

Demand Gaining For Fresh Eggs In Oregon Mart

PORTLAND, Nov. 11 (AP) — Demand for fresh eggs is gaining. Not only was there a noted improvement in the local territory but all through the country a like condition has recently appeared. Price changes were small locally but some additional betterment was shown in the east.

Pullets are very scarce and getting more so each day. There appears more demand than supply for these at the moment, advises E. J. Dixon, manager of the Pacific Co-op. An advance of 1c in pullet offerings took effect here Friday morning at 20c dozen.

Despite the easiness of the storage egg situation, the market remains statistically in good shape. Total holdings were far below normal and if weather conditions become more severe, the immediate law will decrease and this will force considerable trade back into the house offerings.

ROOSEVELT'S OREGON LEAD NOW 75,000

(Continued from Page One)

540 Multnomah county complete, unofficial for secretary of state give: Hoss 181,127; Midwood 13,039; Wescarver 149,928.
Treasurer: Holman 183,420; Maloney 135,847; McFarland 9720; Ward 4738.
Attorney general: Dobson 142,515; Hosmer 11,593; Svenson 4916; Van Winkle 150,048.
Supreme court two: Bean 184,197; Hewitt 110,832.
Supreme court three: Bailey 198,118; (28 counties complete, unofficial: 2 complete official).
1939 precincts in state including 540 Multnomah county precincts complete, unofficial on measures give:
Voting qualifications—
Yes 178,827; No 118,280.
Trial without jury—
Yes 179,344; No 106,027.
Tax limitation—

Yes 141,087; No 114,323.
Oleo tax—
Yes 117,381; No 183,060.
Rogue closing—
Yes 114,039; No 166,051.
Education appropriation—
Yes 54,119; No 206,075.
Prohibition repeal—
Yes 192,071; No 128,532.
Bus bill—
Yes 145,073; No 166,039.
University removal—
Yes 45,872; No 264,224.
Tax control—
Yes 92,253; No 142,101.
Tax supervision—
Yes 154,341; No 135,479.
Income tax—
Yes 134,971; No 151,170.
Water power—
Yes 159,871; No 122,442.
(23 out of 36 counties complete, unofficial).

MUSIC WORK MOVES AHEAD IN SCHOOLS

(Continued from Page One)

Trombone, John Farris, Greenwood.
Trombone, Dick Moore, Central.
Trombone, Martha Clark, Central.
Trombone, Burrell Richardson, Ackerman.
Mellophone, Virginia Hardeman, Central.
Mellophone, Jack Murphy, Central.
Baritone, Charles Brooks, Greenwood.

There are 13 in the beginner's classes in high school. Reed classes meet at 3:15 p. m. Mondays and brass classes at 3:15 p. m. Wednesdays. They are:
Trumpet, Billy Geibel, high school.
Trumpet, James Voels, high school.
Trumpet, Jean Paddock, high school.
Mellophone, Neva Stein, high school.
Mellophone, Nadine Zweifel, high school.
Mellophone, Edgar Draper, high school.
Baritone, Floyd Bryant, high school.
Trombone, Donald Jasper, high school.
Tuba, Frank Wilcox, high school.
Tuba, Charles Zink, high school.
Clarinet, Max Baxter, high school.
Clarinet, Melva Bull, high school.
Saxophone, Wesley Smith, high school.

There are 41 in the junior orchestra, which meets at 9:30 a. m. Saturdays. This is a direct feeder to the senior orchestra. Members are:
Violin, Mary Jane Heasler, Central.
Violin, Annette Turn, Central.
Violin, Helen Campbell, Central.
Violin, Amy Williams, Central.
Violin, Ray Wathenson, Central.
Violin, Phyllis Shaw, Central.
Violin, Sam Southall, high school.
Violin, Elbert Anson, Greenwood.
Violin, Billy Neff, Greenwood.
Violin, Fern Duncan, Central.
Violin, Adeline Bunch, Central.
Violin, Frank Burnett, Riveria.
Flute, Hart Rechlin, high school.
Flute, Arlo Weider, Central.
Piano, Adelaide Zweifel, Central.
Clarinet, Muriel Lund, Central.
Clarinet, Max Baxter, high school.
Clarinet, Donald Shade, Ackerman.
Clarinet, Morris Bruce, Central.
Clarinet, Emily Berry, high school.
Saxophone, Helen Geddes, Central.
Saxophone, Harold Weeks, Central.
Mellophone, George Hill, Central.
Baritone, Myron Wheeler, high school.
Baritone, Don Higgins, high school.
Bass-tuba, Eugene Schultz, high school.
Bass-tuba, Charles Zink, high school.
Trumpet, Gerald Hill, Central.

