Speaking of the teaching regarding evolution, Mr. Leavitt said, "There never has been an instance ever known where one species has been changed into another. A few young students of science who have not attained any real standing in the world of science have affirmed that such changes have been made, but no true scientist of any standing has ever done so. In fact, it is clearly stated by them all that this is a step which has no proof whatever."

La Grande Elks Making Plans For Nov. 8 Celebration

One of the biggest events of the Elks year will be the open house and dance sponsored by the Elks lodge on election night, Nov. 8, at the Elks temple. The election night celebration is one of the leading events in the lodge throughout the United States, it is said. At a meeting of the local organization last night at the Elks temple, plans were completed for the event and reports were received from the regular dance committee and a special group appointed to work jointly on arrangements.

Members of the dance committee are Victor Eckley, Lester Kingsley, Ernest Walden and Raymond Gray; and comprising the special committee are Robert R. Carey, Robert E. Williamson and Howard C. Glenn.

The Elks and their families and friends have been invited to the open house at which returns from the election will be received in the lobby and dancing enjoyed in the ballroom at nine o'clock.

A partial report from the Days of '49 show held recently was given last night and R. J. Kitchen, exalted ruler, congratulated the committee which he believes deserves great credit for the success of the show. While proceeds do not equal those of former years, they were sufficient to start the Christmas relief program at least.

Bids on the project were opened late Thursday by Major Oscar Kuentz, district engineer. The firm of Kern & Crockett, Ashland, was the low bidder at $274,550. Five bidders competed. An allotment of $450,000 was made for the project under the Garner-Wagner relief act.

BOTH OREGON, WASHINGTON ASK SUPPORT

dicted Oregon will remain in its usual place in the Republican column. Big Registration Gain

A big increase in registration was recorded in both Washington and Oregon, and with it a marked increase in Democratic votes in the primary.

In Washington, the Democratic vote increased from 42,531 in the 1928 primary to 197,875 in the primary last month. The Republican primary vote in 1928 was 292,897, compared with 230,069 in the Sept. 1932 primary. Thus the Democrats showed a gain of 155,344 votes compared with a loss of 62,828 by the Republicans.

Oregon showed a total increase in registration of about 50,000 over 1928 figures, while Washington's registration increased about 100,000.

Oregon Democratic in 1931 Only once in the past has Oregon gone Democratic on a presidential ticket. That was in 1912, when William Washington voted for Wilson in 1916 by about 16,000 votes after having given "Teddy" Roosevelt a majority of 27,000 votes in 1912.

Both Washington and Oregon voted for Hoover in 1928 about two-to-one. Repeat Measures on Ballot

Both states will vote on measures to repeal state bone-dry laws but prohibition played a comparatively minor role in the campaigns for either state or national offices.

In Washington the veteran Republican Sen. Wesley L. Jones, of the "5 and 10" dry law fame, is challenged by Homer T. Bone, a liberal running on the Democratic ticket.

Rep. Ralph A. Horr was named out for the Republican nomination for the first Washington district congress by John F. Miller, whom Horr displaced two years ago. A youthful attorney, Marion A. Zioncheck, is Miller's Democratic opponent.

Rep. Sam Hill, Democrat, in the fifth Washington district, has no Republican opposition, and is paying his Socialist opponent, Leo Welsh scant attention.

In Oregon, the veteran Republican congressman, Willis C. Hawley, co-author of the much-discussed Smoot-Hawley tariff legislation, is watching the campaign from the sidelines, having been eliminated in the primary by James W. Mott, Harvey Starkweather, Democrat, is Mott's opponent.

The gubernatorial race in Washington has attracted almost as much interest as the national contest.

Lieut. Gov. John A. Gellatly won the Republican nomination over the incumbent, Roland H. Hartley, but is faced by an active campaigner in Clarence D. Martin, a flour miller, who won the Democratic nomination.

Oregon does not vote on governor this year. The visit of Franklin D. Roosevelt on his western tour was viewed by the rival major parties as having had opposing effects. The Democratic partisans contend many voters were won over to their cause, while the Republicans assert Roosevelt's speeches cost him votes.

ment because he was not satisfied with the explanation. "Up until the time the falsehood was launched," he said, "the Digest had not received a single letter asking that a vote be changed."

