OUT OUR WAY

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

By J. R. Williams

The tax is not new in the United States, either, he pointed out. His statement continued:

"Several of our states, among them Virginia, Georgia, Mississippi and North Carolina, have adopted the sales tax as a temporary emergency measure for raising revenue, and Connecticut, Delaware, Kentucky and Pennsylvania have sales taxes of a more specialized nature."

LA GRANDE MAN'S CHANCES BRIGHT

several of his supporters such as B. L. Eddy of Douglas and Colon Eberhard of Union and Wallawa. From La Grande Senator Kiddle telephoned yesterday that, according to his count, he still has 21 votes, or five more than necessary.

Democrats' Support Expected

"In these 21 he counts Henry L. Hess, Democrat, who defeated Eberhard, and Walter S. Fisher, of Douglas, who vanquished Eddy, and James H. Hackett, Democrat of Hood River, who defeated his Republican opponent, and he also counts J. N. McPadden, Democrat, of Polk and Benton, although he has nothing tangible from McPadden.

"Reports say that Senator Sam Brown of Marion and Senator W. E. Burke, of Yamhill, who introduced United States Senator Kocis at the auditorium in Portland, are endeavoring to line up the newly-elected Democrats and unpledged Republicans to prevent Senator Kiddle's election as president. Among these rumors is on that Allen A. Bynon, newly-elected Senator for Multnomah, may try for the presidency, although as a rule a new member does not seek the post in his first term. At last three of the five senators elected from Multnomah are not pledged to Senator Kiddle. There are a number of senators who have not signed on Kiddle's dotted line, nor made him a pledge. Whether the anti-Kiddle members can consolidate is uncertain at this writing, but, viewed speculatively, there is the possibility of a shake-up."

The Oregonian further says:

"In considering the presidency and Senator Kiddle it may be noted that Kiddle has had his eye on congress for several years. Senator Jay H. Upton of Deschutes is also viewing that job and reports connect the name of Robert W. Sawyer, ex-highway commissioner, as a prospect.

"As the story comes down from east of the mountains, there were various Republicans who did not exert themselves to re-elect Robert B. Burke, hoping that Representative Butler would be elected by Walter M. Pierce and that Pierce will be a one-term, thereby clearing the field for the Republican nomination in 1934. When Senator Kiddle was looking for votes for the presidency, Senator Upton informed him that whenever he had 16 he, Upton, would be the 16th, but Kiddle has never advised Upton that he has 16, according to gossip.

"If Senator Kiddle is elected president of the regular session he becomes lieutenant-governor and in the event of the resignation of Julius L. Meier as governor—a rumor which persists—Kiddle would step into the governor's office. This automatically would stop his aspirations for congress, for the time being, at least."

Regardless of speculations, however, it appears as very, very likely that when the 1933 legislature convenes, Mr. Kiddle will be handling the gavel.

Pierce Has Power

The election of Walter M. Pierce to congress in itself would give the former governor considerable power, but in view of the fact that he also is Democratic national committee-man from Oregon, it greatly augments his possibilities in representation of this district.

As it now stands, Pierce, through his usual position, not only will have the say on appointments in Eastern Oregon to federal positions, but his power also will extend to that part of Western Oregon which Congressman-elect Mott, a Republican, will represent. In Multnomah county, Congressman Martin, a Democrat, will decide on the appointments. As far as federal appointments go in this section, Congressman Pierce's say-so will be the same as law. All candidates for postmasterhips and a multitude of other federal jobs will have to secure his approval. Incidentally, there is no Democratic senator to "horn in" on the plums.

While Congressman Martin is handling the usual federal jobs in his territory, he and Pierce will in all likelihood work together on such statewide positions as U. S. district attorney, U. S. marshal, collector of revenue, etc.

The change in administration and the election of Pierce will probably result in a general change in postmasters throughout this state, with Democrats filling the positions now held by Republicans since the end of the Wilson administration.

There has been much conjecture in La Grande as to who will become a candidate for the postmastership here, but so far, no names have been mentioned prominently, although a number of Democrats undoubtedly are considering their chances for the job.

RAINFALL BRINGS FLOODS IN SOME SECTIONS TODAY

LIGHT SNOW HERE

A light snow fall occurred in La Grande around 7 o'clock this morning, with the flakes melting within a short time, and the cloudy skies beginning to break up a bit within an hour. Occasional sunshine was enjoyed this morning although the weather remained only a few degrees above 40, following a minimum of 33 above. Sunday's maximum was 56 and the rainfall for the period ending at 7 o'clock this morning was .16 of an inch, much of which fell last evening accompanied by a brisk wind.