WAR HERO -- PEACE VICTIM

WINNER OF NATION'S HIGHEST AWARD FINDS MISFORTUNE IN CIVIL LIFE

Above, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barger with their children, Mabel Louise, 4, and J. E., 8; right, Barger in uniform wearing some of the decorations he won for valor.

Trumpet, Vance Johnson, high school.
Trumpet, Bob McWayne, Central.
Trumpet, Avery Millering, Greenwood.
Trumpet, Bill Weise, Ackerman.
Trumpet, Ray Pearson, Ackerman.
Trumpet, Billy Geibel, high school.
Trumpet, Norman Thacker, high school.
Trumpet, Eugene Rochester, Central.
Trumpet, Dick Larkin, Central.
Trumpet, Ernest Rousch, Greenwood.
Drums, John Ainsworth, high school.
Drums, Clark Atkins, Central.

LA GRANDE RETAIL MARKETS

Sugar, 100-lb. sack $5.35
Vegetables
Parsley, bunch 6c
Cabbage, lb. 3c
New wax onions, lb. 3c
Turnips, 3 bunches 10c
Carrots, 1 bunch 10c
Potatoes, sack 8c
Onions, lb. 2c

Tomatoes 15c
Beets, 3 bunches 10c
Lettuce, Imperial 5c
Garlic, lb. 85c
Red peppers, lb. 30c
Green peppers, lb. 30c
Egg plant, lb. 10c
Spinach, lb. 10c
Sweet potatoes, 4 lbs. 15c
Fruit
Bananas, lb. 8c
Apples, box 50c @ 83
Lemons, doz. 85c
Oranges, doz. 10 @ 50c
Dry prunes, 30 to 40 size, 4 lbs. 25c
Grapes, lb. 10c

Dairy
Butter, creamery, lb. 27c
Cheese, lb. 15 @ 25c
Honey, comb 15c
Cottage cheese, lb. 20c
Eggs
Fresh extras, doz. 30 @ 32c
Mediums, doz. 27c
Mixed, doz. 28c
Poultry
Hens, lb. 15c @ 20c
Springers, lb. 20 @ 22c
Flour
Hard Red Winter, 40 lbs. 11.25
Soft wheat, 40 lbs. 4.75
Soft wheat, bbl. 4.00
Fruit
Salmon, M. (fresh) 15c
Halibut, lb. (fresh) 15c
Clams, lb. 35 @ 40c
Pinen Haddie, lb. 30c

Menus Of The Day

By Mrs. Alexander George
MENUS FOR SUNDAY
Breakfast
Chilled Grapefruit
Waffles and Maple Syrup
Broiled Sausages
Dinner
Tomato Juice Cocktail
Roast Chicken
Mashed Sweet Potatoes
Bread
Celery and Apple Salad
Chocolate Fudge Cake
Supper
Relish Sandwiches
Plum Sauce

Waffles, Serving Six
3 cups flour.
3 tablespoons sugar.
6 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon salt.
4 egg yolks.
2 cups milk.
4 egg whites, beaten.
1-3 cup fat, melted.
Mix dry ingredients and add yolks and milk. Beat 3 minutes. Fold in rest of ingredients. Pour tablespoonsful into hot grease waffle iron and cook until well browned and until they will easily slip from the iron. Serve at once. Leftover waffle batter can be stored in ice box and used later.
Tomato Juice Cocktail (Serving 6)
2 cups tomato juice.
1-3 teaspoon salt.
1/4 teaspoon pepper.
1 tablespoon horseradish.
2 tablespoons catsup.
1/4 teaspoon sugar.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
Mix and chill ingredients. Serve in glass cups.
Celery and Apple Salad (For 6)
1 1/2 cups sliced celery.
1 1/2 cups sliced apples.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1-3 cup broken nuts.
1/2 cup salad dressing.
Chill ingredients. Combine and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.
Relish Filling For 3 Sandwiches
1-3 cup chopped cooked meat.
1 hard cooked egg, sliced.
2 tablespoons pickle relish.
2 tablespoons catsup.
1/4 teaspoon pepper.
2 tablespoons mayonnaise.
Mix ingredients and spread on buttered slices of thinly cut white bread. Add shredded lettuce and cover with other slices of buttered bread.

