dozen more for their eggs than the ordinary poultryman, mostly through care of the eggs. Although farmers who carry poultry as a sideline may be too busy in the summer to take care of the eggs, there is no excuse for the commercial or specialized poultryman.

"Several years ago a federal worker pointed out the fact that the white of an egg, there is an oxidizing enzyme which encourages chemical action and breaks down the protein of the white, resulting in thin white," says an article by W. W. Thermohlen, Iowa State college, in the July issue of the American Poultry Journal. "As the egg deteriorates in heat, says Mr. Buchanan, it is equally true that it pays to cool eggs before packing."

The first step in the active program of this kind is to keep the egg cases and fillers in a cool place before the eggs are packed. Fillers and flats are good insulators. If the air is hot when cool eggs are packed, it will help to reheat them. If hot eggs are placed in a cool filler, they will heat the air. If hot eggs are placed in a hot filler, they will stay hot.

Eggs should be gathered three or four times a day. They should be gathered in perforated baskets or baskets, before packing, they should be placed in a room with a temperature of 40 to 55 degrees for two hours before packing. When so cooled, they should be packed in pre-cooled cases and stored in a cool place until they are shipped. Eggs cared for in this way will stay better and longer, and lead to the eating of more eggs.

OVER VALLEY
WINTER CATTLE MARKETED
Government figures covering the first eight months of this year show that the number of cattle marketed at the nine principal markets of the country was as follows:

1931	5,829,379
1932	4,985,952
A decrease of 843,427 or 14.47 per cent.

In addition to the decrease in numbers, there was undoubtedly a drop in tonnage, as few heavy cattle have reached the markets and there has been a tremendous run of good young, light cattle as well as a mass of dairy-bred steers and heifers that would weigh light if they were 90 years old.

Cookies for Ever-Hungry Youngsters

Home-made Goodies Delight Kiddies

SCHOOL days again. And hungry youngsters racing home and asking for "something good" to eat. If the cookie jar is kept well filled, mother will have no difficulty in satisfying the children, because these little cakes are substantial enough to satisfy the between-meal craving and still so light they will not spoil the appetite for regular meals.

While even plain cookies will appeal to nearly all children, try giving them something with a flavor they like. Cut the cookies in interesting shapes, such as stars, diamonds, and little animals! Or decorate the tops of plain cookies with some nuts, raisins, or small colored candies, and listen to the shouts of delight.

Add these to the school lunch, too, and watch the interest of the youngsters in that rather difficult meal.

Chocolate Cookies

- 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 cup butter or other shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 3 squares unweetened chocolate, melted
- 1 tablespoon cream
- Sift flour once, measure, add cinnamon, baking powder, and soda, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy.

Chocolate Drop Cookies
2 cups sifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
dash of salt
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
3/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 egg, well beaten
3 squares unweetened chocolate, melted
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup walnut meats, broken
Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt, and sift together twice. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and nuts. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 7 minutes. Frost with chocolate butter frosting if desired. Makes 50 cookies.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED FOR EASTERN ORE. WHEAT LEAGUE MEET IN CONDON

A number of Union county wheat growers have been given places on the several committees which are to make plans for the annual meeting of the Eastern Oregon Wheat League which is to be held at Condon Dec. 2 and 3. Walker M. Pierce and Fred Kiddle, of Island City, are on the taxation and legislation committee. J. D. Woodell, of Lone Star and Hugh Huron of Brooks Lane are on marketing and finance and Frank McKennon of Imbler and Gilbert Courtwright of the Riverside district, on wheat handling and production.

Officers of the league are James K. Hill, Pendleton, president; George E. Miller, Pendleton, vice president and C. W. Smith, Heppner, secretary-treasurer with the county committees as follows: Wasco, Charles Harth, The Dalles; Gilliam, John Withycombe, Arlington; Jefferson, Ward Farrell, Lexington; Morrow, Geo. N. Peck, Lexington; Grande, Fred Kiddle, Island City; A. K. York, Condon; Mrs. P. B. Ingles, Dufur; J. W. Maloney, Pendleton; George Peck, Lexington.

The complete list of committees on the several working groups are: Taxation and Legislation: J. N. Scott, Athens; Fred Epplinger, Baker; J. O. Turner, Heppner; J. B. Adams, Moro; Prof. Drexler, Corvallis; E. W. Snell, Arlington; A. R. Shumway, Milton; Charles Harth, The Dalles; George B. Woodward, Adams; Walter Pierce, La Grande; Fred Kiddle, Island City; A. K. York, Condon; Mrs. P. B. Ingles, Dufur; J. W. Maloney, Pendleton; George Peck, Lexington.

Marketing and Finance: Chairman, Harry Pinkerton, Moro; Bert Johnson, Condon; A. R. Shumway, Milton; John Woodell, La Grande; Jen Tergerson, Helix; W. F. Jackson, Moro; W. H. Ragsdale, Moro; C. A. Nash, Mikkalto; P. N. Johnson, Condon; Ed Ward, Boyd; H. O. P. Lodge, Oregon; Earl Shank, of Hood River, grand patriarch of the I. O. O. F. Encampment for Oregon; Maud Rodgers, of Enterprise, grand president of the Rebekah Assembly of Oregon, Edwin of Wallowa, grand chaplain of the I. O. O. F. lodge for Oregon and J. A. Rodgers, Eastern Oregon district manager for the I. O. O. F. lodge. During the afternoon a closed session of the Rebekah lodge were held and at 6:30 a delicious chicken dinner was served. The evening was taken up with addresses by the various grand officers and by special music and readings by Mrs. Thompson, of Enterprise, and Lottie No. 158. Lodges represented were Emerald No. 119, Silver Lake No. 121, Garatison No. 157 and Lostine No. 158.