LOWER COVE PERSONALS

By Mrs. Neil Kight (Observer Correspondent)

LOWER COVE (Special)—At last it has rained enough so farmers can work in the fields. Fall sown grain is coming up. There is no pasture for dairy cows and dairymen are feeding hay.

T. B. Johnson attended a meeting of the directors of the Farmers of Oregon company at Payette Thursday returning home Friday.

Mrs. Charles Johnson enjoyed a visit from her father, J. A. Boss, her sister, Mrs. Ellen Alexander, and daughters, Agnes, Marjorie and Marced, last Sunday. They all came from High Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Kight and daughters, Betty and Marie, were dinner guests at the R. J. Baker home here.

Mrs. Mary Chambers has been on the sick list this week. Her nephew, George Cassett, who has spent the summer with her, has been employed on the G. G. Stackland place for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Baker jointly celebrated their birthday anniversary, both coming on Nov. 8. Friends called during the day and relatives gathered for a birthday dinner in the evening. Those who enjoyed it were Mrs. and Mrs. G. M. Baker, honor guests, Guy Baker, Earl Baker, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Baker, and family, Raymond, Claude, Lewis and Lais, Ray Hartley and sons, Alford and Clark and Elmer Hartley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray O. Baker, of Westport, spent the weekend at the parental G. M. Baker home.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Kight were business visitors in La Grande Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chadwick, of Union, visited at the Neil Kight home Sunday.

Vancouver Man, 35, Dies of Wounds

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 14 (AP)—Charles Gallagher, 35, shot last Nov. 5 at Vancouver, Wash., by his step-daughter, Florence Withee, 15, died in a hospital here today. He had been in a critical condition since the shooting, which witnesses said climaxed an all-night drinking party in which Gallagher had indulged.

The girl, held by Clark county officials since the shooting, told police she shot Gallagher after he had threatened her mother and her.

TAX PROBLEM CONFRONTING THIS STATE

in the event of a special session, a successor to Willard L. Marks as president of the senate, would have to be named. It was believed Fred H. Kiddle, of Island City, who is in line for president of the 1933 session, would be chosen for the short session. Marks resigned several months ago. Frank J. Loderger would assume his position held in the 1931 session as speaker of the house.

In his statement last Saturday the governor cited the extensive savings made under his administration. He explained he had saved $2,100,000 in abolition of the one mill market road tax, $1,050,000 in the elimination of the annual bonus millage tax, $275,925 in vetoed appropriations, $1,000,000 returned to the general fund in savings and $2,500,000 in reduced requirements for the 1933-34 biennium. He also cited that his veto of $500,000 of the $1,181,000 appropriation for the state higher institutions of learning paved the way for that measure to be killed by the voters last Tuesday. The total savings thus accounted for would be more than $7,000,000.

"Sales taxes of a general nature are in effect in the principal European countries, with the exception of Great Britain," the governor said.

Kiddle in Line

Property Tax Feared

In his statement, the governor said the return of the property tax would undoubtedly result in bankrupting several counties now on a warrant basis, an event which he does not wish to see take place. Several legislative leaders, cooperating with the administration on tax problems, so far favor a sales tax to supplement the millage tax or a return to the property tax. The tax commission and the budget director have both advised the governor that a sales tax was the only means of providing new revenue.

While Governor Meier has given much consideration to the new tax, he remained non-committal, and whether the special session will be called will depend upon the reaction of the public and demand for the creation of new revenue.

Local Materials In This House

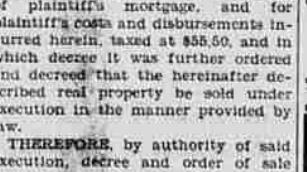

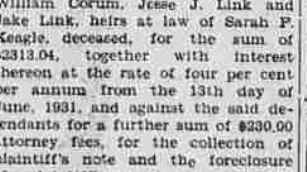

Whenever possible local materials have been used in this house to fit the neighborhood—for it is the intimate sort of place that should be made a part of the locality.

The foundation is of local stone, as is the low wall that forms an extension of it.

The same stone is used for the chimney, and the half timber (while it may come from afar) is finished irregularly to fit the picture. It is first charred, then sand-blasted so the charred wood is removed, without taking away the scorch. The grain is thus made prominent, and the feeling of age enhanced.

The plan is simple, and there are four bedrooms, so that a very considerable family can be accommodated.