FARLEY SAYS LETTER "FORGED" WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)— The Republican national committee said in a statement today that Democratic Chairman James A. Farley's denial he solicited campaign funds from a Canadian "raises a question of veracity between himself and the Montreal Star as well as the Chicago Tribune and other newspapers in the United States."

The committee said that before making public yesterday an item printed in the Montreal Star saying that Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, wrote a shipping man there seeking financial assistance, "the Republican national committee verified from the Montreal newspaper that its news story was accurate in every detail."

Farley had termed the story "utterly untrue" and said the letter was "forged." He added in a statement issued in New York yesterday that the letter came from "the same source from which proceeded an equally baseless story that 35,000 people had written the Literary Digest to change their ballots from Roosevelt to Hoover."

Farley said this story was denied by the magazine's editors who "let it be known that the falsehood proceeded from Republican headquarters."

Today's statement from the Republican national committee said a dispatch similar to the Montreal item was printed in the Chicago Tribune on October 26 and that Farley "failed to deny its authenticity at that time. The denial came a little late," the Republican committee said.

captain the Mountaineer team tomorrow. The Mountaineers in two games with the Sons have been unable to break into the win column, although holding the Southern Oregonians to a tie one year.

Coach Howard Hobson and his squad of 21 men arrived in Portland this morning and after a two-hour stop, took the train for La Grande which arrives here tonight.

Before leaving Ashland Hobson announced that his squad was in fine trim to carry the battle to the Mountaineer eleven. This followed a hard week's practice perfecting offensive tactics with Al Bradford, who came into his own in the Humboldt victory, breaking into the first string backfield.

The eligibility list received this morning from Ashland did not include the name of Tebo Hines, negro back who is playing his fifth year at the Southern Oregon school. One Baker boy, however, will be on the list—Crockett, Ashland quarterback, who played with the Baker High school for several years in the past year.

Another old-timer on the Ashland team is Sapp, end, who played with the College of Idaho in 1929 in La Grande.

The Mountaineer team is in excellent shape this weekend, with two injured men back in the lineup. Hodgins was out of practice a few days early this week, as was Hoyt, but both men will start Saturday. If Hodgins is unable to continue, he will be relieved either by McLin or Plank. No scrimmage was held this week, with Coach Bob Quinn working to perfect offensive plays and defensive strength.

tion has done much the past three years toward bolstering up of business in our city. Too many of us are loath to give of our moral and financial support to this state institution. We take too much for granted in feeling that what is the use? We already have the school here. Let us put our shoulder to the wheel and give the E. O. N. the support they are justly entitled to, and thereby give a better feeling toward that which pays good dividends.

"We earnestly urge every one to make the effort to attend the game tomorrow and boost for the home team."

"HARRY MCKINLAY, President, La Grande chamber of commerce."

An assembly of present and former students will be held tomorrow morning at the Normal school auditorium preceding the game, while a banquet has been scheduled at 6:30 at the Sacajawea Inn. Closing the eventful weekend will be the annual homecoming ball at 9 o'clock in the ball room at the Normal school building. Miss Marjorie Rogers, of Portland, has been appointed as feature chairman for the ball.

from across the seas in American political history. He said that against "thousands of panic-stricken people... crack-brained theorists... sinister self-seekers," President Hoover "has stood firm, working every waking hour, carrying such burdens as has rarely been the lot of man."

Nation Needs Hoover, Claim "For the good of the nation we must elect Herbert Hoover," Roosevelt continued. "Our country has been particularly fortunate because... a man has arisen in the nation capable of facing the crisis and setting the feet of our people on the proper road. It is our president, Herbert Hoover."

"We hold no brief for the intellectual descendants of Bryanism... I do not accuse the Democratic standard bearer of advocating all these theories. However they are all held in a lesser or greater degree by common elements of the group that is backing him... "Should he be elected we will be putting in control of our nation a group forming a compendium of these theories."

Hallow'en Dance To Be Given For Benefit of Needy

A Hallow'en benefit dance will be sponsored Monday evening, Oct. 31 by the Eagles lodge in the ballroom of the lodge hall, and all proceeds will be used for relief work throughout the winter.

A novel scheme is being put into effect by the La Grande aerie, in which a card explaining what the relief committee is doing is left at local stores along with a number of dance tickets to be sold by the merchant. The relief committee, instead of taking the cash for the sale of the ticket, turns the money over to the merchant and takes from his store goods in the same amount to apply to relief work.