Because of injuries to players the game scheduled between Enterprise and Joseph football teams for this Saturday was cancelled and victory conceded to Enterprise. The next contest is a tentative one with the Eastern Oregon Normal freshmen, to be played here Oct. 29.

DUCE REASSURES KING
ROME (AP)—Mussolini reaffirmed his obedience and that of his people to King Victor Emmanuel at the unveiling here of a monument to the Bersaglieri troops.

Mentioning two Bersaglieri heroes and speaking directly to the king he said: "I am proud to be a Bersaglieri."

"Sire, we furnished a criterion of what our people can do in decisive moments. When your order rings out, we, now as yesterday, will obey."

Nothing Venture

by Patricia Wentworth

Chapter 13
PASSIONS CURBED
"I haven't congratulated you" said Rosamund.
"No," said Jervis pleasantly. Then, "I hope you will."
"When you have introduced me to your wife, I will turn my eyes on Nan. They were just like the sapphires of her ring—so darkly blue, as cold beneath the brilliance and the color. She smiled with her lips, but the smile rose no higher. Nan heard Jervis say her name. It was the first time since he had said, "Jervis, take thee, Nan," he said.
"Nan, let me introduce my cousin, Rosamund Carew." She was aware of his smile. "You have heard of her."
"And I have never heard of you," said Rosamund very sweetly. "That doesn't seem fair—does it? That Jervis watched them with interested technique Nan had only youth and inexperience to offer; yet, to his surprise, she suffered less than he. He could have supposed possible from the contact. She had the air of a well-bred child a little unsure of the head. No one could have the breeding, was there; it kept her head up and her eyes steady and clear. Jervis wondered how old Page's typist came by it."
"You've heard enough of Ferdinand Francis?"
"Are you P.F.?" said Rosamund. Her voice, like all his movements, had a slow grace. It was rather a deep voice.
"I am," said Ferdinand—"and I can't begin to say how glad I am to meet you."
Rosamund smiled upon him and introduced Robert Leonard—to him first, and then to Nan.
"P.F. shook hands with enthusiasm. Nan acknowledged the privilege of Mr. Leonard's acquaintance with the slightest, gravest inclination of the head. No one could have told how terribly her heart was beating. To be close to the man who had tried to kill Jervis, not once but twice!
"Ho, ho," a tutting brow with sparse fair eyebrows; the eyes were deeply and rather closely set, the nose insignificant, the chin jutting again and oddly clear; a small colorless mustache clipped away from the corners of the mouth showed thin, pale lips. His hair was smooth and mouse-colored and ran down.
"Are you in town for long? How can you tear yourself from Weare in this weather?"
"I've been seeing my sister married," said Nan. "She sailed for Australia today."
"That you'll be going back tomorrow, I suppose."
"Jervis said, "Yes, tomorrow." He added, quite lightly and smoothly, "So, I'm afraid we shan't meet again."
Rosamund Carew smiled and passed on down the room, spoke for a moment to Janet Tetterley, smiled at Nonie Carzer, touched

Emid Melliter, on the shoulder, and after a word or two passed on and out of sight behind a golden pillar. "Well!" said Mr. Francis. He put a wealth of expression into the word; his eyes darted questions. Like King David, he held his tongue, but it was pain and grief to him.
Jervis looked at him rather maliciously.
"I don't think 'well' hurry," he said. "I think we'll dance. If P.F. makes a clean breast of all his villainies, he shall dance with Rosamund—and I'm sure you'd love a turn with Leonard."
Nan's face went blank; her color was gone.
She said, "Oh, no—I'd rather not."
"The you'll have to put up with me—and I'm nothing like the peacemaker that he is."
Ferdinand was an accomplished dancer; the new Mrs. Jervis Weare was an exquisite one. Jervis experienced an elusive feeling of being for once at the top of a form to which he had never previously aspired. He looked down at Nan's brown head. He could just see on the side of her ears. It was little and delicately shaped; the lobe showed pink between short waves of hair. "I suppose you know how beautifully you dance. I wouldn't have dared to ask you if I had known."
She looked up for a moment—out of those direct looks of hers. "I was a dancing partner at So-lano's for six months before I went to Mr. Page," she said.
She could hear the frown in his voice.
"No," it was a very sober monosyllable to be a good deal of frank, franking distaste. After a very little pause she added, "I did like the dancing."
"Why did you do it?"
"I couldn't get anything else to do."
"Haven't you any people?"
"Only Cynthia—really."
"She was down on that like a flash. 'Who's that?'
"An aunt. I couldn't possibly ask her for anything."
"Why?"
"She looked up again.
"She's that sort. She finished our education."
"And then?"
"She washed her hands of us. There were seats between the half pillars on two sides of the ball-room. She moved to the nearest and sat down. Jervis said, as if with an effort.
"I've been thinking things over. Would you object to coming down to Weare for a bit?"
"Why?"
"Jervis face changed suddenly. With the look of a teasing school-boy.
"You could see I didn't get run over again." Jervis looked up, pricked by a sudden wonder. He wanted her to come—she must come. "I'll come," said Nan, and relaxed with a sigh.

due to any improvement in the inflammatory process, but is rather due to the bursting of the abscessed appendix.
The cessation of pain in the bursting appendix is comparable to the cessation of pain in an opened boil. But there is an important difference. In the case of a boil, say, on one's neck, opening it up allows the pus which contains bacteria and white blood cells to run off on the skin. In the case of a burst appendix, the pus involves the lining of the abdominal cavity, namely, the peritoneum, and gives rise to peritonitis, a serious complication.
The acute surgical belly which the patient may recognize by its pain and the anxiety which overcomes him, requires prompt medical and surgical attention, even if the attack is brief in duration.