use every resource possible to protect its own soil. Let the other nations take care of themselves. The last war showed the ill effects of disarmament.
His greatest worry now is how he is going to save enough money from his night watchman's job to pay off the debts he has contracted through the long siege of illness and injury that has visited his family.

TEN-DAY STORM IN CARIBBEAN FATAL TO MANY

(Continued from Page One)

Washington ordered the submarine Dolphin and four vessels in destroyer division No. 2 to the rescue. They were 40 miles away.

The storm carried a crew of about 30 men.
The storm thus far has wrecked only one vessel, the American schooner Abundance off Jamaica. Its crew was rescued. Several vessels were damaged, later proceeding on their way or awaiting assistance. These included the British Blue Funnel Line freighter Phenix, the American Quaker Line vessel San Simeon, the British steamer Ingola, the steamer Veima Lykes out of Houston, Tex., and the tanker Sundul.

The storm appeared first on Nov. 2, off the Virgin islands, cutting a swath through the open sea to the coast of Colombia, South America. The area around Baranquilla was damaged before the disturbance turned northward.

Due to the lateness of the "hurricane season" the churning winds were hard to trace until the Phenix was caught in them last Sunday, 250 miles of Nicaragua.

At that point the storm started moving steadily northward, damaging Jamaica and heading straight for Santa Cruz Del Sur, Cuba. A tidal wave followed the storm, rolling a 30-foot wall of water through the town.

The hurricane then tore its way northward through Cuba, leaving at Nuevitas on the north coast, and passing east of Nassau last night.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, sallow complexions, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Health

"SEVEN-YEAR REBIRTH"

There is a widespread impression that man is reborn every seven years. This impression arises out of the common belief in the magical quality of the number seven, coupled with the so-called biologic death and birth of body cells.

Essentially, the idea that our bodies are reborn every seven years is erroneous. Some cells of the body have but a short life, and other cells of their kind are constantly reproduced to take the place of those worn out.

This is particularly the case in skin cells and in the red blood cells of the body. Other cells like those of the nervous system do not reproduce.

Still other cells do not ordinarily undergo rapid degeneration, nor do they ordinarily reproduce their kind, except in response to injury.

There is scientific evidence to show that smooth muscle cells, liver cells, gland cells and connective tissue cells have the capacity to regenerate or reproduce their kind when the tissue has been lost or destroyed.

The germ cells of the body, namely, the sexual cells, are at times spoken of as immortal. That, too, is essentially an erroneous idea.

The adult male produces millions and millions of sperm, the vast majority of which die. The female ovaries contain thousands of female reproductive cells, the very largest number of which also are destined to die.

Only a few of the cells may be said to survive. This survival is accomplished through the fusion of the male and female cells to form a fertilized ovum from which develops a new human.

From these fused germinal cells there will be developed the millions of other specialized cells which make up the human body, and included among these specialized cells are again germ cells or sexual cells.

It is only in this way that the sexual cells pass from generation to generation.

LEBRUN SETS NEW FASHION

IN OFFICIAL PARIS DRESS

PARIS (AP)—President Lebrun has wrought a sartorial revolution in this center of fashion.

He firmly declined to appear at morning and afternoon functions in full evening dress, with the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor across his hard-boiled shirt front.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

'EYES' FROM THE AIR

HALT RAIDS ON CATTLE

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Ranchers in Northern Australia are using airplanes with huge eyes painted under the wings to frighten away tribesmen who spear cattle in preference to native game.

Recently presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut-away, but Beq de Broquiere, his "director of the protocol," or arbiter of manners, deemed that just a shade too dapper and modern.

Previously presidents have always deemed that costume essential to official occasions, and foreign envoys and cabinet ministers have had to put on "tails" also.

Lebrun has gone back to the "Prince Albert" of late Victorian times. He wanted to adopt the cut