The Hallow'en dance on Monday is a forerunner of a series of such events that will be conducted throughout the winter. Clean clothing and foodstuffs will be accepted at the door for admission, and each person is to bring such produce valued at 50 cents.

Music will be donated by the Blue Mountain Cowboys and Lindsay's orchestra. At present the committee has 48 sacks of potatoes stored for winter use.

Plans for the dance were completed last night when the Eagles met at 7:30 o'clock at the hall with Arthur Bremer, president, in charge.

JAPAN INTENDS TO ANNEX JEHO TO MANCHUKUO

with his armies, but he probably will force them upon us. He must take full responsibility for the consequences."

The general asserted that Japan had no intention of absorbing Manchukuo territory as an integral part of the empire.

"We want Manchukuo only for commercial and industrial purposes," he said. "Also we need it as a home for those of our surplus population who wish to come here."

"Japanese immigrants are excluded from the United States, Australia, New Zealand and several other countries. Brazil welcomes us, but mostly we are driven toward China which has no barriers against our race."

"Also we must depend increasingly upon this territory for coal, timber, foodstuffs and other raw materials. Manchukuo trade, in fact, is vital to our national existence."

"If the League of Nations or any one of two powers tries to thwart our plans, we must resist with all our might. Hence it follows that we cannot accept in any sense the dictates of the report which the Lytton commission made at Geneva."

"But it will be necessary to allow Manchukuo to develop her own policies. Japan will give the new state every legitimate assistance, but we should not attempt to dominate the government nor force our will upon the people."

"If it is to succeed, Manchukuo will require the continued help not only of Japanese experts, but of engineers, architects, business men and advisers from other foreign countries like the United States. She also will require foreign capital to exploit her enormous natural resources, lay new roads, construct railways, build electric power plants."

Gen. Koiso said it was also Japan's aim to assist Manchukuo in the development of a "monopol civilization."

"We wish to teach the people here the principles of what we call 'the kingly way,' which is the code of our life in Japan," he explained. "In that code we find the foundation of our ethics, our conduct, and our lives."

"If Manchukuo follows this 'kingly way,' she cannot fail to become a great nation."

Studies Relief Problem With election ten days away, the governor again turned his back on the national campaign today to consider the relief problem in his own state.

Another conference with state officers and legislative leaders on the best way to continue the state's unemployment relief the rest of this year occupied his attention.

The governor appeared fresh and his voice fully recovered, when he gave two short radio talks last night. Speaking from his study in the executive mansion to a group of stage and screen stars in New York, he predicted that "under the leadership of a militant, vital, liberal democracy we are headed for better days."

In another brief talk he sent his greetings to the American-Greek Democratic association of New York.

JOHNSON TO SPEAK SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28 (AP)— Senator Hiram W. Johnson, Republican Independent, will give his first address in support of the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt for president at Desland auditorium here tonight. Senator Johnson, whose announcement several days ago he would bolt the Republican national ticket following his refusal to support President Hoover, will speak under the auspices of the Progressive Republican Roosevelt league of California.

SEVEN TALKS TO BE MADE BY PRESIDENT

headed into Ohio for seven stops along the route in that pivotal state, including two in Cincinnati.

Robert McDougle, one of the West Virginia Republican leaders, introduced the president at Parkersburg. Mr. Hoover said that due to the low cost production of Japanese pottery that product was flowing into this country and hindering the domestic industry.

He asserted that "our Democratic opponents" would further lower the protective tariff.

CINCINNATI CHEERS PRESIDENT ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 28 (AP)— President Hoover told a cheering crowd of thousands at Cincinnati today that the continuation of Republican policies, including the tariff would "win out" over economic difficulties.

Mrs. Alice Longworth, widow of the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, boarded the train here to travel with Mr. Hoover's party to Indianapolis.

The president chose the activities of his administration in fighting economic ills as the theme of his talk at a stop at Winton Place, Cincinnati, en route to Indianapolis for a campaign address tonight.

Claims Success The "unprecedented measures" taken by his government, he said, had succeeded, and, he warned, "personalities are immaterial" in the campaign, declaring instead, it is a choice between sound and unsound policies.

His Democratic opponent, he said, had offered no concrete measure for fighting the economic situation.

Ons boomed and factory whistles blew as the president's train pulled into Cincinnati. The crowd that greeted him at Winton Place was but a major gathering of those who greeted him all along his route, cheering as he made platform appearances, with Mrs. Hoover, at four stations along the way in West Virginia and Ohio.

Crowds lined the tracks at several smaller towns, waving American flags and looking eagerly for the president and his wife, but the train did not stop.

The cheers that greeted him in Cincinnati, the president said, "are an indication of where you will stand on November 8."

"Crowd Denies Chance of Change" "If there should be a change in administration," the president said at one point, but the crowd interrupted.

"There will not," it shouted. David E. Inghalls, Ohio's Republican gubernatorial candidate, after greeting the president with a boyish "Hello, Mr. President; gee whiz, I'm glad to see you!" drew Mrs. Longworth out to the rear of the platform to confront the cheering crowds.

Before the train pulled out of the Winton Place station, Mrs. Longworth started back into the car, but Mrs. Hoover took her arm and pulled her to the platform edge, and arm in arm, they received the crowd's final ovation.

The cheers of the crowd were doubled at this gesture, and loud huzzahs and energetic flag waving bade them farewell.

The table in the presidential suite was laid for luncheon, at which Inghalls and Mrs. Longworth were to be guests.

A number of Ohio Republican leaders boarded the train at Chillicothe, including Robert A. Taft, son of the former president, Representatives Hollister and Hess, of Ohio, Joseph H. Assef, C. Lincoln Mitchell and Julius Fleischman, of Ohio.

Athens, Ohio, where he was greeted by a crowd police estimated at 5000, the president predicted better days for the bituminous coal industry and said he believed its chief competitors, oil and electricity, had "about exhausted themselves."

Mr. Hoover did not speak at Chillicothe because he addressed a crowd there last week on his way to Detroit, but he exchanged banter with those in the crowd, while the train made an operating stop.

"We're going to re-elect you, Mr. Hoover," one man in the crowd shouted.

"No! Me," the G. O. P. "That's the spirit," the president replied, "You're not re-electing me; you are re-electing the Republican party."

To a woman who said she was working for his re-election, the president replied: "You want to be sure to get the whole woman's vote out."

The bituminous coal situation was discussed briefly at Athens, Ohio, by President Hoover.

The president said the bituminous coal industry had been badly crippled by intense competition from electricity and petroleum and that he had recommended to congress an investigation of means of co-operation.

FRENCH DISARM PLAN APPROVED

as Norman Davis, American representative, was expected here to discuss disarmament with Premier Edouard Herriot. Mr. Davis left London last night after reaching an agreement in principle with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on harmonizing of American and British views.

Meanwhile, it was learned France has virtually reached an agreement with Soviet Russia on the terms of a pact of non-aggression to be signed at Paris. The French view is that this pact is in line with the policy of reinforcing the Kellogg-Briand pact.

The Baltic states and Poland already have signed such a treaty with Russia.

PEACE OUTLOOK BRIGHTER NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Five world powers—the United States, Great Britain, France, Russia and Japan—were breaking trail today toward new alignments intended to promote peace and security.

As reflected in Associated Press dispatches from several capitals, their activity also introduced three powerful factors into the international problem. These factors were:

1. Improved relations between Russia and Japan despite the troublesome Manchuria that lies between them.

2. The proximity of a treaty of non-aggression between France and Russia stipulating that France will give no aid to a country attacking Russia, and vice versa.

3. Apparent Anglo-American unity at Geneva, implying that the world's two largest naval powers have reached an agreement in principle to harmonize their views on disarmament.

Norman Davis, the American representative at the disarmament conference, went to the French capital today to talk over disarmament with Premier Edouard Herriot.

Mr. Davis left London last night after reaching an agreement in principle with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to harmonize the Hoover disarmament proposals and the British viewpoint.

It was authoritatively stated that the conversations between Mr. Davis, Mr. MacDonald, and Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary, had thrashed out the Anglo-American differences to the point of unity of purpose at Geneva.

It was not revealed, however, how the Hoover plan for a general one-third cut in armaments, and the British demand for ample naval mobility had been reconciled.

One need not be weighed in the balance, these days, to be found wanting.
